SENATE SENDS INDUSTRIAL CONTROL BILL TO PRESIDENT

EXECUTIVE FIRM ON VETERANS ISSUE

Refuses to Yield to Senate Group and Go Farther Than House Compromise—Veto if Payments Are Increased.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The Senate late today finished congressional action on the industrial recovery bill by adopting the conference report. The measure now goes to the White House for signature.

The vote for the conference report was 46 to 39.

The action removed one of the stumbling blocks to sine die adjournment, leaving still for settlement the Veterans issue, the banking bill an dthe $3,500,000,000 deficiency appropriation measure to carry out various reconstruction acts for settlement. The Senate then began consideration of the appropriation bill.

The measure is designed to lift industry out of its long rut of inactivity by suspending anti-trust laws to permit trade practice agreements on wages, prices and working conditions. Its second sweeping move designed to improve employment provides a $3,300,000,000 federal, state and local public works program to be financed by Federal bond issue and corporation and gasoline taxes for interest and sinking fund requirements.

Hardly had the three billion dollar supply bill been called up, however, than Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, obtained permission to lay it aside for disposition of the conference report on the Glass-Steagall banking bill. Pressing closely behind these measures was the independent offices bill with its Veterans dispute upon the decision of which depends largely how quickly the extra session will end.

Borah Opens Debate.

Borah (Rep.), Idaho, opened debate on the conference report on the industry-public works bill.

Borah, pointing out that the conferees retained that part of his amendment to the industry bill prohibiting monopolies and monopolistic practices, while striking out the bans against price fixing and combinations in restraint of trade, said it was "difficult to know what was in the minds of the conferees."

"It must be," he added, "that they are of the opinion that price fixing and combinations in restraint of trade are not monopolistic practices. Any code framed by trade associations under this bill, then, which may provide for combinations and price fixing, would not be a monopolistic practice. And, when codes are thus framed, any individual pursuing an individual business may be fined for violating the provisions of the code."

Wagner (Dem.), New York, principal author of the bill, told Borah the bill "makes the declaration by law that there are to be no monopolies."

"It is my deliberate judgment," Borah said, "that, whatever may be the purpose of the framers of this legislation, if we do not have strict provisions against price-fixing and combinations in restraint of trade, they will insidiously reach into these codes in spite of any supervision and eliminate small enterprise."

Wagner replied that Borah seemed to be overlooking the fact that the anti-trust laws have conceived and nurtured these large enterprises and that during the reign of the anti-trust laws these tremendous enterprises have grown.

"We are trying, by a new method," Wagner said, "to reach the same objective sought in the anti-trust laws.

"We want to give an equal voice to small business in the formulation of the code. I am in sympathy with the Senator from Idaho, we must provide against monopolistic tendencies."

Wagner added that the moment price-fixing resulted in monopolies it would become illegal, but that every code would contain provision against sales below the cost of production, which, he said, was "one of the vicious things."

To adopt the Borah amendment,

CHAMBERLAIN ANNOUNCES DEBT PROPOSAL HAS BEEN GIVEN TO U. S. AMBASSADOR

Tells Commons He Expects Satisfactory Reply From Roosevelt—10 Pct. Payment Reported Agreed On.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 13.—A satisfactory Anglo-American settlement on the war debt instalment due Thursday was forecast tonight by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in a three-minute speech before the House of Commons.

The Commons had waited the whole day long for Mr. Chamberlain's pronouncement while the World Economic Conference was torn with dissension over the war debt issue injected by Premier MacDonald yesterday in his opening address as chairman.

"The British Ambassador today handed the American State Department a note setting out the British proposals concerning the June instalment," the Chancellor said.

"We expect to receive President Roosevelt's reply tomorrow.

"We have no reason to suppose it will be other than satisfactory. But as it has not yet reached us I am not in a position to state its terms."

The American delegation to the economic conference made no comment on Mr. Chamberlain's statement, but the general opinion was that the Chancellor's announcement to the Commons is being held up and British public opinion is being kept in the dark regarding terms of the proposal until after the American Congress adjourns.

Chamberlain promise the House of Commons a full statement on the debt situation tomorrow night.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Labor member who had called for a statement on the foreign policy upon debts, called off further debate on the question.

Great Britain has decided to make a ten per cent "token" payment on the $75,950,000 war debt installment due Thursday on President Roosevelt's assurance that he will accept for himself alone although he cannot pledge the acceptance of Congress, it was learned tonight on high authority.

Delay in the Chancellor's announcement, originally set for several hours earlier, was explained as being the result of the British wish for clarification of just what the President meant in saying he was willing to accept in his own name, but could not bind Congress.

When the British Cabinet met last night, highest sources asserted, they had word from Roosevelt that "token" payment was acceptable on those terms, but they felt they had to know more definitely just what he meant.

Roosevelt, on his own part, wanted definite assurance that the 10 per cent payment—10 per cent being the basis of the reparations settlement according to Germany at Lausanne—would not be regarded as the basis of the final debt settlement.

Following an extraordinary midnight session, the British Cabinet met at 9 o'clock this morning to continue consideration of the debts payment.

State Department Gets Note; Contents Withheld.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 13. — A note from Great Britain on the war debts was received at the State Department late this afternoon.

This was announced while Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the British Exchequer, was explaining his Government's position on the debts to the House of Commons.

The British note was delivered by messenger while Acting Secretary Phillips, who earlier in the day had received Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay, was attending a cabinet meeting at the White House.

Indications were that the text o fthe note would be withheld until an American reply has been formulated with both to be made public simultaneously.

Ambassador May of Belgium and Minister Davila of Rumania called at the department, seeking information as to the progress of the English-American negotiations.

America's spokesman at the London conference were advised today in the Senate by Lewis of Illinois, the Democratic whip, to walk out on the parley rather than permit discussion there of war debts.

COL. G. R. SPALDING HEADS U. S. PUBLIC WORKS PROGRAM

St. Louis Engineer Named by H. S. Johnson to Have Charge of Section of Industrial Control Work.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Col. George R. Spalding of St. Louis, nationally known engineer, has been selected by Hugh S. Johnson, Industrial Control Administrator, to set up the public works section of that organization, it was learned today.

This section will administer the $3,300,000,000 relief building program. Spalding is a West Point graduate, has engineered projects on the Mississippi, Ohio and Missouri Rivers and was prominent in the building of the Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals. At present he is division engineer in charge of the Upper Mississippi division at St. Louis.

Col. Spalding's first assignment was in the Philippines where he did engineering work for three years during the insurrection. Then to the Engineers' School for young officers in Washington, D. C., during which time he also served as an aide to President Roosevelt.

His river work began in 1905 when he went to Pittsburgh to commence the Ohio project. In order his other subsequent assignments were: St. Louis under the division engineer; Denver, same; Detroit, river and harbor work; Jacksonville, Fla., in charge of all river and harbor work in Florida.

In 1911 he was assigned to the instruction staff in the army school at Fort Leavenworth. During the four years he was there he was raised to the rank of major. Next a year in Cincinnati on river and harbor work under Col. Lansing S. Beach, division engineer, and later chief of engineers. Then similar work in Louisville. At the outbreak of the war he went to Fort Myers, Va., as an instructor and then to Camp Lee, Va. As Colonel of the 305th Engineers in the Eightieth, he went to France, his outfit taking part in the Meuse-Argonne, St. Mihiel and other major engagements. Then he was relieved of his 305th assignment and made engineer officer for the First, Second and Third armies.

After the war he served as instructor in the War College, Washington, for four years and then went to Muscle Shoals for two years, supervising the completion of the construction. For the next four years he was in Louisville in charge of the Ohio River project and in November, 1929, came to St. Louis as Western Division Eingineer in charge of channel improvements (as distinguished from flood control) of the Upper Mississippi and its tributaries. He resides in Webster Groves.

COMPROMISE BANK REFORM BILL GOES TO WHITE HOUSE

Senate Acts Favorably on the Conference Report on Measure Soon After the House Adopts It Overwhelmingly.

PROVISIONS FOR SAFETY OF DEPOSITS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 13. — The Senate late today concluded Congressional action on the Glass-Steagall banking bill by the adoption of the conference report. The measure now goes to the White House for presidential signature.

The House this afternoon adopted the compromise bank reform-insurance deposit bill. The House vote was 191 to 6 to accept the conference report.

Senate leaders said that neither Senators Long (Dem.), Louisiana, nor Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, would oppose the compromise bill in its present form.

Vandenberg had sought to make the deposit insurance plan effective at once, whereas, under the compromise, it will not begin until Jan. 1, but he was said by leaders to be ready to let the bill go through without a fight.

Long was described by friends of the bill as completely satisfied, and Senators jokingly described the measure which the Louisiana Senator fought so long as the "Long-Glass" bill.

Roosevelt's Attitude.

That President Roosevelt will accept the revised measure is being taken for granted, in view of the interest he took in formulation of the compromise after weeks of deadlock between conferees of the two congressional branches.

Final acceptance of the bill in such a ready manner was expected in the House, but the outlook was uncertain in the Senate until midday, at which time proponents of more changes apparently gave in.

Toward Reserve System.

A single banking system under national regulations appears in the making in the bill.

It was the conference agreement which indicated probable eventual extinction of the 48 separate banking systems, for, in reaching a solution of the deposit insurance deadlock, the agents of House and Senate provided that, after 1936, no banks which are not members of the Federal Reserve System may benefit by the deposit insuring pool which the bill will create.

Ever since the bank crisis which ushered in the Roosevelt regime, the administration has tended towards effecting a squeeze that would bring all banks into the reserve system if not into the national chain which is under direct supervision of the Treasury.

The idea is that state banks could not withstand the competition of institutions offering full insurance on deposits when they themselves could not obtain it. General admission into the reserve system still would leave them outside the national banking organization, but many officials believed the final unification would follow.

The Insurance Pool.

Under the bill, between January of next year and the beginning of 1938, state banks will share fully in the insurance pool so long as they can show the required soundness.

From Jan. 1, 1934, until July 1 of the same year, insurance would only cover deposits up to $2500. After that date 100 per cent insurance is to be given all sums up to $10,000; with a scale graduated down to 50 per cent insurance for amounts exceeding $50,000.

Other provisions of the bill: National banks will have power to establish branches in states which permit their own banks to branch.

The Federal Reserve Board will have power to prevent use of its credit in speculation.

National banks will have to divorce security companies within one year.

Private banks will have to surrender either investment or deposit business.

Payment of interest on demand deposits will be forbidden and interest on time deposits will be limited by the Reserve Board.

COPIES OF CONSTITUTION FOR CONGRESSMEN VOTED

Beck Suggests to House It Be Printed With a Heavy Black Border Around It.

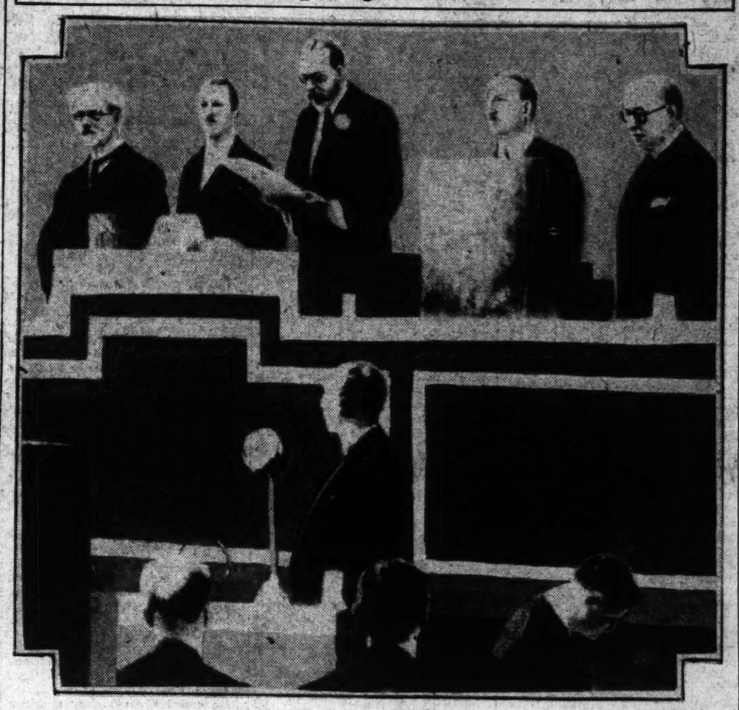

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The House today adopted the Senate resolution to authorize the printing of 3500 copies of the United States Constitution for use of Senators and Representatives.

As Speaker Rainey put the question of adoption to the House, Representative Beck (Rep.), Pennsylvania lawyer, who has assailed most of the Roosevelt legislative program as unconstitutional, suggested:

"Mr. Speaker, let me suggest that the Constitution be printed with a heavy black border around it."

GEN. SMUTS ASSAILS AMERICA'S FAILURE

South African Spokesman Declares 'Gravest Responsibility' for Conditions Was Put Up to U.S. Year Ago but U. S. Has Done Nothing.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 13.—The development of a European bloc of debtor nations to force the United States to settle the war debts question immediately was predicted today by observers at the world economic conference.

The morning session met in a state of excitement over the war debts situation.

Secretary of State Hull, head of the American delegation, who was to deliver the first speech today, did not appear. Word from American headquarters was that there had been a delay in preparing Hull's speech. The American delegates were said to be holding a conference at their hotel on the war debts situation and other matters. It was said, however, that Hull would speak tomorrow afternoon.

American Explanation.

It was denied in American quarters that the delay was due to the war debts situation. The explanation was that Washington had not approved changes in Hull's address in time for the speech to be prepared for this morning's session.

Prime Minister MacDonald, in his speech as chairman opening the economic conference yesterday, said the conference could not do much until the war debts were settled. The war debts are not on the agenda of this conference, the United States has insisted that the issue be excluded and MacDonald said the issue could not be brought up at this time. Nevertheless the British Cabinet met in extraordinary session this morning to consider action on the matter.

Hull and Steering Committee.

A fight which may do much to determine the extent of American participation in the conference proceeded behind the closed doors of the Steering Committee's room.

The French insisted that the chairmanship of the Monetary Committee should go to a gold standard country, presumably to their own Finance Minister, Georges Bonnet, and Hull was just as insistent that the original intention of naming James M. Cox, American delegate, be carried out. The French asked Hull to take the leadership of the Economic Committee, but he refused, saying he would not be in London long enough. Then they suggested that he might leave the leadership to Cox when he departed, but Hull demurred.

The Steering Committee adjourned to tomorrow without selecting the committee heads.

In Hull's absence, Premier Daladier of France spoke in his place. The conference was tense.

THREE NEW YORK GANGSTERS SLAIN WITH ICE PICK

Had Been Trussed and Gagged, and Mouths and Eyes Sealed With Adhesive Tape.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The bodies of three slain men were found last night in an East Sixty-fifth street tenement. Each had been stabbed in the chest with an ice pick. Part of it was found, broken off in the temple of one of the victims.

Identifications were made by finger print records. The dead men, known to police as petty racketeers, were Charles Cabrese, Salvator Tulumello and Louis Sally.

All three were flashily dressed, in sharp contrast to the plainness of the flat. They had been dead probably since Saturday. They must have been murdered, police said, not many hours after the killing of three other gangsters last Friday. The manner of their death was similar in some respects to several others of recent weeks.

Each had been trussed and gagged. Adhesive tape sealed shut their mouths and eyes. It was thus that they met death, unable to see the arms lifted against them, and unable to defend themselves even if they had.

There was a theory that the triple murders were a sequel to the Decoration day killings in a First street cafe when six men were lined up against the wall by four men and shot down. Two men were killed in that attack, the other escaping with wounds.

Police thought also that the murders may have been the result of the gang war between Dutch Schultz and Waxay Gordon, rival beer barons in the metropolitan area. In the group of murder victims in late weeks have been the names of several men associated by police with the Gordon clique. So far as police could say no Schultz gang member has lost his life in the present feud. Some think a plot contemplates the extermination of the Gordon gang to the last man. Gordon himself is out of jail on heavy bail, and Schultz is a fugitive. Both are wanted for income tax law violations.

MASSACHUSETTS TO BE 11TH STATE TO RATIFY REPEAL

Voting Today; Anti-Prohibitionists Confident of Victory and Drys Silent.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, June 13. — Massachusetts today is voting on repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Repealists were confident that they would elect all the delegates to the State convention which will vote on repeal of national prohibition. Prohibition spokesmen refrained from making any predictions.

If the repealists carry the election, Massachusetts will be the eleventh state thus to vote.

The states which already have voted in favor of repeal are Wyoming, Illinois, Indiana, New York, New Jersey, Michigan, Rhode Island, Delaware, Wisconsin and Nevada.

Forty-five delegates are to be chosen to the State convention, three from each of the 15 congressional districts. Candidates are pledged for or against repeal.

Mashpee on Cape Cod, reporting early, cast a two to one vote for repeal candidates, and at the same time voted strongly for town license for the sale of beer.

Sunderland, which was "no license" for years, voted down candidates pledged for repeal by 45 to 35.

THREE DROWNED, GIRL SAVED WHEN BOAT OVERTURNS

Man, Two Women Lose Lives After Drifting Motor Craft Is Caught in Wash of Mississippi Tug.

Hurled from a small motorboat last night as it drifted out of control in the wash of a Mississippi River tug, Miss Virginia Rattini, 18-year-old high school graduate of last week, told today how she was rescued after 20 minutes of frantic struggling in the water, while her companions—her brother and two women—were drowned.

The moonlight boat trip, on which tragedy descended when the outboard engine died and the frail craft began to drift helplessly, took the lives of:

Miss Helen Potthoff, 27, stenographer for the Bemis Bros. Bag Co., who had graduated last week from the law course of the City College of Law and Finance.

Girl's Story of Tragedy.

"Helen Potthoff had dinner at our house last night and after dinner Angelo took us out in his 14-foot motorboat," Miss Rattini said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "We left the dock at the foot of Lucas avenue about 7:45 and cruised slowly up the river.

"We were almost at the Chain of Rocks Bridge when the engine suddenly died. We began to drift downstream, while Angelo worked to get it started. All of us were wearing life preserver jackets except Angelo, and at first we didn't worry.

"He couldn't do anything with the engine and after a few minutes he got out an oar to keep the boat pointed downstream. It was then about 9 o'clock. He said we would drift as far down as possible and try to dock near the place where he kept the boat. I was sitting in the front of the boat, Helen and Florence in the middle and Angelo in the stern.

"We drifted under the Merchants' Bridge without any trouble, pretty near to the Missouri shore. We passed a tug headed up the river

MATTERN LEAVES SIBERIA ON FLIGHT TO NOME, ALASKA

Round-the-World Aviator Takes Off at Khabarovsk, on East Coast, in Face of Headwinds.

MAY MAKE STOP IN KAMCHATKA

Wants to Cross Sea of Okhotsk and Bering Sea Without Descent but the Weather May Prevent.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, June 13. — Braving headwinds at the take-off, James Mattern has left Khabarovsk, Siberia, for Nome, Alaska, one of the most arduous legs of his flight around the world.

He started for American soil just nine days, six hours and 54 minutes after leaving New York on the first solo attempt to circle the globe. He left at 10:15 p. m. Monday Moscow time (2:15 p. m. Eastern standard time Monday).

He wanted to cross the Sea of Okhotsk and the Bering Sea without stopping, but latest weather reports were none too reassuring, and it was considered likely he would pause at Petropavlovsk, on the Kamchatka Peninsula, northeast of Khabarovsk.

He landed at the latter place at 3:20 a. m. Sunday Moscow time and gained hard-earned sleep while his plane was being inspected.

He can no longer break the globe flight record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, but he hopes to set a solo mark that will stand for some time.

(On the 2500-mile flight to Nome Mattern will cross the international dateline and will, therefore, gain 24 hours. If the trip takes him 17 or 18 hours he will be earlier, by Alaska time, when he lands then when he sets out.)

Additional information reaching here from Khabarovsk today told how Mattern lost his way. After passing Irkutsk, he veered northward instead of taking a direct eastward course to Khabarovsk and got well out over the ice-floed Ohkotsk Sea before he encountered heavy fog and cold weather.

The moisture on the wings of his plane began freezing and it was only after the craft became heavier and heavier that he turned about and made for land.

He finally reached Sofisk late on the night of the ninth and because of the darkness had to stay in the air all night. He circled the little town for hours and then descended safely on a small cleared place shortly after daylight.

He was so exhausted that he fell asleep immediately after climbing out of the cockpit. He was unable to obtain high-grade fuel in the little town and was compelled to use benzine and oil to reach Khabarovsk.

On leaving there, he announced he intended to fly nonstop to Nome.

Rain Falling at Time Mattern Is Due at St. Paul Island.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL ISLAND, Bering Sea, June 13.—Rain was falling here at 4:40 a. m. Pacific Standard time and a light southeast wind was blowing at about the time James Mattern, around-the-world flyer, was due here on his flight from Khabarovsk, Siberia.

SENATE SENDS INDUSTRY RECOVERY BILL TO PRESIDENT

Contributions to Campaigns.

Referring to Wagner's statement that the anti-trust law had failed to prevent monopolies and concentration of wealth, Borah said the "great trusts" made contributions to campaigns of both parties and "that has had its effect in failure to enforce the anti-trust law."

He quoted the party platforms for strengthening those laws and said the bill would suspend them. "Every telegram I've received, protesting against my amendment, and there have been 200," he said, "has protested the prohibition against price-fixing."

He said the Rockefellers built up their great industrial empire through the "two powerful bludgeons of price-fixing and combinations in restraint of trade," but the bill wiped out such safeguards against monopolies.

"Shades of Stalin!" Borah exclaimed, adding: "We ought to hesitate a long time before suspending the antitrust law every time it conflicts with one of these codes."

Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, said it was difficult to find out from the administrator of the proposed law just how the code would work. He predicted the administrator would allow differing codes for various regions, such as lower wages in the South and in the North.

Black Would Protect Consumer.

Black (Dem.), Alabama, contended a law could be passed to permit combinations to fix minimum wages and maximum hours of labor. "If the objectives of this bill are to be carried out," he said, "we must abandon the competitive system in part.

"This bill stopped short of the next logical step if we are to protect the consumers. We must decrease the exorbitant earnings that have heretofore gone to capital.

"We must stop in this bill at the point where we permit minimum wages and maximum hours and let competition take its course or we must abandon the anti-trust law.

"I predict if this measure becomes law there will be an effort on the first day of the next session to limit the profits of industry."

Black said he would vote against the conference report.

"I believe the conferees could stop up this loophole," he said; "either adopt the Borah amendment as originally drawn and regulate prices by competition or adopt a substitute that in exchange for the boon given dustry by suspending the anti-trust law we protect the consumer against exorbitant prices."

President Won't Yield on Veterans' Compromise.

Meanwhile President Roosevelt sent word to Congress he would not yield from the compromise he made with the House on payments made to ex-soldiers. After a conference between the President and Democratic leaders at the White House, the word was spread through the Senate that the President would not give an inch on the veterans issue and would veto the appropriation bill if Congress went farther than the compromise to which he has agreed.

The President's unyielding attitude was understood to have been expressed to Vice-President Garner, Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, and Senator Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina, in charge of the independent offices appropriation bill carrying the veterans fund.

Leaders were expected to convey the President's attitude to the Senate when the conferees reported back with their disagreement later today, and bring a showdown on the issue.

The Cutting-Steiwer amendment, said Lewis W. Douglas, budget director, will cost $100,000,000 if adopted and require new taxes to keep the budget in line.

The principal point at issue on veterans today is that of pensions for Spanish War soldiers. President Roosevelt told the House he would "issue a regulation which will give some assistance" to these. The Senate's amendment would keep on the rolls every pre-World War pensioner who was drawing money on March 20, 1933, and would prohibit reduction of his allowance more than 25 per cent. The six lines that state this are figured at the Capitol to mean a cost to the Government of a little more than ten million dollars apiece annually.

Among the Complications.

To add to the day's complications, several Senators are ready with resolutions to vote disapproval of some of President Roosevelt's new Government reorganization orders.

These maneuvers hardly could win, since it takes two-thirds of both houses to defeat such orders, but they could take up time, prevent adjournment past June 15's war debt due date and well into the London Economic Conference's debates, with the consequence of debate on these subjects in Congress.

House Marking Time.

The House this afternoon recessed subject to the call of Speaker Rainey, marking time while waiting for the Senate to act on pending legislation before sine die adjournment. Just before the recess was taken, Democratic leaders definitely blocked consideration of the Connery five-day week bill. This was done by securing passage on a vote of 140 to 49 of a resolution permitting Representative Byrns of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, to recess the House. Leaders thought Congress could not adjourn before tomorrow night.

Clark Protests Elimination of Tax Exemption Amendment.

Senator Clark (Dem.), Missouri, yesterday protested the elimination of his amendment to the industry bill to remove tax exemptions from all government, state and municipal securities.

Clark and Long (Dem.), Louisiana, complained that the Senate conferees had entered the conference with the House prejudiced in advance against these amendments and had made no effort to retain them.

Wagner told Long he was "not quite accurate" about the ban against price-fixing "Under the modification," said the New Yorker, who is an author of the legislation, "no code shall permit a monopoly or monopolistic practices, so if price-fixing results in a monoply or monopolistic practices, it would be prohibited under the bill."

Erroneous Impressions.

Chairman Harrison of the Finance Committee and head of the Senate conferees said he wanted to correct erroneous impressions with respect to the bill's embargo provisions. These reports, he said, had contended the President would be "directed" to place an embargo, limit imports, or license importers if prices and wages went up in America under the operation of the bill as to encourage a flood of importations, where as the power granted was only permissive. "The President may or may not do this, under the bill," Harrison explained.

He emphasized the impression should not go out at this time, when the economic conference was under way, that America was about to place embargoes on foreign goods.

MARKET HAS BRISK RALLY AND THEN A RAPID DROP

Some Issues Show $2 to $4 Losses in Irregular Close.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Rumors that the dollar would be stabilized at $4 to the pound, far under previous estimates, brought a flood of selling into the stock market in the final dealings today. Accentuating this report was a sharp rise in the dollar after a mid-day fall.

This halted a new boom in the list led by the rails. Gains of 1 to 7 points were wiped out and losses of 1 to 4 points substituted.

The selling drive converged on leaders, particularly American Telephone, United States Steel, Consolidated Gas, du Pont, American Can and Allied Chemical, and against the rails. The ticker fell six minutes behind at the close.

Finance Minister Guido Jung of Italy, who followed Daladier, again dragged in the war debts, declaring this problem must be settled. Jung said financial and economic facts must be faced. He listed the raising of price levels and the stabilization of currencies among the paramount problems before the conference. He firmly believes, he added, that another major problem was that of the war debts.

"The armistice was signed at Lausanne," he said in reference to the agreements concerning the scaling of German reparations down to 10 per cent, and the final settlement is now imperative.

"In opinion of my Government," Jung said, "monetary maneuvers are not only not the cure for this evil, but will make it worse in the end."

He asserted the fact that all nations of whatever wealth and monetary policies had suffered in the slump proves the depression has roots outside of the monetary field.

"The policy of economic isolation means semi-mutilation," Jung asserted.

He emphasized the interdependence of nations, and said, "the investment in the international field is a main factor in international recovery."

Gen. Smuts Criticises U. S.

Gen. Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa, in a subsequent speech, also touched the debts question, declaring that "it is essential not to waste time in the discussion of intergovernmental debts."

The debts "were settled at Lausanne," he said, "and this agreement will stand. There is no going back on it." He went on: "The Lausanne conference a year ago placed the gravest responsibility where it belonged—on the shoulders of the United States. The United States delayed to fall into line."

Gen. Smuts brusquely asserted that "the world calls for courageous leadership, and does not always get it from the politicians." He added that "forces of economic decay are threatening."

James M. Cox and Sam D. McReynolds of the American delegation were in their seats during the later addresses and the other American experts were all present listening attentively. No American answer was forthcoming.

Daladier's Three-Point Program.

Daladier in his speech laid down a three-point program.

He called for currency stabilization, economic accords and huge public works schemes. Daladier and Viscount Kikujiro Ishii of Japan were the only major speakers of the morning who did not discuss the war debts.

"I have the duty in the name of the French delegation to say a few words on the world crisis and the remedies we sincerely feel to be most efficacious," Daladier said.

"The vast halls of the London Geological Museum are insufficient to hold all the books, pamphlets and diagrams that economists have made on this horrible crisis.

"Two-thirds of the world's population live from agriculture and raw materials. The prices of these products fell brusquely in a few months to half and sometimes two-thirds their value. How are these millions of farmers, suddenly deprived of their purchasing power, going to continue to be clients of industries and banks?

"In addition, during and after the war, humanity, attracted by false credit miracles, was seized by a fever of mass production without regard to real ability to consume. Humanity rushed blindly toward profit up to the day when these gigantic pyramids of inflation, erected without any regard to reality, fell."

Urges Monetary Security.

"This is the reason why we feel it necessary to put an end to monetary war and instability of moneys, and to give commercial exchange the indispensable guarantee of monetary security," he continued.

"The maintenance or re-establishment of liberty of gold movements appears indispensable to us. How are you going to re-establish the circulation of goods and conclude economic accords if the measure of values remains dependent on caprice or hazard? What would you say of the engineer or architect who used an elastic yard stick?"

Daladier said it was necessary "to organize a controlled entente among producers in order that their activities may be adapted to the actual powers of consumption.

"Already," he went on, "agreements have been concluded between various national industries for some products, such as steel and chemicals. It is necessary to generalize this method and to extend it to the principal agricultural products.

"We believe this work must also be completed by a big effort toward organization of labor, notably by the adoption within international frame work of a reduced working week, for example a week of 40 hours."

Public Works Program.

Daladier said that the third point in the French program was a public works scheme.

"Experience has shown that great public works programs mobilized idle capital and eased international activity," he said. "The International Labor Office has drawn up a vast scheme which we consider worthy of the consideration of the governments."

He finished with a plea for international collaboration.

"These are ideas which we feel just," he said. "Today all too often governments work at cross purposes. We must on the contrary harmonize order and avoid economic war, which would end as a war by armies, by a peril to civilization.

"Dragged together toward the abyss, the peoples of the world will find relief only in common action to restore universal confidence by free and loyal collaboration."

Ishii of Japan Speaks.

He declared for restoration of the gold standard—with the reservation such as Great Britain and other nations make that favorable conditions for its operation must first be created. He touched on the silver problem, declaring that "in view of her trade connections with silver-using countries, Japan will give due consideration to proposals for appropriate solution of the silver problems."

MacDonald adjourned the session at 12:40 p. m. until 3 o'clock.

The conference reconvened at 3, but not one American delegate was present at that time.

Scandinavian Bloc Likely.

Just before resumption of the session it was stated that in the event the great Powers fail to arrive at concrete decisions, the Scandinavian countries and Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg were prepared to carry out an arrangement made recently and take drastic independent action.

At a conference of those Powers in Stockholm 10 days ago it was agreed that, although they carried the best will to the world economic conference, they would take some form of concerted economic action in the event of failure of the conference.

It was understood the form this action would take would be on the lines of an economic bloc designed to be as independent of the rest of Europe as possible.

Soviet Proposal Expected.

Another bit of news was that Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, was expected to propose a world pact for economic non-aggression. The Russian delegation indicated this was projected, but the details were not disclosed.

The first business of the afternoon session was to deal with a resolution of the International Labor Office advocating the stabilizing of money and price levels, the removal of excessive trade restrictions, an increase in purchasing power and public works programs.

After the resolution had been introduced it was announced that it would be referred to the proper committee.

The first speaker of the afternoon session was Baron Konstantin von Neurath, the German Foreign Minister.

As he was speaking Ralph Morrison of the American delegation entered.

Baron von Neurath declared that "ultimately international debts can only be paid in goods and services; in Germany's present economic situation this principle must be our starting point."

He emphasized that a satisfactory agreement on fundamental principles of credit and financial problems must precede solution of economic problems and in particular problems connected with commercial policy.

The German representative also asserted that "unless the great pending political questions are solved, the deliberations of this conference can achieve no satisfactory results."

Politics and Economics.

He did not specify the political problems, but at another point in his address, he said:

"When discussions of individual financial and economic problems begin in a few days, we must not forget that over and above these problems of detail there are the great political tasks, and that upon heir solution the success of this conference is very largely dependent. The German delegation will approach the solution of these financial and economic problems in the same spirit as that which has inspired Germany's political action.

"We believe that a gathering like this, of the Governments of all the nations of the world in which each country can frankly explain its own difficulties, has the great advantage of promoting better understanding of these difficulties by other countries.

"This will enable us to create the necessary conditions for rebuilding relations with all other countries of the world on the solid foundation of reconstructed national economic systems.

"We, for our part, must at any rate adopt the viewpoint that only clear understanding of the situation of a nation which is struggling hard to put its own house in order can create the right spirit for selection of those remedies which have to be applied to master our situation."

Pole and Cuban Speak.

Adam Roc of Poland followed Baron von Neurath. He asserted that the stabilization of currencies was of fundamental importance and should start with the stabilization of the leading currencies with a view to the return of the gold standard. Roc also urged "rearrangement of the debts," and re-establishment of world trade.

Orestes Ferrara, leader of the Cuban delegation, recommended the reduction of customs barriers, explaining how his own country has been hit by operation of the tariff systems.

Ferrara called for the gradual modification of tariffs over a five-year period, through a treaty terminable on one year's notice. He suggested establishment of a technical tribunal to settle controversies arising out of general tariff agreements.

Alexander Malinoff of Bulgaria called the attention of the conference to his country's special position as a small debtor state and asked that the nations give due consideration to this fact in preparing any action affecting Bulgaria.

The conference adjourned until 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning when Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria will speak.

The American reaction to today's developments ranged from jocular speculation as to the time when delegates would get a cablegram to return home to an expression of the belief that it was better for the difficulties to come at the start of the conference than later.

Senator James Couzens was expected to arrive today aboard the Liner Manhattan, to join the American delegation.

Senator Key Pitman has gone to the country to recover from an illness. He was unable to attend the first session.

ACTIVITIES OF PROHIBITION BUREAU TO BE TRANSFERRED

Will Be Consolidated With Justice Department Bureau of Investigation as Economy Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Plans for transfer of Prohibition Bureau activities by consolidation under the Justice Department Bureau of Investigation are being formulated, but Attorney-General Cummings said today there would be some time before completion.

There is no intention of halting enforcement, he told newspaper men, although the Enforcement Bureau as such is abolished under the reorganization plan sent to Congress and made public Saturday by President Roosevelt.

While several agents of both the Prohibition and Investigation Bureaus will be dropped under the economy plan, Cummings said he expected no decrease in efficiency because the elimination of duplicating efforts would require fewer men.

Many of those now working in the Prohibition Bureau, he said, would be immediately re-employed after their present jobs are abolished at the end of 60 days.

$23,000,000 STOCK AUCTION

Chase Bank Bids in Industrial and Utility Securities.

NEW YORK, June 13.—In one of the largest security auctions ever held in Wall street, the Chase Bank yesterday bid in a long list of stocks of various industrial and utility companies at a cost of about $23,000,000.

The sale represented collateral held by the Chase against a $33,500,000 loan made to Continental Shares, Inc., an investment Trust. The sale terminated with the transfer of 300,000 shares of International Paper Class C common stock, and two blocks of Canadian Bank stocks.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS $2,000,000,000 HOME LOAN BILL

Approved Measure Permits the Refinancing of Small Mortgages at a Lower Interest Rate.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—President Roosevelt today signed the bill providing for a $2,000,000,000 refinancing of small home mortgages to put them on a lower interest rate.

A loan of 80 per cent of the value of the homes, with $14,000 as the maximum, is provided. A three-year moratorium on interest payments is permitted. Loans for back taxes are allowed. If the holders of mortgages can not exchange them for Government paper, the law permits a cash loan to the home owner up to 40 per cent of the value of the mortgage and bearing six per cent interest.

Fifteen years is allowed for repayments.

His formal statement follows:

"In signing the 'home owners' act of 1933,' I feel that we have taken another important step toward the ending of deflation which was rapidly depriving many millions of farm and home owners from the title and equity to their property.

"The act extends the same principle of relief to home owners as we have already extended to farm owners. Furthermore, the act extends this relief not only to people who have borrowed money on their homes, but also to their mortgage creditors.

"It will, of course, take a little while to set up the machinery necessary to carry the principles of the act into effect. In the meantime, I appeal to mortgage creditors and all others who have claims against home owners, and ask them, until full opportunity has been given to make effective the refinancing provisions of the home mortgage act, that they abstain from bringing foreclosure proceedings and that they abstain from seeking to dispossess the home owners who are in debt to them.

"Co-operation between the officials of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, the mortgagor and the mortgagee during the next few months will make many foreclosures unnecessary and will do substantial justice to all parties concerned."

WOMAN PUTS UP FIGHT BUT TWO ROBBERS GET $40

Mrs. Laura A. White Beaten by Two Masked Men Who Invade Apartment at 5330 Delmar.

STRUCK IN THE FACE AS SHE OPENS DOOR

After 10-Minute Struggle She Gives Them Money, a $40 Brooch and Other Jewelry.

Mrs. Laura A. White was beaten and robbed last night by two masked young men who forced their way into her third-floor quarters at the Briar Court Apartments, 5330 Delmar boulevard.

Answering the doorbell at 8:45 o'clock, Mrs. White was struck in the face and knocked down by the robbers, one of whom had a revolver. "We're after your money and your jewelry!" she quoted them as saying.

"They tried to keep me on the floor," Mrs. White said, "and we must have fought for about 10 minutes. I bit their fingers and they hit me in the face and stuffed a handkerchief in my mouth. Finally I got free enough to tell them that if they let me up, I'd give them my money and all the jewelry I had."

She said she went with them to a bedroom and gave them $40 from her purse, a $40 brooch and minor articles of jewelry.

"They ordered me to give them 'the rest of the jewelry,'" Mrs. White said, "and threatened to lock me up in the closet or kill me. I told them I had given them everything I had, for I had put the rest of my jewelry in a safe deposit box yesterday. They cut the telephone wire, told me not to scream and ran out.

"I went to the window and called to some people on the lawn that I had been robbed, but the men got away in an automobile parked on the other side of Delmar."

Mrs. White said one robber wore a white linen suit and the other a dark blue suit. Both had handkerchiefs over the lower part of their faces, she told police.

Youth Identified as Robber Who Took Cigarettes.

After failing to find any money in the cash drawer at a chain grocery at 920 North Kingshighway at 7:30 a. m. today, an armed robber who had held up William Pickett, the manager, took a package of cigarettes and fled. Police in a radio car arrested a young man walking on the Hodiamont street car right-of-way near Kingshighway and Pickett identified him. He had a package of cigarettes from which several had been removed but was not armed. He denied he was the robber.

John Yawitz, druggist at 4272W Finney avenue, and six customers, four of whom were Negroes, were held up last night by a Negro robber who had eaten a dish of ice cream. The robber ordered them to the rear and escaped with $72 from the cash register, $30 of which belonged to an American Express Co. branch in the store.

Gottlieb H. Tubbesing, proprietor of a drug store at 1800 North Twenty-third street, was robbed of $15 by two men, one of whom was armed.

Elmer DeGlendele, manager of a chain grocery at 4200W Ashland avenue, was held up by an armed Negro who took $20 and five packages of cigarettes.

Hardin Parrish Held on Federal Charge; Deputies Catch Him After Wild Ride.

UNION, Mo., June 13.—Hardin Parrish, 19 years old, a recent resident of Union who says he formerly lived in St. Louis, was turned over to Federal authorities yesterday, charged with stealing a mail car.

Parrish stole an automobile from Louis B. Klepper of Union, wrecked it and with a stolen revolver forced a farmer to drive him east on United States Highway 66. At Parrish's order, the farmer crowded the automobile of Harry Rector, rural mail driver, off the highway, and Parrish forced Rector to drive him to Pacific and then to Catawissa. There Rector was forced out of the car and Parrish continued alone. Within a short distance, he wrecked the mail car and was caught by a Deputy Sheriff whom Rector had sent in pursuit.

WAGE SCALE MEASURE PASSED BY ALDERMEN

Provides Prevailing Rate Shall Be Paid on All Public Work.

The Board of Aldermen today passed a bill providing that not less than the prevailing rates of wages be paid on public work, whether performed by the city or under contract.

The measure, which provides also for an eight-hour day, specifies that the scales be based on the standardization bill fixing wages of city employes, which in the case of construction work is accepted as meaning the union scale. The bill had the support of labor unions, representatives of which recently presented resolutions urging that it be adopted. A similar bill was repealed after six months' trial during the Kiel administration, when the Chamber of Commerce and other business organizations protested.

Alderman Golden, Democrat, vice-president of the Board of Aldermen, who introduced the bill, withdrew an amendment which gave preference to ex-service men with dependents, prohibited the use of workhouse prisoners in competition with other labor and specified that hand methods be used in place of machinery where practicable. Golden explained that he intended to group these provisions under a separate bill to be introduced next autumn.

Alderman Terry, Democrat, Twenty-fifth Ward, cast the only dissenting vote against the bill. He said he had not had time to study its effect on the city in letting contracts, and, therefore, declined to vote in the affirmative.

The Aldermen repealed an ordinance granting the Robertson Airplane Service Co., a 24-year lease on commercial hangars and gasoline storage facilities at Lambert-St. Louis Field, the municipal airport. The repealer was introduced on recommendation of the Municipal Airport Commission, which plans to lease the facilities separately and for a shorter period.

Sixty-four fire department watchmen will be paid $115 a month net under a bill passed. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment recently cut the pay of watchmen from $140, net, to $90. The Firemen's Union protested and had introduced a bill restoring the former salary scale, but compromised at $115 following a conference with the Board of Estimate.

A public hearing will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow before the Aldermanic Ways and Means Committee on a bill proposing to increase the city gasoline tax from ½ to 1½ cents a gallon. The present half-cent tax on a gallon of gasoline goes into general revenue. The extra cent would go to pay 85 per cent of street widenings. The additional tax would amount to about $916,000 a year.

WANTON KILLING OF TWO ADMITTED BY ROBBER PAIR

Men Caught When Washing Knives in River Confess Murder of Farmer and Negro.

Two Negroes arrested early yesterday as they were washing bloody knives in the Mississippi River at the foot of Poplar street have signed confessions, police said, that they were the killers of Martin Mladunicky, St. Louis County truck farmer, and William Walker, Negro.

The accused men are John Asberoy, 23 years old, an ex-convict, who says he lives at 1127 North Sixth street, and Anderson Allen, 21, who lives in a shack at the foot of Biddle street.

Asberoy and Allen were named as the murderers in Coroner's verdicts returned today. Assistant Circuit Attorney Lennon said he would present the case to the grand jury this afternoon.

Their confessions tell of a night spent in drinking alcohol and water; of the wanton stabbing of Mladunicky after they had searched him on Carr street near Broadway and found no money, and of the knifing, a half hour later, of Walker, homeless and penniless Negro, whom they held up at the foot of Poplar street.

Asberoy's confession states that he stabbed Mladunicky while Allen held him, and that Allen stabbed Walker while Asberoy held him. Allen's confession differs materially only in the statement that Asberoy knifed both victims.

Asberoy's confession tells of spending the early part of Sunday evening in Allen's shack, drinking with Allen, whom he refers to as "Fat." Allen was berating an employe of Father Dempsey's Hotel who had accused him of stealing clothing there.

"I'm going up there and kill that fellow," Asberoy quotes Allen as saying. "You come on with me." They met their prospective victim at Seventh and Carr streets, Asberoy says, but Father Dempsey's employe succeeded in pacifying Allen, and the two went to a saloon to replenish their supply of alcohol. On the way back to Allen's shack they passed Mladunicky.

"Fat turned around and caught him by the neck," Asberoy's confession continues, "and I searched him but he didn't have nothing. Then Fat said, 'I'm going to turn him loose, you'd better cut him.' So I slashed him and we ran back to Fat's place."

Asberoy's shirt was smeared with blood and he changed it at Allen's home. Police are holding the bloody shirt. The two then rode a freight train on the river front for a few blocks, got off and walked toward Poplar street. They attempted to rob a Negro there, the confessions add, but he ran away. Then they dragged Walker from a truck where he was sleeping and killed him when they found he had no money.

SIX KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO AT CENTRALIA, ILL.

Three Men and Three Women Lose Lives, Including Mrs. Beulah Cavanaugh of St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.

CENTRALIA, Ill., June 13.—Six persons were killed when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by Illinois Central passenger train No. 4 at 4:20 a. m. today at the Thirteenth street crossing here.

The dead: Samuel Maynor, 33 years old; Leon Gaetti, 23; Harry George, 24; Mrs. Genevieve Dallas, about 35; Mrs. Blanch Roillson, about 35, all of Centralia, and Mrs. Beulah Cavanaugh of St. Louis.

Five of the victims were killed outright, while George died in a hospital shortly before noon today. Physicians said deaths of the victims resulted from fractured skulls or broken necks. Their bodies also were cut and bruised.

The victims with the exception of George were strewn along the rigat of way. George was carried along about two blocks on the pilot of the engine from which he was removed in an unconscious condition by the train crew.

Occupants of the small coupe with rumble seat were on the way east across the tracks traveling at a high rate of speed, witnesses said, when the train struck the center of the machine and dragged it along for about 600 feet.

The place where the members of the party had spent the evening was not immediately learned, but the supposition was that they were returning to their homes.

THREE DROWNED, GIRL SAVED WHEN BOAT OVERTURNS

and the wash drifted us closer in to the shore. Then another tug passed and the rough water began to carry us closer and closer to a barge tied up to the shore.

"We raised up in the boat to try to reduce the shock with our hands when it struck the barge. As we got alongside we saw that the deck of the barge projected out beyond the hull. As we started under it we put our hands against the edge and the motorboat turned over and sank.

Occupants Thrown Into Water.

"We were thrown into the water, screaming. I was washed under the barge. I came up several times against the hull. I held my breath and swam as fast as I could. After I had hit the hull the third or fourth time I gave up hope of coming out into open water, but just then I found myself out in the river below the barge.

"I drifted downstream swimming and screaming for help. After about 20 minutes I came to another barge. I swam alongside it, exhausted, and grabbed some sort of a rope. Two men came out on deck and one of them reached out to me with a long plank. I got hold of it, and the other pulled me up into the barge."

Miss Potthoff was a novice swimmer, Rattina and Miss Sciaroni both unable to swim, Miss Rattini said. Their boat capsized at the foot of Branch street and she was picked up by two men on the tug Tom Sawyer, moored at the foot of North Market street, seven blocks below the point where the motorboat capsized.

Pulled Aboard Barge by Pair.

Bernard Clark and Harold Harris were at work in the hull of the Tom Sawyer when they heard screams and ran out on deck.

"We saw two persons float past the barge out of reach," Clark told policemen. "They were far out of reach and we had no line to throw to them because the barge is not yet equipped for river service. A moment later a girl swam alongside, screaming, and we managed to get her out of the water after she had grabbed a tow-knee, a sort of buffer, and held on."

A half hour after the tragedy, Mrs. James J. Farrel, 1311 Clara avenue, sister of Miss Potthoff, chartered a motorboat and spent the rest of the night cruising on the river in the hope that some of the others might still be floating in their belts.

Miss Potthoff's Body Recovered.

This morning at 7 o'clock the body of Miss Potthoff was found at the foot of Chestnut street. The motorboat, partly submerged, was found at daybreak, wedged against a barge at the foot of Warren street.

The body of Miss Sciaroni was recovered at the foot of Lucas avenue this afternoon. There was a deep cut behind her left ear.

Miss Potthoff's parents are dead, and she resided with one of three sisters. She also is survived by two brothers. She formerly attended Yeatman and Central high schools.

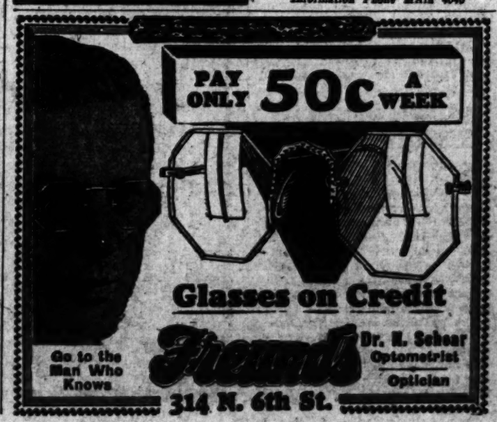

Miss Sciaroni was the daughter of Earnest Sciaroni, a waiter at Joe Garavelli's restaurant, who has two other children, a son and a daughter.

Tax liens for $4,111,726 were filed against the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. and an affiliated corporation in Federal Court yesterday by Louis J. Becker, Collector of Internal Revenue.

The liens were on account of claims for additional corporation income taxes asserted against the Missouri Pacific by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for the years 1920, 1924, 1926, 1928, 1929 and 1930. The filing gave no details, but such claims for additional taxes usually result from examination of returns and corporation accounts by auditors of the income tax division. The liens were filed at the request of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington.

The Government also seeks to collect interest at 6 per cent for the time of alleged tax delinquency. The liens cover $3,906,199, assessed against the Missouri Pacific Railroad Corporation and $205,527 assessed against the Missouri Pacific Corporation in Nebraska.

The claims were filed in connection with the bankruptcy petition of the Missouri Pacific which contemplates a reorganization of the railroad under the amended bankruptcy law. The tax claims, if allowed, will take preference over other claims.

STREET CLEANING ECONOMIES SAVE $172,860 A YEAR

Greater Use of Machines Planned to Offset Reduction of Force From 407 Men to 173.

The city will save $172,860 a year through economies adopted at the recommendation of Joseph Fechter, efficiency engineer for the city, whereby employes of the street cleaning section have been reduced in number from 407 to 173, Mayor Dickmann announced yesterday. The economies mean the passing of the street cleaners familiarly known as "white wings."

The Mayor said that Director of Streets and Sewers McDevitt reported that the April payroll for the 407 men was $32,105, at the rate of $385,260 a year, whereas the reduced payroll was $17,700 a month, or $212,400 a year ago. Because the economies were not effective until last month the payroll this year, however, will be $245,667.

The savings were accomplished through reduction of laborers and chauffeurs and elimination of the "block men," or "white wings." Under Fechter's plan street cleaning is being done by mechanical equipment and follow-up crews. He reported that the section was overmanned and that sufficient use was not made of the mechanical equipment.

Fechter's report recommended also that the city do its own horse shoeing instead of letting the work to contractors. Thus, he estimated the city would save $7181 annually.

The cost of the work for the fiscal year ended April 10, he said, was $20,561. This he estimated could be reduced to $9821 under his plan. The net saving then would be $7181, taking into account loss of the annual rental of $2640 to the city for its stable and blacksmith shop at Forest Park and Vandeventer avenues.

Most of the work done by contractors is on mules in the garbage department. Fechter said that about 50 horses in the Park Department might be shod by the city without additional overhead expense.

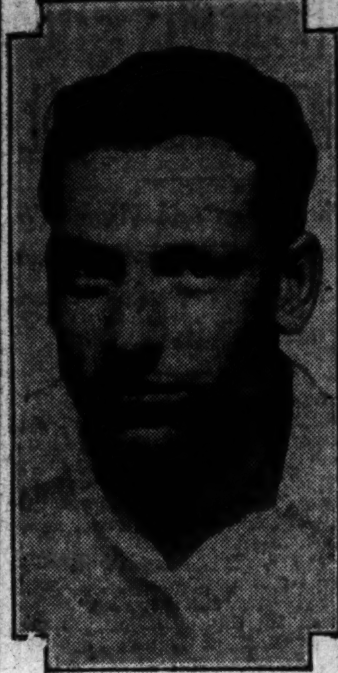

Mayor Dickmann said the plan probably would be adopted in full, increasing the total annual savings to $179,941.

MADISON HIGH SCHOOL BOY DROWNS IN CANAL

The funeral of James S. Mullen, 18-year-old high school student of Madison, who was drowned yesterday in a drainage canal at Eagle Park, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at Madison Methodist Church. Burial will take place in Sunset Hill Cemetery.

Mullen, a novice at swimming, had been practicing in the canal with a classmate, George Kawula. Yesterday morning he visited his mother, Mrs. James G. Mullen, ill of arthritis at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Granite City. On his way back he stopped at Kawula's home and they decided to go to the canal again.

"We had been paddling around a little while," Kawula related, "when I got tired and went to shore. Mullen said, 'Just once more,' and started wading toward deep water. I was dressing when I heard him yell and saw him floundering. I threw a wire to him but it slipped through his hands."

Kawula then ran to a farmer's house for aid. The farmer recovered the body by diving.

Mullen was to have been graduated next January. His father is an employe of the American Car & Foundry Co. He is survived also by a brother, Gerald, and a sister, Mrs. Marie Snelson.

Brown pleaded guilty a week ago to a first-degree murder charge of killing his bride of three months, last May 13, by choking and slugging her in his automobile on a country road near Bucklin, and then throwing her from his car near Columbia. Mrs. Brown died five days later in a Columbia hospital. Brown said he attacked his wife after learning she was an expectant mother.

Olive oil does wonders for your skin

—and it's olive oil that makes Palmolive green

WHEN the ancients sought protection for lovely skin, they found it in the natural oils of olive and palm. And in more than 3,000 years, nothing has ever been found to take their place.

It is these beauty oils that give to Palmolive Soap its blandness, its mild, gentle cleansing quality. No other fats go into Palmolive. Its rich lather searches the pores for impurities—and removes them thoroughly but in utter safety to delicate skin.

Palmolive soothes and stimulates, bringing to the skin that freshness, that natural bloom and radiance which makes a woman so appealing.

And it is now so inexpensive that it can be used liberally for bath as well as face . . . for the entire family.

The vial at the right shows the exact amount of olive oil we put into each cake

Over 20,000 experts advise this: Morning and evening: work a rich lather of Palmolive and warm water into the skin of face, throat and shoulders. Rinse—first with warm water, then with cold.

Winners of 90-Rubber Bridge Match

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

JONES AND GOLDMAN WIN BRIDGE CONTEST

Culbertson System Players Have High Score in 3-Team Tournament.

C. Drummond Jones, veteran bridge player, and his partner, I. D. Goldman, were winners of the three-cornered contract challenge match when the last of 90 rubbers was played last night at the Mark Twain Hotel.

The Jones-Goldman team, holders of the city title, amassed a plus score of 10,200 points, using the Culbertson system of bidding. Second were Edwin J. Speyer and Miss Lucille Platt, using a system of Speyer's devising, with 4900 points.

Fred Ingalls and Earl Ochs, playing the Sims system, finished third with a minus score of 15,100. Immediately after the last rubber, Speyer challenged the Jones-Goldman team to a match of 100 rubbers, which the winning team indicated would be accepted.

A tabulation of the score showed that the Speyer-Platt team had surpassed both opponents in the match, but had failed to beat the Ingalls-Ochs pair by as wide a margin as that made by Jones and Goldman. The Speyer-Platt score against Jones-Goldman showed they had a plus of 100, and were plus 4800 against Ingalls-Ochs.

The statistics showed that in rubbers the Jones-Goldman pair had won 35 and lost 25; Speyer-Platt won 27, lost 33; and Ingalls-Ochs won 28, lost 32.

Miss Platt bid and made the only two grand slams successful during the series, and also bid and made one small slam. Ochs bid and made five small slams, Speyer three, Goldman three and Ingalls two. Three grand slam and four small slam bids failed.

FLYERS COMPLETE PLANE TRIP FROM ST. LOUIS TO BOGOTA

J. Scott Bermuth and Colombian Make 2800-Mile Journey Partly Through Rain.

BOGOTA, Colombia, June 13.—J. Scott Bermuth and Ernesto Samper landed their two planes at Techo Airfield here last night, completing a 2800-mile trip from St. Louis, Mo.

The flyers made the last leg of their journey, from Cartagena, in four hours through a heavy rain. A large crowd was on hand to greet them.

Bermuth is sales representative for the Monocoupe Corporation, at Lambert-St. Louis Field. He and Samper, a Colombian, left St. Louis a week ago in two planes, which Samper plans to use in his flying school at Bogota. Bermuth flew to Colombia last year on a sales trip.

DETROIT PUBLISHER PURCHASES MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL

Sold for About $3,000,000; New Owner to Make Tennessee City His Home.

By the Associated Press.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 13.—James Hammond Jr., 41-year-old Detroit publisher, took charge of the Memphis Commercial Appeal and Evening Appeal as their owner today.

He formally announced purchase of the Memphis newspapers for about $3,000,000 last night and said he was severing connections with the Detroit Times. His family plans to move to Memphis.

Purchase of stock in the Memphis newspaper was made from the receivers of the Mississippi and Ontario Paper Co., and approved in Federal Court in Minneapolis yesterday. Hammond emphasized he was sole purchaser.

With the moving of Hammond to Memphis, the papers return to local ownership for the first time since May 17, 1927, when they were sold to Col. Luke Lea and Rogers Caldwell of Nashville, Tenn.

Hammond, a native of Kentucky, went East in 1922 as treasurer of Lord & Taylor. He was president of Gimbel Brothers.

After the Exposition closes the Mississippi will remain permanently on exhibition at the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry.

TWO MEN KILLED, M & O TRAIN RUNS INTO SECTION CAR

Sticking to their posts as a train bore down on them around a curve, Charles Gannon, a section foreman for the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, and William Offermann, one of his crew, were killed yesterday as they worked frantically to remove their section car from the rails to prevent derailing the train.

But the train, a fast northbound freight, hit the heavy motor-driven car three miles south of Columbia, Ill., as the two men, with their backs to the train, still were trying to pull it from the track. Four other members of the section party released their holds on the sides of the car and jumped to safety. The freight, which carried the wrecked car with it for a quarter of a mile, did not leave the rails.

Had the foreman's hat not blown off as the crew motored down the single track to a crossing where it was to cut weeds the men would have had even less time to escape the train.

But Peter Mathews, one of the crew, walked back 100 yards to the curve to get the hat as his companions remained on their car and a trailer loaded with tools.

As he picked it up he heard the approaching train, yelled a warning to the others, raced back towards them.

Jumping off, the men pulled the trailer from the track, then pulled desperately to remove the other car. The roar of the oncoming train grew louder. Just as it bore down on them, the four men leaped aside, but Gannon and Offermann, backs to the engine, were killed instantly.

Both resided at Columbia. Gannon, who was 58 years old and is survived by two grown daughters, had been in the railroad's employ for 10 years. He was a widower. His companion is survived by his widow and six children.

The accident occurred 38 miles south of East St. Louis.

LAST OF STOLEN BONDS SEIZED HERE ARE ACCOUNTED FOR

Checking $4500 in bonds—all that remained unaccounted for of $62,500 worth which detectives seized Saturday when they arrested three men subsequently accused of robbery—police have learned that they were stolen last winter and this spring in Kansas.

There were six bonds. Four were taken from residences and two from banks, one in Overbrook and one in Hill City. Of the remainder of the loot, $25,000 worth of Liberty bonds have been identified as the property of Rufus, Simon and Flora Mason of Rosebud, Mo., while $33,000—Wichita Board of Education securities—have been pronounced counterfeit.

The three men, Albert Holmes, former convict of Kansas City; Charles Klein and Tony Bettros, have been taken to Hermann, Mo., charged with the Mason robbery last March 13. When that charge is disposed of they will face three Federal warrants each: Uttering an altered Liberty bond; altering a Liberty bond and possession of a stolen army pistol. Each is punishable by five years in prison and $5000 fine.

On arriving at the barracks, the official Governor's salute of 19 guns was fired. A guard of honor met him at the gate and he was escorted through the five camps, where 10,000 young men are awaiting orders to go to national reforestation projects.

About 2000 are scheduled to leave the latter part of the week. Preparations are being made also for the enrollment of 1000 World War veterans from St. Louis.

The Governor will attend a dinner tonight at the Coronado Hotel given by St. Louis Jewry to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York.

BOY, 9, RUN OVER, KILLED BY FIRE TRUCK

Edward Gocal Struck by Pumper in Front of Home, 916 Madison St.

Edward, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Gocal, 916 Madison street, was killed yesterday afternoon when run over by a fire truck in front of his home.

The truck, a pumper of Engine Company No. 26, 2100 North Second street, was westbound in Madison street in response to an alarm for a rubbish fire at Fourteenth and Madison streets. Edward, who had been playing on the north sidewalk, ran into the street in front of the heavy apparatus. William Harloff, the driver, applied the brakes and swerved sharply. The side of the truck hit the boy, a rear wheel passing over his chest.

Firemen carried Edward to the sidewalk and one of them remained with him until an ambulance arrived. The pumper went on to the fire. The boy was pronounced dead at City Hospital, and the body taken to the morgue. Harloff furnished bond pending an inquest.

Edward was a fourth grade pupil at St. Casimir's Parochial School. Besides his parents, two brothers and two sisters survive.

JOAN LOWELL'S 3-YEAR CRUISE LASTS 58 DAYS

Back Home and Broke and in Debt for Her Passage From the Caribbean.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Joan Lowell, whose book, "Cradle of the Deep," was hailed as a lot of salt water taffy, is back home and broke.

The round-the-world cruise which she started April 2 in her trusty 48-foot schooner Black Hawk ended in disaster in Caribbean waters and the sea-faring Joan left her father looking for a lost lifeboat and caught a ride back home on the Colombian liner Pastores.

Arriving in a coat of tan, white ducks and a black suede jacket with three gold stripes, Joan told a harrowing tale of life on the briny deep and expressed the devout hope that somebody would bail her out of the Pastores, where the price of her passage is still a subject of concern to both Miss Lowell and the ship's owners.

Says She Will Try Again.

The prospective three-year round-the-world cruise lasted just 58 days, but Joan is going to try again, she says.

Here's what happened to the good ship Black Hawk after it sailed out of New York Harbor with Joan, her father, a publicity man, an unemployed fireman, an ex-Marine and Capt. Jack, the canine mascot:

"We had tough luck all the way. Just out of New York we ran into the storm that wrecked the Akron, and Coast Guard boats flagged us back. And it was rough weather all the way.

"Off San Salvador our engine broke down and we ran into a dead calm. I came on deck to take the wheel at 4 a. m. and found our water tank had sprung a leak and was dry as a bone.

"Sawyer (the ex-Marine) was thrown down an engine room hatch when the boat rocked suddenly and rammed an oil can spout through his foot. He got blood poisoning and both he and dad became delirious from lack of water in the four-day calm.

S O S for a Jug of Water.

"I flashed an S O S with lights to a Norwegian ship that passed the fourth night, but when the Captain found why I'd stopped him he ordered his men to throw me off. But I kept coming up the Jacob's ladder until they gave me a five-gallon can of water.

"Next day the calm lifted and we made San Salvador.

"I traded the natives all the clothes I had except what I have on for food and water. Then we headed for Kingston and we caught this bus."

Somebody staked her to a bet in the ship's pool and she won $18. She says:

"I've still got it, and that's my stake until the ship sails Thursday. I hope somebody bails me out."

Continue to Port-Au-Prince After Being Forced Down Short of Goal.

By the Associated Press.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, June 13.—Capt. J. Errol Boyd and two companions landed safely today in Port-Au-Prince from St. Marc, Haiti, where they were forced down last night after flying 2471 miles non-stop from New York.

Boyd, Robert G. Lyon, the co-pilot, and H. P. Davis, observer, were dirty and tired, for they had had little sleep since Saturday night.

"It was a hard trip with bad weather, rain and fog most of Sunday night," Boyd said. "We encountered head winds, sometimes 50 miles an hour, on Monday near Cuba, and there were tropical rainstorms.

"As we were gaining altitude to clear the mountains near St. Marc the engine quit and we had to make a forced landing in the mud flats."

Davis said Boyd made a wonderful landing at St. Marc, as an error of 25 feet would have resulted in the wrecking of the plane in a deep ditch. Had the engine quit 10 minutes earlier they would have come down in the ocean.

TELLS SPRINGFIELD, ILL., HOW ST. LOUIS BALANCED BUDGET

Mayor Dickmann Delivers Address While on Way to Realty Meeting in Chicago.

Mayor Dickmann delivered an extemporaneous address on how the St. Louis budget was balanced, before the Midday Luncheon Clubb at Springfield, Ill., today. He drove to Springfield this morning, accompanied by his brother, Otto J. Dickmann.

The Mayor planned to go to Chicago by motor this afternoon. Tomorrow morning he will deliver a speech at the opening of the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Until he became Mayor he was president of the Real Estate Exchange here. After a brief visit to the Century of Progress, he will return later in the week.

A trip of Dickmann and other city officials to Washington to seek Federal funds under the pending industrial control-public works bill has been postponed for a week. Word was received from Washington that officials were not ready to discuss grants because of the delay in passage of the bill in Congress.

We look toward the day when business prospers

T-bone steaks on a million dinner tables... new sheets for the bedroom . . . new chintzes for the living room . . . a million gasoline tanks freshly filled for week-end excursions in the family car . . .

When everyone has money for these things, business prospers in the Southwest. Telephone wires hum busily with voices. Installers are kept on the run by the demand for new telephones.

But let the nation tighten its belt and go without beef steak. Let it use frayed sheets, and turn the collars on last year's shirts . . .

During three years of declining business, the telephone company has found what happens when the nation economizes.

For when bales of cotton stand in idle rows in the gloom of Texas warehouses . . . when oil tank cars rust in endless strings on Oklahoma sidings . . . when Kansas wheat hits a low of 27 cents a bushel . . .

When these things happen, business stagnates in the Southwest!

The result is only too evident to telephone workers. The operator has seen it in empty "jacks" upon the switchboard . . . in long distance circuits over which few voices travel. The "plant" man has seen it in fewer "working pairs" of telephone wires. The business office has seen it in directories that, from issue to issue, grow leaner, and in the shrinking volume of orders for new telephones.

Three years of business stagnation have proven a heavy burden on this company. We have lost telephones by the thousands. We have watched the volume of long distance calls go down and down and down. Net revenues have declined to where, in spite of the most rigid economies, they do not pay the cost of the actual dollars that built the telephone system.

Many people realize these things. They know that declining telephone usage and declining telephone revenues go hand in hand.

The remedy sometimes suggested to us is this: "Lower the rates, and you will get enough new subscribers to make up for your losses."

But it is not that simple.

Our experience, gained over many years of telephone operation in good times and bad, proves definitely that lower rates would bring back few telephones.

Lower rates would not, for example, keep telephones in use in business houses that have closed their doors.

Lower rates would not keep a telephone working in a vacant cottage, whose tenants have gone to live with relatives. Lower rates would not keep a telephone in the home of a man who has no job and whose savings are gone.

Instead, they would only diminish our present revenue and cause our losses to become still greater. Telephone rates have been lowered in a few places and that has been the experience. It is also true that, in general, basic telephone rates throughout the Southwest have been for years among the lowest in the nation.

In these times, we feel that our big job is to keep service good. This we have done to the best of our ability. Long distance connections are made, in most cases, while you hold the line. Switchboards and central offices are manned by experienced employees. There has been no slackening in the effort to give the type of good, reliable telephone service our subscribers need and want.

We look hopefully toward the day when, in Texas harbors, cotton will again slide into the dark holds of waiting ships . . . when smoke again rolls from factory chimneys and the whistle calls a full day shift to work . . . "when the cattle on a thousand hills begin to look like money" . . . and when the wool and wheat, the hogs and corn, the vegetables and fruits of the Southwest will again move in steady streams to markets and consumers that have been too long without them.

And when, incidentally, the telephone lines of this vast area will once more hum with the torrent of words and messages essential to reawakened business. Then, as now, we will strive to furnish the best possible telephone service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety.

DRUGSTORE ROBBER GETS 5 YEARS ON GUILTY PLEA

Ernest McKinney Also Was Charged With Attempted Holdup; Year for Second Man.

Ernest McKinney, 21 years old, 2800 South Eighteenth street, was sentenced to five years in the Algoa Reformatory by Circuit Judge Landwehr when he pleaded guilty yesterday of robbery and attempted robbery.

The robbery charge was based on a holdup May 2, 1932, at a drug store at 2869 South Jefferson avenue, where Mrs. Grace Bennett, wife of the proprietor, was robbed of $5. The attempted robbery occurred at the home of Mrs. Rose Daniels, 1514 South Seventh street, last April 1 when a robber tried to get the money she had just received by cashing her husband's veteran's check. Mrs. Daniels and a visitor frightened the holdup man away by screaming.

Marshall Cotton, 27-year-old insurance collector, who McKinney said gave him the signal to enter the drug store and also told of cashing the check for Mrs. Daniels, pleaded guilty of two minor charges and was sentenced to a year in the Workhouse. Arrest of McKinney and Cotton was made after Mrs. Daniels recognized Cotton as the man who looked in the window during the holdup.

ESCAPED SANITARIUM PATIENT TRIES TO END LIFE IN DENVER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, Colo., June 13.—Jack de la Casa, St. Louis ex-convict, who is being held here on robbery charges, attempted twice to kill himself Sunday. He cut his wrist with a sharpened belt buckle, and while being treated in the police surgeon's office, rushed to a medicine cabinet and grabbed a vial of poison. Later he beat his head on the floor of his cell, but was overpowered.

Authorities have not decided whether to try him for a series of holdups here or to return him to St. Louis where, as leader of a party of six men, he escaped from the City Sanitarium May 21.

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

This week Friday the Ford Motor Company completes 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit——which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share——everyone must get it for himself——and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive——their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old Company of ours.

RECEIVERSHIP INQUIRY IS ORDERED BY HOUSE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Broad powers to investigate the appointment of receivers in the administration of bankruptcy estates and equity receiverships was authorized by the House yesterday.

A resolution directing the House Judiciary Committee to make such inquiries as in its judgment are justified was adopted by a 125 to 29 vote despite Republican opposition. Minority objections had blocked consideration of the resolution Saturday in the face of expected adjournment that night.

Introduced by Representative Celler (Dem.), of New York, the resolution provides that the committee investigate "the selection of receivers and trustees, and the selection and appointment of counsel and assistants to such receivers and trustees, referees, custodians, auctioneers, appraisers, accountants and other aids to the court in the administration of bankruptcy estates and equity receiverships." It provides authority also for investigation of "all other questions in relation thereto that would aid Congress in any necessary remedial legislation."

Celler and other proponents declared there was a need of an inquiry into receivership proceedings in New York, Illinois, California and elsewhere.

Hancock (Rep.), New York, leading the opposition, termed the legislation useless and harmful as jeopardizing public confidence in the courts "which is particularly undesirable at this time."

The Judiciary Committee also has been directed to investigate the official conduct of Federal Judges James A. Lowell of Massachusetts, and Halsted L. Ritter of Florida and reports its findings.

CATHOLICS READY TO COMPLY WITH VERA CRUZ CHURCH LAW

Bishop Submits List of Priests, Asks That Places of Worship Be Opened.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, June 13.—Catholic Church compliance with the restrictive clerical law of Vera Cruz, now two years old, was announced last night by Bishop Rafael Guizar Valencia of Vera Cruz.

He requested Secretary of Interior Vasconcellos for permission to reopen the hundreds of churches in the State, which have been closed since the law went into effect. The church had refused to recognize the law.

The Bishop submitted the list of 13 priests permitted to officiate in the churches under the law which permits one priest for each 100,000 residents. He requested that all other churches be opened to permit the faithful to use them in the absence of priests.

ST. CLAIR TAX GRAFT INQUIRY ADJOURNED UNTIL JUNE 28

Grand Jury Plans to Continue Investigation Despite Refusal of Appropriation.

The St. Clair County special grand jury, investigating the tax graft scandal in which six already have been indicted, voted yesterday to adjourn until June 28, when the inquiry will be resumed.

A special resolution for continuance of the inquiry was passed by the grand jury, it was announced, after the County Board of Supervisors, also meeting yesterday, had refused to appropriate $5000 to finance the investigation. The resolution for the appropriation, introduced by Calvin Johnson of Belleville, was tabled by a vote of 25 to 18, although it also carried an indorsement of the proposition that the investigation should be carried to completion.

When the grand jury reconvenes Comptroller Nolte of St. Louis will be one of the witnesses. He will be questioned about the $1,000,000 increase in the valuation of the East Side approaches of the Municipal Bridge in the 1931 assessment.

JAPANESE SPINNERS BOYCOTT RAW COTTON FROM INDIA

Decision Is in Retaliation Against Recent Increase in Duties by That Dominion.

This action was in retaliation against a recent 50 per cent increase in duties levied by India against non-British cotton cloths.

It follows a statement by a Foreign Office spokesman that the Japanese Government was considering methods of effectively checking "the British Empire's aggressive tariff and general commercial policies against Japan."

It has been predicted that as a result of the differences between Japan and India raw cotton from the United States would replace Indian goods in the Japanese market.

Newspapers have reflected anti-British feeling among Japanese industrial and commercial interests. The Japanese fear the tariff increase in India will kill the textile trade with that dominion.

20 ANTI-WAR STUDENTS FIRED

Action Taken After College of New York Disturbances.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Twenty students were expelled from the College of the City of New York today on the recommendation of a special committee formed to investigate recent anti-war disturbances. Eight other students were suspended until January, 1934, and three more were suspended indefinitely.

"The disciplinary action taken," said a statement announcing the expulsions and suspensions, "was in no way related to views of the students affected concerning military training or other controversial questions. The issue is whether college students shall be allowed to interfere with a stated college function."

FORMER EFFIE BAGNELL IS SUING FOR DIVORCE

In Action at Dallas She Charges Second Husband, J. Huey Hughes, With Cruelty.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DALLAS, Tex., June 13. — The suit of Mrs. Effie Bagnell Hughes of St. Louis to divorce J. Huey Hughes of Dallas is pending here.

In her petition, filed April 17, she alleges her husband was guilty of such cruel treatment and outrages as to render their married life intolerable. She asks restoration of her maiden name, Effie Adams Bagnell.

Mrs. Hughes, residing in University City, is one of the heirs of the $770,000 estate of her father, William Bagnell, capitalist and railroad builder, who died in 1926. She was married to Hughes, a widower, in California in 1920, several months after her divorce from William Stuart Culbertson of Louisville, Ky.

Her marriage to Culbertson in 1910 was a notable social event here. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Tuttle at the Church of the Holy Communion. At her debut her father gave her a $25,000 pearl necklace, and two years after her marriage he bought a Louisville residence for her and her husband as a Christmas gift.

EUGENE MEYER ANNOUNCES HE OWNS WASHINGTON POST

Former Head of Reserve Board Says It Will Be Independent Paper.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The Washington Post, long the property of the McLean family, now belongs to Eugene Meyer, who until a month ago was governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

Meyer announced his sole ownership last night after a District of Columbia Court ratified formally the auction sale of the property to a previously unidentified bidder for $825,000.

Meyer said he would improve the paper and operate it as an independent organ "devoted to the best interests of the people of Washington and vicinity." He emphasized that he bought the paper in his own behalf "without suggestion from or discussion with any person, group or organization."

This was taken in Washington to answer the rumor that the paper was to be a Republican organ.

Meyer inherited wealth and has continued to build up a great fortune. His legal home is at Mount Kisco, N. Y., but his actual principal residence long has been in Washington because of his continuing Federal service. He was born in California, where the family fortune was established in gold rush days. For 16 years he headed his own banking firm in New York.

Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, estranged wife of the former publisher of the Post, Edward B. McLean, tried to buy the paper for her sons, but was outbid, even though she sought to pawn the famous Hope diamond to get enough cash. Yesterday she announced she would start a new paper, the Enquirer, for the boys to publish in the capital.

CATHOLIC HOSPITALS GROUP MEETING HERE

Father Schwitalla Delivers Address as President of the Association.

The cost of medical care, the necessity of maintaining the small rural hospitals, the increasing problem of the indigent patient, and the Catholic position on birth control were discussed by the Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, S. J., in his annual address as president to the Catholic Hospital Association, which formerly opened its convention today at St. Louis University Gymnasium.

OOther addresses were made by Mayor Dickmann, the Rev. Robert S. Johnston, S. J., president of St. Louis University; and Dr. Hugh M. Neilson, vice-dean of St. Louis University Medical School, representing the St. Louis Medical Society.

Effects of the Depression.

Father Schwitalla reviewed the effects of the depression on the more than 800 Catholic hospitals, which the association represents, and said that the staffs had taken opportunity of the lull in activities to make internal improvements. He attacked the theory that all indigent patients were the wards of the State. "Turn them all over to the State," he said, "and much of our superior social work becomes meaningless and useless."

On birth control, Father Schwitalla restated the Catholic position. "It is high time," he added, "for someone to issuea call on the dangers to health of protracted and persistent birth control. It is only in rare instances that personal conduct necessary for the practice of birth control can be indulged in without a serious menace to the individual's health, independent entirely of his violation of the moral code."

Departmental meetings on laboratory and X-ray service, dietetics, and physical and occupational therapy were held. In the meeting on dietetics, Dr. Philip C. Jeans, professor of pediatrics at the University of Iowa, attackeu false food advertising and told of the work of the American Medical Association in the interest of truthful advertising.

Place of Advertising.

"Advertising is proper and necessary," he said, "but it should not be exclusively in the interest of the manufaccurer. Advertising has sales value only as long as the public has faith in the claims made. Through lack of faith advertising would ultimately destroy itself.

"Much of the current food advertising is incorrect and misleading. For the purpose of selfish gain, some of it is intentionally false. That oranges grown in certain regions will prevent colds and influenza is scarcely credible; that fresh yeast will accomplish all the things claimed for it also taxes our credulity; certain liquid food drinks are credited with the property of putting us to sleep at night and reviving us in the morning.

"Self-medication is not considered to be in the best interest of personal or public welfare, and consequently is to be discouraged. Discussion of disease on a food label or on advertising may be expected ot lead to self-medication. For this reason the committee has ruled that disease names must not appear either on the label or in nonprofessional advertising.

Health Claims for Food.

"Health claims for foods must be viewed with suspicion. 'Health foods' are non-existent. No food contains mysterious health elements which magically bestow health. All foods, both cheap and costly, contain just plain everyday materials. Coarse whole wheat flour and bread and coarse bran are specific examples of reputed health foods. They are, however, definitely harmful for many individuals and consequently must be used with caution."

Other speakers at the dietetics meeting were Sister M. Hilary, Mount Carmel Hospital, Columbus, O.; Sister M. Adolphus, Marymount College, Salina, Kan.; Sister Rose Beatrice and Una M. Crawford, dietitian of Santa Rosa Hospital, San Antonio, Tex.

Sister M. Philonilla, director of the department of physical therapy at St. James Hospital, Chicago, discussed the advances which physical therapy had made in recent years, told of its use in the treatment of pneumonia and predicted that soon physical therapy will be as logical and routine as X-ray diagnosis.

Other speakers at the physical therapy meeting were Dr. John S. Coulter, associate professor of physical therapy at Northwestern University; Dr. Alex J. Kotkis, of Firmin Desloge Hospital; and Mae Van Camp, secretary of the Missouri Society for Occupational Therapy.

Tomorrow's sectional meetings will be given over to nursing service, out-patient service, and nursing education. Tomorrow afternoon there will be a tour of the city and a visit to St. Stanislaus Seminary at Florissant.

"THIEVES' KITCHEN" IN LONDON

Economic Parley Attacked in Communist Paper's Poster.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 13. — Newsboys selling the Daily Worker, a Communist organ, appeared outside the World Economic Conference building today bearing big advertising posters which read: "King Opens Thieves' Kitchen."

The paper's account of the conference was more mild than the poster, although Prime Minister MacDonald was condemned on the ground that he had taken the stand that only "capitalist" solutions of the crisis were possible.

SOCCER PLAYERS MUST REGISTER AT 10 CENTS EACH

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 13.—The United States Football Association, ruling body of soccer, today adopted a proposal to charge a 10-cent registration fee for each player.

The proposal, made by President Elmer Schroder of Philadelphia, was accepted unanimously after discussion. It will affect about 50,000 players of the game. It also was decided that the national body, rather than state associations, should collect the fees.

A motion to increase the application fee for clubs was tabled.

Unless the Cleveland club can better the personnel of its team in needed spots, the name of the manager will mean nothing. Peckinpaugh or Johnson—neither can lift mediocrity into a pennant contender.

Johnson Failed Once.

JOHNSON himself proved a disappointment as a manager. Even in the minor leagues, as leader of the Newark club, he was not so hot. Clark Griffith dropped him and signed Cronin, after a trial with the Washington team.

We don't know what was wrong with Peckinpaugh; but probably the Cleveland club owners were relying more on hope than cer-

MRS. MOODY, MRS. RYAN IN THIRD ROUND IN DOUBLES MEET ABROAD

By the Associated Press.

BECKENHAM, England, June 13.—Helen Wills Moody and Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan, tuning up their strokes for Wimbledon, today entered the third round of the women's doubles in the Kent tennis championships.

The American pair, defeated in the finals of the women's doubles at Wimbledon last year, eliminated the English combination of Mrs. Cayley and Mrs. M. J. Rodgers in straight sets, 6—2, 6—2.

Mrs. Moody said her strokes were working nicely, but that she needed more practice before beginning defense of her Wimbledon singles title and would enter the London championships at the Queens Club next week as a final tuneup.

"I'm feeling in good form," Mrs. Moody said, "but I need some more practice before Wimbledon. One tournament is hardly enough."

Ed Manley Named Coliseum Coach

Edwin J. Manley, swimming coach at Illinois University and formerly member of the old Missouri Athletic Club's championship water polo team, has been engaged to coach the swimmers at the Coliseum pool, which will open here Friday. Manley acted in a similar capacity in 1925, 1926 and 1927 and his swimmers won the municipal title each year.

Manley developed a strong swimming team at Illinois this year. Four of his men, one of them a St. Louisan, are being groomed for places on the 1936 Olympic swimming team.

The St. Louis boy, is Charles Flachman, a sophomore, and a specialist in the sprints. He has a record of 53 seconds for the 100 yards. Hines, Van Gunten and Brock are the three other swimmers who appear likely to make the Olympic grade.

VIRGINIA TO WITHDRAW FROM ALL CONFERENCES

By the Associated Press.

UNIVERSITY, Va., June 13. — Withdrawal of the University of Virginia from all athletic conferences and complete faculty control of athletics are advocated by Harry F. Flippin, president of the 1933 class of the university.

In a short speech to graduates and alumni, Flippin expressed the opinion that Virginia would "do well to free herself of all conferences ties" because "I believe Virginia has been severely handicapped" as a result of the school's strict enforcement of eligibility rules.

Flippin also urged strict observance of the "home and home" rule of scheduling sport contests.

Regarding faculty control of athletics, he said, "an adequate system of intramural athletics naturally leads to faculty control of all athletics, a condition to be desired and one now prevailing in most of our leading universities."

FLYING HOUR WINS AGAIN AT ODDS OF 1 TO 5

By the Associated Press.

BELMONT RACE TRACK, N. Y., June 13.—Mrs. W. M. Jeffords' filly, Flying Cloud, won her fourth straight purse in the Star Jasmine, a six-furlong dash over the main course which topped the program here today. The Galetian filly proved the shortest-priced winner of the local season, being held at 1 to 5. As in her past three outings, the fleet chestnut won in hollow fashion, scoring by five lengths under Jockey Johnny Gilbert.

W. R. Coe's Enactment was second, two lengths before W. L. Brann's Fair Crest, a 100 to 1 shot. The time was 1:13, made over a slow track.

It wasn't much of a contest, Flying Hour outclassing her field. Gilbert swung the filly into early command and the prohibitive favorite skimmed along with a long lead which never was threatened. Enactment took up the chase, but Flying Hour gave her backers no cause for apprehension.

MANY STARS ON BLOCK AS TRADING TIME LIMIT DRAWS NEAR

DEALS AMONG MAJOR LEAGUE CLUBS TABOO AFTER THURSDAY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 13. — Clubs which wish to make belated reinforcements in their ranks for the final pennant drive, must do so by midnight Thursday, the deadline for major league trading. Quite a few "feelers" have been sent out, and some of the proposed deals involve ranking stars of yesteryear.

Cleveland and the Phillies are reported to be open for an old-fashioned housecleaning. Walter Johnson wants to give Cleveland fans a new deal, while the financially embarrassed owners of the Phils seek cash.

Cleveland—Vosmuk, Hudlin, Burnett and Morgan.

Cubs—Babe Herman.

Red Sox—Bob Weiland.

Giants—Leslie.

Phillies—Everybody except Klein and Bartell.

Cleveland wants to snare Earl Combs from the Yankees, who aren't interested unless Earl Averill is included in the deal. Washington may try to get Hudlin. The Cubs and Dodgers are eager to grab Leslie. The Red Sox could use Burnett. Trade negotiations between Brooklyn and the Phils are boiling. The Dodgers want Hurst and Fullis.

Macy Explains Correct Way to Serve in Free Tennis Lesson

Swing Should Finish on Left Side of Body, Instead of on Right, as in Other Strokes in the Game, Professional Says.

FOLLOWING is the third of a series of articles on tennis by Ike Macy, local professional, who is conducting the free tennis lesson school, sponsored by the Post-Dispatch. The following article is on "serving" and was the subject of Mr. Macy's free lessons at Forest Park this afternoon:

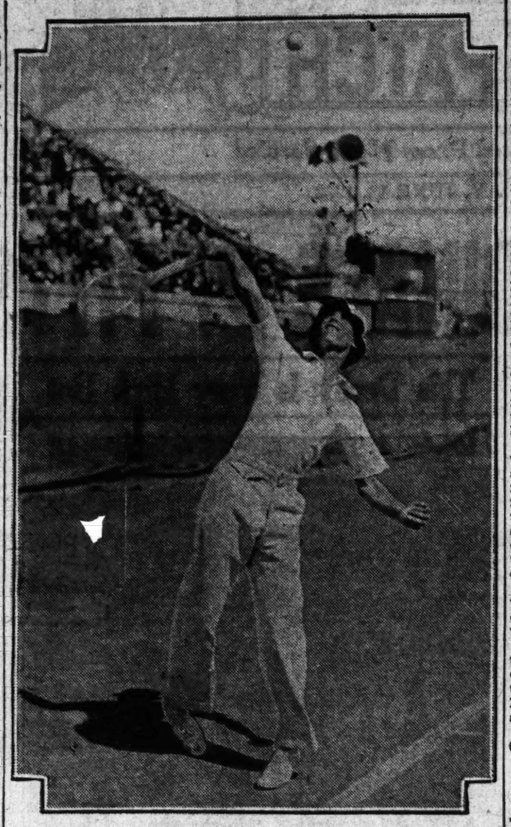

NO. 3—SERVICE.

By Ike Macy.

The service is the hardest shot in tennis to teach, and therefore the hardest to learn. Probably the reason for this is that in serving we have to take a very long swing, toss the ball at a certain time so that the racket and the ball meet at the same time above the head. Also, on the service, we slice the ball instead of hitting flatly into it, as in the drives. By slicing I mean rotating the racket around the outside of the ball in order to put spin on the sphere.

This spin is put on the ball not to fool your opponent, as one might think, but to give drop to the service so that it will light in the designated square. On your drives, you do not need this spin because you have a full court for the ball to drop in, which you do not have in the service.

In serving, grip the racket on the side similar to the backhand. Stand sideways to the net, as in the forearm. Hold the racket and the ball out in front of the body. Let the racket swing back by the leg until it is straight up in the air, then let it drop well behind the head, bending the elbow. Then swing up and forward from this position, hitting the ball when the arm and racket are stretched straight up in the air above the head. Then continue your swing as far out toward the net as possible, finishing on the left side of the body, instead of the right, as many people do. The reason for finishing around the left side, instead of the right, is that in serving it is very essential to bring the shoulder through with the swing. If you finish on the right, you have conflicting motion, for as the shoulder goes forward the arm and racket starts swinging back and your finish is thus ended with a jerk.

How to Toss the Ball.

In tossing the ball for the service, lift your arm for the toss as the arm and racket go back of the body and do not wait until the racket is back of the head for the swing forward. Toss the ball almost directly over the head, and at least as high as you can reach with the end of the racket. Hit the ball at its highest point or just as it starts down, and be sure that you toss the sphere high enough to permit a free arm swing. The average player's tosses are too low, causing his swing to be very much cramped, and not permitting the use of the leverage of a full arm swing. Also, the higher you contact the ball the better your angle for getting it in the court.

In serving, be sure to shift the weight well forward as you strike the ball, bringing the shoulder through and finishing by stepping in the court with the right foot. The freedom of your swing and the shifting of weight, together with your timing, control the speed of your service.

A player gets two chances on the serve. The first is the one which we generally hit the harder in trying for an ace. The second we hit with the same swing but generally put more spin on the ball in order to make it drop a little quicker, and lessen the chance of serving doubles.

The service is a very important shot, for every point in tennis is started with the service. If your service is strong, you generally put your opponent immediately on the defensive. If it is weak, he will probably put you on the defensive. Anyone can have a strong service, if he will but take the time to practice. If your service is weak do not depend entirely upon the practice you get while playing, but take a dozen or two balls out to the court and practice serving alone. There is no excuse for having a weak service, as you do not need anyone to practice with.

We have now covered the forearm and backhand drives and the service, which are the three fundamental shots of tennis. After learning these three shots, one should next learn the volley, which will be covered in the next article.

Good Crowd Attends O'Fallon Park Lesson.

Yesterday Coach Macy concluded a series of lessons on the backhand stroke, at O'Fallon Park, before another large group of spectators. Following the instruction period the tennis instructor paired with Frank Thompson, a leading junior player, for an exhibition set with William Bell of O'Fallon Park and Nick Kelsch of St. Louis Park.

The lesson on the serve will be repeated at Carondelet Park tennis courts tomorrow and at O'Fallon Park on Thursday, ending the series of free tennis instruction classes sponsored by the Post-Dispatch.

American League Fans Favor Simmons, Ruth and Averill as Outfield for All-Star Team

George Herman Ruth, the Sultan of Swat, is apparently certain of an outfield berth on the American League All-Star team for the "game of the century" with the all-stars of the National League, at Chicago, July 6.

Leaving the Babe off the team would have been a form of lese majeste or high treason, but in the early voting of fans of the nation it appeared that such was going to be the case. The early vote indicated that the fans thought Ruth was slowing up too much to be of any great help in the American's all-star outfield.

But the sentiment has changed, and now, according to figures received today from Chicago, Ruth is second only to Al Simmons of the White Sox in the popular vote among outfielders. Simmons has a total of 127,818 and Ruth 120,496. Earl Averill of the Indians is third among outfielders with 94,121. Simmons incidentally, has drawn the heaviest vote of any American League player.

Grove Leads the Pitchers.

Grove, Gomez and Wesley Ferrell is the way the American League pitching staff will shape up, according to present figures. Grove is far out in front with 120,374 votes. Gomez has 83,556 and Ferrell 49,581.

One of the interesting features of the American League all-star vote is that Jimmy Foxx, playing first base for the Athletics, has drawn a heavy vote for third base. He is second only to Jimmy Dykes at third, and has a good chance to pass him. All other candidates for third base are far down in the list.

The latest vote on American League players:

The Post-Dispatch is conducting the poll among fans in the St. Louis district. The ballot for your convenience is printed on this page. If you want to become eligible for cash awards, after you draw up your team write a letter not to exceed 150 words explaining which of your teams you think is the stronger. The sender of the best letter will receive $25, second best $15 and third best $10.

"Game of the Century" Ballot

Fill out with 11 all-star players for each team, including three pitchers. The players do NOT have to be in a certain batting order. Mail your selections to the "Game of the Century" Editor, care of the Post-Dispatch.

ARIZMENDI WINS FROM MILLER IN NON-TITLE BOUT

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 13.—Baby Arizmendi, youthful Mexican featherweight, won a 10-round victory over Freddie Miller, National Boxing Association champion of Cincinnati in a non-title bout here last night.

Six rounds were scored in Arizmendi's favor, two went to the champion and two were called even.

Miller took a slight advantage at the outset. He smeared the Mexican with straight rights to the head in the opening round. It was evident Arizmendi was bothered by his southpaw style. However, the Mexican quickly solved Miller's puzzling attack. From the third round on, Arizmendi had complete command of the situation.

The Mexican centered his attack on Miller's mid-section. He drove a short arm to Miller's body in rapid order at every opportunity. In the clinches, he splattered Miller's head with both rights and lefts.

Despite the fact that he had a winning margin going into the final round, Arizmendi took the offensive and rushed his opponent from one corner to another during the entire session. One of his blows, a right to the body, sent Miller back on his heels. The champion was on the receiving end for the remainder of the round.

A comparatively small crowd saw the fight, many fans expecting the champion to repeat a previous victory won over his Mexican rival in Los Angeles about three months ago.

J., June 13.—Fifteen members of the Princeton varsity and freshmen track teams were awarded Keene Fitzpatrick medals for outstanding performances by the University Athletic Association yesterday. At the same time 54 members of varsity track, la crosse and tennis teams were awarded letters.

The Keene Fitzpatrick medals are voted annually to members of the track squads who have shown the most faithful work and the greatest improvement. The medals are donated by the alumni as a tribute to the veteran track coach who retired last year.

A major letter was awarded to Paul W. S. Abt, East St. Louis, in track.

WRAY'S COLUMN

tainty in beheading him and signing Johnson.

From the standpoint of club dividends Johnson is likely to prove as much a failure as Peckinpaugh. And perhaps the reason for the change was less to help the club than to silence criticism.

President Alva Bradley tipped his hand when he said, according to interviewers, that "the public, not the club's owners, forced this change of managers."

In which case, we should come to attention, and salute Mr. Roger Peckinpaugh—just another scapegoat!

Wrestling vs. Boxing.

THE New York public's response to a "world's championship wrestling match," last night, was a turnout of 6000. Joe Savoldi and Jim Browning were exhibiting at Yankee Stadium and, although it was a Milk Fund benefit, the boys didn't have much more pulling power than an armless dentist.

Last Thursday, by way of contrast, there was a boxing bout in the same ring. It wasn't any sort of a championship at all. Just a couple of young fighters trying to get along in the heavyweight world, Baer and Schmeling. Yet they drew about 55,000 persons and receipts of nearly one-quarter of a million dollars.

Can it be that the New York sports followers have learned about wrestling at last? In due time the public everywhere probably will come to a realization that a show which sometimes ignores its own rules and at others insults the spectators' intelligence by the introduction of the rawest buffoonery, has no excuse for masquerading as a CONTEST.

* * *

Worth Investigating.

LITTLE has been heard of attempts to "fix" games, since Organized Baseball dealt so drastically with the accused men who figured in the world series of 1919.

Yesterday, however, developments in the betting world originating in Pittsburgh and involving other centers, were reported by Thomas Kearney, nationally known betting commissioner, of this city.

Only one game was involved—that between Philadelphia and Brooklyn, the Phillies winning, 7 to 4. Several thousands of dollars were offered, despite short odds, on the Phillies, although that club was at the time 100 percentage points lower in the standings than Brooklyn, and still rests in last place.

"I had planned to make Brooklyn the favorite, but backed off that right away," Kearney said today. "I found out soon that instead of the 11 to 10 which I first had posted, the money offered on the 'service' wire, was ready to go on Philadelphia at almost any price.

"As soon as I discovered that, I held out Philadelphia and so did not get 'stung.' Inquiries as to how much I would take on this particular game came from some wise people in Chicago, Memphis, Nashville, Kansas City, Omaha and even St. Louis, as well as from Pittsburgh.

* * *

Happens Annually.

"IT'S a strange situation and I can't explain it. On its face it seems as though these men had some definite assurance how the game was going to go. For two or three years I have had this happen, but only once or twice a season, and I'm getting curious about it."

Kearney was of the opinion that chance could not explain the concentration of wise betting money on this one obscure game. The attention of the league authorities has been directed to this situation.

* * *

It was Kearney who first disclosed the alarming betting operations during the scandal series of 1919. After the first game Kearney told of the strange certainty with which bettor were heavily backing the Cincinnati Reds to beat the White Sox to the late Otto Stifel, then an official of the Browns. Kearney made Stifel promise to wire Ban Johnson and warn him that big sums were being wagered on the Reds by persons of dubious standing and Stifel promised to notify Johnson. He forgot it.

GOLF STARS TO PRACTICE TODAY FOR STATE MEET

By W. J. McGoogan.

Entrants in the State amateur golf tournament which opens Wednesday at Westborough Country Club are privileged to practice there today in preparation for the event, and it is expected that many golfers will be out in force to learn all there is to learn about the course.

With a field of 200 already assured, the tournament promises to be one of the best in history. St. Louisans, of course, are entered in greater numbers than any other point, but Kansas City has a large representation. Springfield, Excelsior Springs, Mexico and Rolla also will have one or more trying for the State title.

Frank Staller, Kansas City, defending champion, is expected here today to warm up for the defense of his crown, while it is said that there is still a chance that Paul Jackson, another youthful sensation from the State's western metropolis, may yet enter.

Westborough's course has been whipped into shape for the event. The ninth green has been rebuilt and everything is in order. Of course, a little rain today or tonight would be appreciated.

Donald Anderson, president of the Missouri Golf Association, has announced that the prizes for the tournament will be somewhat unique these days, as instead of merchandise he has gone back to cups for the winners, and there will be plenty of them.

The tournament gets under way with an 18-hole qualifying round, with the 32 low scorers to qualify in the championship class. There also will be three minor classes of 32 each and the senior championship for golfers 50 years of age and older will also be decided.

Match play starts Thursday, when the first and second rounds are scheduled to be played. The third round and semi-finals are set for Friday, with the 36-hole final Saturday.

Several former champions have entered. They are Anderson, Elliott Whitbread, Dick Bockenkamp, Jim Manion and Chris Kenney, all of St. Louis.

FOUR TEAMS IN TIE FOR LEAD IN LEGION LEAGUE

Four teams were tied for the lead in the American Legion Baseball League as a result of games yesterday afternoon in Forest Park. Hatzfeld trounced the previously leading Anderson nine, 12 to 3; St. Louis won from Aubuchon-Dennison, 7-5, and Stockham defeated Goldman, 7-2. Only Goldman and Aubuchon were in the "second division."

Strengthened by a new pitcher, Pete Chulick, the Hatzfelds reduced the Andersons to a weak hitting and shaky fielding nine that failed in the tight places every time. Until the sixth inning, it was a close game, but then the Hatzfeld boys scored five runs after two men had been struck out and in the eighth added four more for an overwhelming victory.

Working against a three-run lead, the St. Louis outfit counted five times in the ninth to beat Aubuchon. Tichacek singled, and after Cross walked he scored on Pepmiller's hit. Stange walked to fill the bases, and then Dempsey hit safely to score Cross and Pepmiller. Stange and Dempsey counted later on Hanley's single.

Stockham's team scored its seven runs in two innings, the third and fourth. A home run by Brune featured the fourth inning attack, his hit pushing across Eccardt and Brune.

Thursday, Stockham will play St. Louis, Hatzfeld meets Aubuchon, and Anderson engages Goldman.

Eggs Not Always Chickens

THE Redbirds on a summer's day
Had one good ball game stowed away,
And safely in the bag.
For right up to the final frame
The Pirates were not in the game,
Though fighting for the flag.

But although trailing seven-one,
The fun had not as yet begun,
As we shall shortly see;
For Gabby's boys received a jolt
That struck them like a lightning bolt,
And on them put the bee.

The sudden storm did not abate
Until 10 runs had crossed the plate,
And put them four ahead.
For while the Cards still had their seven,
The Pirates' total was eleven,
So what more need be said.

Until the final man is out
The issue will remain in doubt,
When all is said and done.
When chasing the elusive flag
A game is never in the bag
Until it has been won.

That's So.

Toronto defeated the Stix for the championship of North America. But the big shots in soccer are down in South America. Any match in Argentina when several customers aren't shot is declared no-contest.

A crowd of 21,000 persons saw the big explosion at Sportsman's Park Sunday afternoon. What with the weather and one thing or another, it has all the earmarks of a premature Fourth of July celebration.

It was a big day for the second guessers, who had a field day after Bill Hallahan was taken out and the bombardment continued with added fury.

Tex Carleton, who pitched to only two men, was charged with the loss of the game, while Hallahan, who pitched eight innings, goes scot free. There ain't no justice in baseball.

Br'er Lizard turned the table on the spectators, who usually do the hissing.

We have with us this week the Florodora Sextette. It won't be the "original sextette" as the race has become practically extinct, but the management promises something just as good.

It took the heat wave to bring the fact to our notice that there is quite a sprinkling of children in the congested districts.

We wish to thank the Weatherman on behalf of the public for the nice little surprise he sprung on us early Monday morning. We take it the situation was getting too hot to handle.

"Has Floating Potato Patch."

He'll have a raft of potatoes when the water goes down.

If you ask us, the report that the planet Mars has no oxygen is a lot of hot air. Vas you dere, Sharley?

And even if it hasn't, who cares? As far as we can see Mars seems to be getting along pretty well with, or, without oxygen.

BILL LEGALIZING BOXING IN TEXAS IS SIGNED

AUSTIN, Tex., June 13. — Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson today approved a bill legalizing prize fights in Texas. The measure will become effective about Sept. 1.

Non-title bouts will be limited to 10 rounds and championship matches to 15 rounds.

NATIONAL TITLE ARCHERY EVENT HERE IN AUGUST

Alfred H. Wyman, president of the National Archery Association appointed a committee last night to formulate plans for the International team contest which is expected to be held here the latter part of August with teams representing the United States, Great Britain and possibly Poland and Canada competing for the V. P. Richards trophy which the archers hope will soon become as important as the Davis Cup in tennis.

On the committee appointed by Wyman are J. H. Curd, St. Louis, chairman; Dr. Paul Crouch, Boston; Roy I. Case, Racine, Wis.; Ralph Brandt, Tulsa; Capt. Cassius Styles, Berkeley, Cal.; Louis C. Smith, Boston, secretary of the National Association, and Wyman.

These men are to meet in St. Louis Aug. 7.

The British team is to be chosen in a tournament to be held in England, Aug. 5.

The national archery tournament is to be held here Aug. 7-11 on the polo field in Forest Park and it is expected that 200 or more archers from all over the country and other countries will compete.

At a meeting at Hotel Chase last night, the Mound City District Archers' Association decided to ask for representation on the Municipal Athletic Board.

Have you ever happened to wonder why "Toasting" is so important to Lucky Strikes? It's really on account of you. For "Toasting" plays a bigger part than you might think in making Luckies so mild and fragrant and pure. Remember, your cigarette comes in rather close personal contact with you, and if it weren't for "Toasting's" purifying heat, even Lucky Strike's choice tobaccos could scarcely be as mild, so pure. So you see what a big part "Toasting" has in making "Luckies Please!"

GANGSTER URBAN HELD IN ROBBERY OF ILLINOIS BANK

Watchman Identifies Him in Deposit Box Burglary Similar to Grand-National Theft.

Wincel Urban, who was accused of participation in the Grand National Bank $865,000 safe deposit robbery of May 25, 1930, and who is now under sentence of imprisonment in Iowa on a conviction of possessing burglar tools, was identified today at Police Headquarters, as one of the burglars who robbed the safe deposit vaults of the Argo State Bank at Summit, Ill., a Chicago suburb, March 21 last.

A night watchman of the Argo Bank, who was held up by the robbers, was the witness who identified Urban, according to police officials here. In the Argo Bank robbery, which was similar, on a smaller scale, to that of the Grand National, $2500 cash, $1900 Liberty bonds and $8324 postage stamps were stolen.

A private detective agency, employed by the Argo Bank, obtained the clews which caused the request for Urban's arrest here. City detectives, accompanied by county deputy sheriffs, found Urban in Clayton. At headquarters, he gave his age as 26 and his address as Clayton.

When Urban was arrested in the Grand Bank case, 14 months after the robbery, a diamond was found in his possession which the police believed to be one stolen from the bank's vaults. It was in a different setting from the stolen diamond, but the State sought to show, in its case against Urban, that it was the same diamond.

Circuit Judge Bader, last January, held that because of the time which had elapsed since the robbery, evidence as to Urban's possession of the diamond would not be admissible. This left the State with one witness, a passerby, who identified Urban as the man he saw coming out of an alley behind the bank, carrying a suitcase, at the time of the robberry. This witness' credibility was attacked. Judge Bader ordered a verdict of acquittal for Urban.

Urban and three other St. Louis gangsters, John Lugar, also a suspect in the Grand National case; Edward Willhite and William Engler, were caught in the act of attempting to break into the Capital City State Bank of Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 12, 1931. They were tried in Des Moines on a charge of attempted burglary, and were acquitted by a directed verdict, but all four were re-arraigned on the charge of possessing burglar tools. All were convicted and received the maximum sentence of 15 years each. Urban appealed from his conviction and was released on $12,000 appeal bond, while the three others went to the penitentiary at Fort Madison. It is expected that he will resist extradition to Illinois on the Argo Bank robbery charge.

BOARD SEEKS $52,000 TO MAKE REPAIRS TO CITY PROPERTIES

Damage to River Des Peres Channel and Other Points Caused by Rain.

The Board of Public Service today recommended passage of ordinances appropriating $52,000 to repair damage caused by the heavy rains during the spring.

One bill provides for $20,000, to be taken from Park Department and bond issue funds, to make repairs on Calvary avenue and in Busche Park necessitated by earth slides. The repairs and improvements would include drainage, grading, sodding and construction of a 500-foot retaining wall.

Damage caused by earth slides at nine points along the River Des Peres channel require an expenditure of $32,000. City engineers said the percentage of slides was small in comparison with the extent of the River Des Peres project.

Other ordinances recommended would appropriate $30,000 or completely trapped sewer inlets where new inlets are required, and $20,140 for paving Fourteenth street, between Market street and Clark avenue, where the grade must be raised to conform with the Municipal Plaza ground level.

MAN FATALLY HURT THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN AUTO VICTIM

Police Surmise That Driver Fled After Car Hit John T. Arnold.

A Coroner's open verdict was returned today in the death of John T. Arnold, 81 years old, who was found fatally injured on a roadway at Moline Creek, which is near the northern city limits and about seven miles from the Arnold home, Saturday. Policemen expressed the opinion that he probably was struck by an automobile, the driver of which fled.

Arnold left his home, 4956 Rosalie street, Friday for a walk. At 7:30 a. m. Saturday he was found on the roadway beneath the Burlington Railroad bridge by William Colbert, section foreman. When Colbert asked him how he had been injured, Arnold replied, "I did not see it coming." He died Saturday night at City Hospital without being able to tell what hit him. An autopsy showed that he had suffered fractures of the ribs and left arm and a head injury.

Mrs. Clara Miller, 9200 North Levee, reported that at about 8:30 o'clock Friday night she heard an outcry from the direction of Moline Creek, but, when the cry was not repeated, she did not investigate. Arnold's cane was picked up several hundred feet from where he was found.

3 MEN KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Trees Uprooted, Streets Flooded in Huntington (W. Va.) Area.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., June 13.—Three men were killed by lightning during a storm that swept the Huntington area, uprooting trees, flooding streets and disrupting electric light and power service last night.

Albert Newman and Earl Aikens sought shelter under a tree near Ironton, O., and were killed by lightning that shattered the tree. Across the river near Grayson, Ky., Hubbard Roy Damerson, 19 years old, sought refuge from the driving rain in a pumping station near his home. Lightning tore through the building, killing him.

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 13.—Diplomas were presented to 346 members of the class of 1933 at the United States Military Academy here today by Secretary of War George H. Dern and an address was delivered to the graduating class by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff.

The first cadet to receive his diploma was Kenneth E. Fields of Elkhart, Ind., who not only stood first in his class academically, but was first Captain and regimental commander of the corps and winner of seven out of the nine awards for military and academic efficiency.

The corps of cadets was formed on the parade ground where the commandant read the order appointing the new cadet officers.

Senior appointments included: Captains—Harvey J. Jablonsky, Clayton, Mo.; and William S. Stone, St. Louis.

DON'T GAMBLE... BE SAFE!
—with this 3-Times Safer Tire
Amazing new invention eliminates the cause of blow-outs

"I couldn't help it. I was driving along . . . doing 50 to 60 . . . and everything seemed all right. Then suddenly—without any warning whatever—my right front tire went BANG! I couldn't steer . . . I couldn't stop . . . And a terrible drag pulled my car off the road."

Has this ever happened to you? It could. Investigations show that the chances are better than even you'll have a blow-out some day. When . . . nobody knows. But right now . . . in summer weather . . . blow-outs are most likely to happen!

What causes blow-outs?

Today's high speeds generate terrific heat inside the tire. Rubber and fabric separate. A blister forms . . . inside . . . where you can't see it . . . and GROWS . . . bigger and bigger until . . . BANG! A blow-out. And your car may careen through a fence or into oncoming traffic.

But now Goodrich has perfected the amazing Life-Saver Golden Ply. This invention resists intense heat. Rubber and fabric don't separate. Thus, blisters don't form. Blow-outs are prevented by eliminating their cause.

At gruelling speeds on the world's fastest track the new Goodrich Safety Silvertown Tire lasted 3 times as long as first quality tires that did not have this feature. These Silvertowns never blew. They were run till the tread was gone—but the Life-Saver Golden Ply refused to give.

Safest non-skid tread

The tread, too, is safer from skidding. Its squeegee drying action gives your car extra road-grip and reduces danger of skidding to a minimum.

Remember, Goodrich Safety Silvertowns cost not a single penny more than standard tires. So why take chances? That blister—that blow-out in the making—may be in your tires right now! Put a set of these new Silvertowns on your car now and have real protection between you and the road. You owe it to your family and yourself.

Important: The New Goodrich Safety Silvertowns, giving you protection from blow-outs at high speeds, are stock tires and should not be confused with specially-constructed racing tires built to last only a few hundred miles.

DEFENSE WITNESS IN MITCHELL TRIAL HAS HEART ATTACK

NATIONAL CITY CO. OFFICER ON STAND

Says It Was Agreed in Meeting With Tax Expert That Special Fund Was Not Taxable.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Joseph P. Reid of Chicago, brother of Mrs. Charles E. Mitchell and defense witness in the trial of her husband on charges of Federal income tax evasion, was seized with a heart attack last night and was unable to return to the witness stand when court convened today.

Max D. Steuer, Mitchell's counsel, told Judge W. Goddard, "Mr. Rend called at my residence at 8 o'clock last night. At 8:30 he was seized with a heart attack. We called a specialist, who worked over him an hour and a half. He was finally able to return to his hotel, in care of a nurse. I was told this morning his condition is such that it will be impossible to tell for the time being what may develop."

George Z. Medalie, United States Attorney, agreed that Rend could be called later. Rend, on the stand only about five minutes yesterday, testified he was a "man of means" and Steuer told the court and jury that he intended to prove that Mrs. Mitchell had at her disposal the resources of her brother, had she been called on to pay cash for 18,300 shares of National City Bank stock she purchased from her husband in 1929.

Officer Takes Stand.

Harry E. Mayer, a vice-president of the National City Co., was called and testified about two conferences he and R. M. Byrns, executive vice-president of the National City Co., had with Harry W. Forbes, income tax expert, in 1929, as a result of which, he said, a decision was reached that $1,860,000 paid out to company officers in addition to salary in July, that year, was to be considered an advance, rather than income. This decision, he said, was reached because it was apparent the fund profits had been wiped out.

"At the first conference," Mayer said, "it was apparent that the fund was partly wiped out and part of the July payment would have to be considered in advance. At a later conference it developed the fund was completely wiped out and that therefore the whole sum was an advance."

Mayer said the company, in its income tax return, made no deduction for the $1,860,000 paid from the management fund to 11 of its officers.

The balance in the management fund after the $1,860,000 had been paid to company officers on July 1, 1929, Steuer brought out, was $1,161,897.95. Of this, $1,020,658.97 had been earned that year and $140,938.98 was a balance left over from 1928, he said. Between July 2 and the end of the year, he said, the $1,020,655.97 was wiped out.

Medalie on cross-examination brought out that at the end of 1927 $110,000 was left over. At the end of 1928, after disbursements were made, this had increased to more than $140,000.

Tells of Stock Purchase.

Hugh B. Baker, former president of the National City Co., followed Mayer to the stand. He said he represented the bond department of the National City Bank in Philadelphia for a year before coming to the company, in New York.

Baker told of the circumstances under which Mitchell on Oct. 29, 1929, bought 28,300 shares of Na-

Hugh B. Baker, former president of the National City Co., followed Mayer to the stand. He said he represented the bond department of the National City Bank in Philadelphia for a year before coming to the company, in New York.

Baker told of the circumstances under which Mitchell on Oct. 29, 1929, bought 28,300 shares of National City Bank stock—in order, as he said, to cushion the market. Later Mitchell, it is alleged, sold 18,300 shares of this stock to his wife in order to record an income tax loss.

Baker said the National City Co. had increased its holdings in National City Bank stock Oct. 28, 1929, that Mitchell was "very much shocked and disturbed" about it.

The next morning, Baker said, Mitchell told him he was going to use his own credit "to save the situation," and Baker said Mitchell gave him written orders how to handle his purchases of National City Bank stock during the opening part of the day.

"There was a very definite understanding," Baker said, "that I was to purchase some of that stock as soon as I could."

Baker testified that he did not include in his 1929 Federal income tax return the sum of $220,000 he received from the company management fund, July 1, that year.

Baker testified that not until the end of February, 1933, did he hear that Mitchell had sold his 18,300 shares of National City Bank stock to his wife.

Police Drive on Austrian Nazis; Many Jailed, Headquarters Closed

Chancellor Dollfuss Blames Hitlerites for Bombings, but Party Leaders Deny Causing Disorders.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, June 13.—Chancellor Dollfuss' Government has begun an intensive drive against National Socialists as a result of a series of bombings. Dollfuss attributes the explosions to Austrian followers of Germany's Austrian-born Chancellor Hitler.

All Nazi headquarters which were not closed yesterday were raided and shut by Federal police today, and hundreds of National Socialists, including several German citizens, were jailed. Among the latter was Theodore Habicht, a member of the German Reichstag, who has been active in advising the Hitler party here.

At Braunau the house where Hitler was born was raided and the door through which Adolf first toddled into the public street was padlocked. This action was taken not because Hitler was born there but because Braunau Nazis make the house their headquarters.

Over the week-end and yesterday a series of bombings resulted in the deaths of two persons and injuries to five others. Police announced they had not yet been able to lay hands on those responsible for the disorders.

Two new bomb explosions occurred early this morning. One wrecked a fixed-price store in the Favoritenstrasse. The other demolished a Boy Scout headquarters hut in a suburb. The latter was particularly puzzling, since the Boy Scout membership includes sons of Nazis as well as of members of other groups.

National Socialist leaders, meanwhile, issued a vigorous protest against the accusation that the bombings were perpetrated by Hitlerites. They appealed to party members "to remain cool and continue on a basis of equality."

On the other hand, Vice-Chancellor Franz Winkler made public a statement to the effect that events show that "the Austrian Hitler party under the influence of German Nazi circles had abandoned the party of equality and are adopting a method of illegal terrorism."

The Austrian Cabinet met this morning to decide on measures to be adopted to bring about order.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 13. — Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, was criticised in the Senate yesterday for declaring in a radio address Sunday night that forthcoming Home Loan bonds would be "as good as Government bonds."

Senator Fess (Rep.), Ohio, called Howe's statement "a dishonest allusion," while Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, said it was "misleading to the investing public."

Declaring the Government merely guaranteed the interest on the Home Loan bonds and not the principal, Vandenberg added: "It is in no sense an issue of Government bonds and they are by no means as good as Government bonds."

Saying Howe receives $1500 for each of his 15-minute broadcasts, and his reference to the Home Loan bonds took a minute to deliver, Fess said: "This is $100 worth of misinformation so far as he is concerned, but it might mean many millions of dollars of misinformation so far as the country is concerned."

SENATE'S BANKING INQUIRY TO BE RESUMED ON JUNE 26

Pecora Ready for Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Dillon, Read & Co. and Later the Chase National.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Senate investigators decided today to open the investigation of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Dillon, Read & Co. on June 26.

The Senate banking subcommittee in charge of the investigation decided to continue hearings this month instead of waiting until fall, when the inquiry into J. P. Morgan & Co. will be resumed.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, reported to the Senators he was ready to proceed with the other two private banking houses at any time and would soon be ready to go ahead with scrutiny of the Chase National Bank of New York.

The committee agreed to include the Chase National investigation along with the others in the hearings beginning June 26.

LINDELL BL. SETBACK DAMAGES $724,000

Damages to property in the establishment of a set-back building line for Lindell boulevard, between Grand boulevard and Kingshighway, have been fixed by condemnation commissioners at $724,829.

Benefits, assessed entirely against property on both sides of Lindell, between Grand and Kingshighway, aggregate $495,629. This leaves a balance of $229,200 net damages, which would be charged to the city.

Associate City Counselor McKittrick, who had charge of this case, and Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the City Plan Commission, had expected the benefits would offset the damages, so that there would be nothing for the city to pay. The city has no money for such a bill.

Associate Counselor Sean, head of the condemnation division, has notified Director of Streets and Sewers McDevitt that, in his opinion, the damage awards were exaggerated in most instances. He asked McDevitt whether the plan should be pursued, postponed or dropped. McDevitt has not considered the question. Roy C. Gans, engineer of McDevitt's department, has recommended a public hearing on it by the Board of Public Service.

Not Yet Ready for Court.

The commissioners' report is being written up and it will be some time before it can be filed in court for further proceedings. The purpose of the building line restriction is to preserve the character and appearance of this important thoroughfare.

Only two buildings projecting beyond the proposed line would be removed. One, owned by Charles Meuri, is an automobile sales agency at 3949-73 Lindell. Damages there were fixed at $54,291 and benefits $10,639. The other is an automobile service station, owned by Claude Foster, at 3920 Lindell. Damages for this were set at $5112 and benefits at $1125.

Some of the outstanding findings of the commission were: Hotel Chase, northeast corner of Kingshighway and Lindell, $41,250 damages, $28,500 benefits; lot at southeast corner of Kingshighway and Lindell, owned by Campbell estate, $35,550 damages, $26,662 benefits; Masonic Temple, 3681 Lindell, $9588 damages, $7191 benefits; Catholic Cathedral of St. Louis, northwest corner of Newstead avenue and Lindell, $14,400 damages, $10,800 benefits; St. Louis University, several pieces of property east of Spring avenue, $15,721 damages, $11,711 benefits.

Repealer Recently Killed.

Some property owners on Lindell recently sought repeal of the 1926 ordinance calling for the building line. Others advocated the proposed restriction. The repealer was not passed. The proposal exempted St. Francis Xavier Church, at Grand and Lindell, and an adjacent building of St. Louis University; the Melbourne Hotel and several other expensive buildings projecting beyond the proposed line. Most structures on Lindell are set back because of private restrictions which have expired or eventually will expire.

TELLS OF BENEFITS TO CITIES OWNING UTILITY PLANTS

Fayette Lawyer Asserts Municipally Owned Light Plants Pay $5000 for Every 1000 Citizens.

Preident of Organization Asserts Municipal Ownership Is Godsend During Depression.

By the Associated Press.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo.—Daniel C. Rogers, Fayette attorney, told the Missouri Association of Municipal Utilities here that some Missouri cities served by privately owned utility companies have curtailed their street lights as an economy measure, while not one city owning its light plant is in darkness.

Citizens living in cities owning municipal light plants, he said, not only enjoy net profit of about $5000 a year for each 1000 inhabitants, but they receive free street lighting and other services which save them from a tax rate of .25 cents to 50 cents on the $100 assessed valuation of property. These profits, he said, are earned on correspondingly lower rate schedules.

Among Missouri cities served by privately owned utility companies which he said were forced to curtail their street lighting as an economy measure are Moberly and La Plata, while Independence, Salem, Sikeston, Marshall, Hannibal and Poplar Bluff not only are enjoying full street lighting, but their municipally owned light plants are in thriving financial condition.

Quotes President Roosevelt.

"For example," he said, "Marshall, Mo., a city of 8000 inhabitants served by a municipal plant, has four times as much connected street lighting load per unit as has the city of St. Charles, a city of 10,000 inhabitants, served by a privately owned company."

Quoting President Roosevelt as saying a city has "the undeniable right" to set up its own service, Rogers asserted that privately owned utilities which have been granted franchises and thus become quasi-public corporation, "have not kept the trust."

"Municipal ownership is the birch rod in the cupboard for the much deserved punishment of these culprits. But municipal ownership will not go forward on the demerits of private ownership. It will go forward on its own record of achievement. There is abundance of evidence everywhere that municipal ownership offers the best results in the future."

Post-Dispatch Man Speaks.

Clark McAdams, chief editorial writer of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, urged Missouri cities to join the movement for public ownership of utilities as the "only way out" of high utility rates.

More than 7000 cities and towns in the United States have gone into the utility business," he told the association. "As a consequence, 84 of them are no longer levying taxes. Practically all of them own their own water supply."

In St. Louis, he said, the utilities have taken out an annual profit of $10,000,000 which has gone to Wall street, "where the house of Morgan alone controls from 22 to 23 per cent of all the electrical energy in the country and 22 per cent of all the gas."

Municipal utilities can be operated more cheaply for a number of reasons, one of them being the lower interest rates they pay, he said. Private plants pay 8 per cent to their stockholders, he said, while city-owned utilities can obtain funds from sale of bonds bearing 4½ to 5 per cent.

McAdams said it was "useless to talk about regulating the utilities, because it cannot be done."

The Insulls and Dohertys.

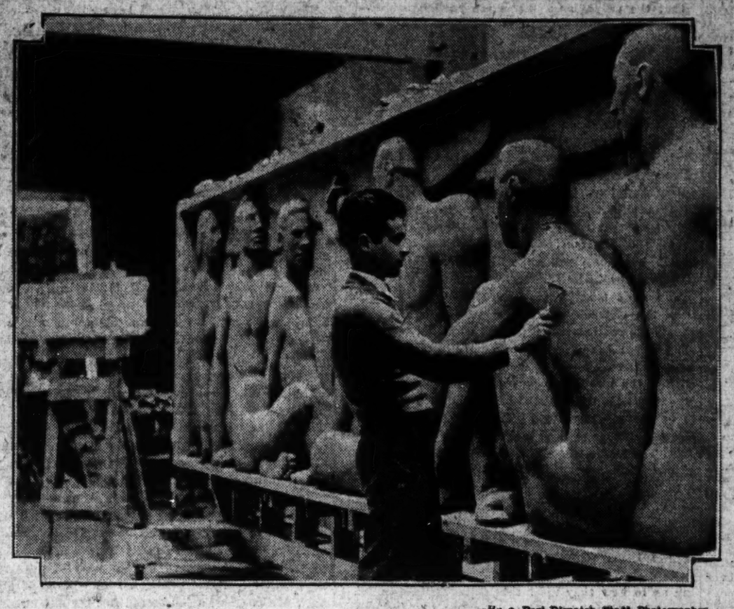

"There is not a commission in a state of the union that can regulate the utilities. Meanwhile the Insulls and the Dohertys practice their financial legerdemain at the expense of the investing public; rates are high while all other commodities are low, and more and more cities go in for public ownership. It is the only way out.

"It is not true that politicians render public plants inefficient and waste the taxes of the people. It is true that the utilities under private ownership are overcapitalized, that rates are high and that private owners of the utilities scruple at nothing to gain their ends."

McAdams said the difficulty of taking over the utilities from private ownership was not great. "It has been exaggerated. If Los Angeles, one of the largest cities in the country, can supply her own electricity, any big city in the country can do so. If 7000 cities and towns can own all or part of their utilities, every other city and town in the United States can do so. The way to put it before the people is to show them they will get more for their money and pay less taxes."

Construction of hydro-electric dams on rivers in the Ozarks and elsewhere in Missouri was unanimously opposed by the association in resolutions adopted today. The State Legislature was urged to take action to preserve "the economical and esthetic values of water power sites in Missouri against wasteful and speculative exploitation by private interests." The Legislature also was asked to adopt an act requiring two-thirds majority vote in cities of all classes in granting franchises to private utilities.

Sculptor Working on Panel for Auditorium

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

ROBERT CRONBACH, 25-year-old St. Louis sculptor, at work on a model of one of the two panels being made by him for the facade of new Municipal Auditorium facing the Plaza. The reliefs, 16 by 5 feet, will be placed near the top of the building on either side of the colonnade, and will represent Discussion and Recreation.

SCULPTOR, 25, DESIGNS AUDITORIUM PANELS

Stone Art Work for Facade to Be in Place Within a Month.

Within a month two large panels, the work of a 25-year-old St. Louis sculptor, will be in their places as part of the facade of the Municipal Auditorium, now under construction on the south side of Market street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets.

The sculpture, first of major importance to be done alone by him, is the work of Robert Cronbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cronbach, 46 Washington terrace. Accepted by Louis La Beaume, architect for the auditorium, the Memorial Plaza Commission and E. R. Kinsey, president of the Board of Public Service, the plaster casts have been sent to Bedford, Ind., where the design is being worked into stone.

Sixteen feet in length and five feet in height, the panels will be placed near the top of the structure on either side of the columned entrance of the north face of the building. They represent the purposes for which the building was constructed—discussion and recreation.

Bears at Entrance.

A third design, that of a black bear approximately 8 by 4 by 4 feet in size, which will stand at one side of the entrance, is being worked out by Cronbach at his studio at 3737 Cass avenue. He modeled a bear, such as once frequented Missouri forests, at the zoo. Another bear, designed by Victor Holm, under whom Cronbach formerly studied at the Washington University Art School, will be placed at the other side of the entrance.

"The work is creditable for anyone," La Beaume said. "Cronbach caught the spirit of the quotations from Carl Schurz, former St. Louis German-language editor, and from Woodrow Wilson, which will appear below his plaques. His design and execution took skilful account of the architecture of the building and the demands of the cold north light in which his work will be seen.

"This," La Beaume explained, "required a bold, deep relief since the sun seldom will reach the panels and they must be viewed from some distance.

"There is no recourse to trite mythology. Neither is the work too modernistic. In its simplicity there is nothing banal. The Plaza Commission was happy to find such workmanship in St. Louis and was more than pleased to encourage it."

Sculptor Worked in Europe.

La Beaume told of the repeated visits of the earnest young man a year ago, the frequent submission of designs and their revision, and the final awarding of a contract.

While attending Soldan High School, Cronbach spent Saturday mornings at the Washington University Art School. After two years in the College of Liberal Arts, he attended the Washington University Art School as a regular student. This was followed by three years at the Pennsylvania Academy at Philadelphia. There he twice won the Cresson traveling scholarship for sculpture, enabling him to study in Europe. On his second trip he met Paul Manship, noted American sculptor. He obtained employment with him and remained abroad, returning to New York with him. A $500 prize offered by a German manufacturer for work in porcelain enabled him to maintain his studio in Greenwich Village.

A chance visit by an acquaintance who wanted company on an automobile trip, was responsible for Cronbach's return to St. Louis. Learning of the plans for the Auditorium, he immediately became interested and started his series of calls on LaBeaume.

ROOSEVELT ACTS TO MEDIATE RAIL LABOR DISPUTE

Creates Board to Go Into Controversies Involving Kansas City Southern, Two Other Roads.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—President Roosevelt today issued a proclamation creating a board of three mediators to investigate and report within 30 days regarding disputes between the Kansas City Southern Railway Co., the Texarkana & Fort Smith Railway Co. and the Arkansas Western Railway Co. and certain of their employes.

Roosevelt issued his proclamation after a conference with Samuel Winslow of the United States Board of Mediation.

The mediators will be appointed in regular course through the Federal board, and promptly. No names have been selected so far.

This is the first labor dispute in which the President has intervened since taking office. He acted quickly after receiving a full report of the situation.

The proclamation said these disputes "now threatened substantially to interrupt interstate commerce within the States of Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas, to a degree such as to deprive that section of the country of essential transportation service."

Employes are to be represented by the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Trainmen.

Instead of the old allowance of $100 a day for the services of members of the mediation board, the President ordered $50 a day compensation and subjected it to the 15 per cent cut provided by the economy act.

TWO SPANISH FLYERS WILDLY ACCLAIMED BY HAVANA CROWD

Seville-to-Camaguey Aviators Carried on Shoulders; Mexico City Next Stop.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, June 13.—Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, whose 4500-mile flight from Seville, Spain to Camaguey, Cuba, set a new North Atlantic record, were greeted in Havana late yesterday by a wildly enthusiastic crowd.

They brought their trans-Atlantic plane Cuatro Vientos down on Columbia Air Field at 5:13 p. m., two hours and 53 minutes after taking off from Camaguey on a leisurely flight.

More than 10,000 persons were at the field and they were carried off on the shoulders of several to the aviation school building. Spanish Ambassador Luciano Lopez Ferrer was the first to shake hands with his countrymen.

Soldiers, joining hands, struggled vainly to hold back crowds which poured on the field. Soldiers and police broke a lane through to permit the flyers to reach the aviation building where they made brief addresses. Then they left for the city.

The Spaniards are planning to fly from here to Mexico City. Whether they will continue to the Chicago world's fair was undecided.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong; whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Utilities and Real Estate Exchange.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE board of directors of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange certainly gave an exhibition of brass in demanding a 20 per cent cut in utility rates in St. Louis. The public, it is true, is due some rate reduction, but those who have fought the public side of the various rate cases in the past 20 years know that the Real Estate Exchange is, in a large measure, responsible for the present and past high utility rates.

Since the advent of the Missouri Public Service Commission, there has never been a valuation case involving St. Louis utilities where the rate base has not been inflated by claim on the part of the utility for exorbitant real estate values. Without exception, these claims have been presented for the utility in the form of testimony of real estate men, and these men have invariably been president, past president or member of the board of directors of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange.

Since real estate is one of the largest individual items in the rate base, the Real Estate Exchange must therefore accept the onus of being a major contributing factor in our present high rates.

Charles M. Hay, the new City Counselor, has proved to be a real champion of the public and has started a drive for reasonable and fair utility rate reductions. Mr. Hay will soon be involved in a series of rate hearings before the Public Service Commission, and if the Real Estate Exchange is sincere in its belief that rates are too high, let it support Mr. Hay by refusing to participate with the utility in the ridiculous spectacle of inflated land values which have characterized past hearings before the commission.

A School Savings Suggestion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HOW can the St. Louis school children have confidence in banks after their experience? Would it not be better to place their savings with Uncle Sam's Postal Savings Bank? I believe it would encourage thrift and instill the utmost confidence in their America. Not one St. Louis school child would have lost if the American banking laws were the same as Canada's. E. Matthew Arnold in St. Louis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MATTHEW ARNOLD, the English poet and essayist, lectured in St. Louis in January, 1884. For several years I have been compiling from newspapers, magazines, books of reminiscences and such sources a record of Arnold's relations with America. I should like to add to this study some of the more personal and first-hand accounts of his visit which possibly some readers of the Post-Dispatch might be able to supply from contemporary letters and diaries, or from memory. Any manuscript materials submitted to me would be copied and returned promptly.

"Cutthroat" It Is.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NOW the phrase "cutthroat competition" comes frequently into the public prints, so let's go pedantic and spell it right. Out with the obtrusive hyphen! It doesn't belong. Such is the prestige of the cutthroat in our "dog-eat-dog" way of life that the lexicographers have accorded him the honor of the one-word form.

And while we are on the subject of cutthroats, let us just consider them briefly. The chambers of commerce would have us believe that they are an infinitesimal minority who make it dreadfully hard for the "good" boys of business to remember their Sunday school lessons. Everyone who rates a mental classification higher than moron knows that's the old mularkey, and many a bright 10-year-old, too, if questioned, could tell you that in reality they are legion.

So pay homage where homage is due, with hail and huzzah for that rich, proud, successful American, the cutthroat!

PLEBE.

A Challenge in Mass Housing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial of last Friday, "Real Homes for Workers," puts the proposition clearly before us in St. Louis—either private capital will enter this field, which has already been proved to be profitable, or, as you say, it will be "the city's obligation to incorporate mass housing in its public works program and press it to the limit."

Our Better Housing Committee of Neighborhood Association is ready to go ahead, and within a few days hopes for a definite commitment. This first unit, caring for 252 families, will cost approximately $300,000 including the land. It will prove a testing laboratory, and should answer very definitely the question, "Where do we go from here?" The dingy depressing ninteries must go. They will go.

SAMUEL PLANT,
President, Neighborhood Association.

THE SOCIAL REVOLUTION.

For more than three months the American people have gazed spellbound at Washington while Congress, under the direction of President Roosevelt, enacted a momentous body of legislation. The situation has been strikingly summed by Gov. Cross of Connecticut in his address to the General Assembly. He said:

> The United States is now passing through a social revolution. So quietly is it proceeding that the people as a whole are hardly aware of it. What the outcome may be, nobody can foretell.

The Industrial Recovery Act is, of course, the most revolutionary measure in the program. It gives the Government a controlling voice in the management of business. It disavows our long-cherished faith in the vitality of competition as an economic factor, for which it undertakes to substitute intelligent cooperation. It is a long step, we are told, toward a planned economy.

Just how business and Government will get along in this new partnership remains to be seen, but public opinion accepts the adventure as necessary, in view of the fact that the old order of business has broken down and some kind of regulated operation must be installed.

The most practical feature of the Recovery Act, from the viewpoint of public anxiety, is the expansion of the public works program, which, it is estimated, will put 1,000,000 men to work before fall. There have been rosier estimates than that, one prediction placing the number to be employed at 3,000,000. In any event, the only road out of the slough of despond is opportunity to work. The biggest word in the English language today—in all the languages—is Jobs. The whole world is carrying this dreadful cross of unemployment.

In their despair, people are mildly concerned, if at all, with forms of government, or with economic theories, or the perpetuation of orders or institutions. The business of making a living is the supreme issue of the hour. Governments, philosophies, constitutions and institutions will survive or perish according as to how they meet that issue.

Here in the United States a spirit of hopefulness has been created by the readiness of the Roosevelt administration to face realities, and its courage to step forth on uncharted paths. Substantial improvement is reported in many lines, and the general attitude toward the recovery act is one of great expectation.

Meantime, as Congress is about to adjourn, the World Economic Conference has been convened in London, the proceedings of which will command the attention of the 66 nations invited to the parliament, in which, according to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, "there is a greater authority gathered . . . than has perhaps ever been brought under one roof in the world's history."

As a matter of obvious fact, the "social revolution" observed by Gov. Cross is not confined to the United States. It is world-wide. And if a new order of things must be instituted in the various nations, it is no less imperative, as the British Prime Minister sees it, that there be a new order of international relations. Reciting the decline of the world's commerce, with its accompaniment of political perplexities and human misery, he declares:

> This cannot go on. The world is being driven upon a state of things which may well bring it face to face again—for it has happened on scales of varying extent before now—with a time in which life revolts against hardship and the gains of the past are swept away by the forces of despair.

What does he mean? His language, if it means anything, means that relief must be had, that the practices and policies of the nations, which have brought the world to this desperate pass, must be renounced, that the statesmanship of every nation must look beyond its own borders, must take into account its nation's place in the present world and adapt its practices and policies to the requirements of the new world created by science and invention.

This may be easily said. It is tremendously difficult to do. Nevertheless, the compulsion of world conditions demands action. The economic conference, with the world as its constituency, is confronted by the necessity of action as peremptory as that which Congress at Washington faced in the crisis of our national affairs.

It may fail. If it does, the nations severally will have to undertake the task of working out their economic salvation within themselves, at best an unaccustomed choice.

AMBASSADOR DODD.

Appointments to diplomatic posts are all too often chiefly rewards for services to the party in power. If some of President Roosevelt's ambassadorial selections seem to fit into this category, he has just announced one which decidedly does not. That is the nomination of Dr. William Edward Dodd, professor of American history in the University of Chicago, to be Ambassador to Germany. In the words of President Hutchins of the University of Chicago, Dr. Dodd is "peculiarly fitted to the post." As a youth, he went to Germany for his advanced graduate study, and it was from the University of Leipzig that he received his doctor of philosophy degree more than 30 years ago. The attachment he formed then for German culture and life should make him a sympathetic representative of the United States to the German people. As a distinguished and able teacher and writer of history—next year he is scheduled to be president of the American Historical Society—Dr. Dodd will have the respect of Germany as no lame duck Senator could possibly win it. The appointment is not dissimilar from that which sent Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, also a German-trained American scholar, to perform able services at Berlin. It is in the best tradition.

CHARLES II AND 3.2 BEER.

When Charles II brought about the restoration of monarchy in England, he did not dream that any act of his would help bring about the restoration of beer in America almost three centuries later. But that has come to pass, with the help of a little American ingenuity. It was a lucky day for a future beer garden entrepreneur when King Charles, tinkering with the Virginia-Maryland boundary, gave the latter colony authority over the Potomac to low-water mark on the opposite side. This map did not change with the Revolution, and the two states confirmed it with a treaty, still effective, signed in 1785. Now that Virginia bans beer and Maryland lives up to its name of Free State, this boundary quirk is put to practical use. An inspired beer vendor has set up his tables, steins and barrels at the end of a pier, over deep water, at the extremity of King George County, Virginia. His customers are, we hope, good Americans, but they may be pardoned if they drink a few refreshing proofs to the clairvoyant King Charles, who created the oasis in soda pop territory before anyone dreamed it might be needed.

PASSING THE TAX PUBLICITY BUCK.

The entire course of Congress in enacting emergency legislation has been interrupted by a barrage of criticism from a minority of both party groups. Dictatorial powers were being seized by the President, various speakers told the country, at the expense of congressional rights and at the sacrifice of the nation's Constitution. From the bank moratorium, through the economy bill and up to the recovery act, at the session's very end, the finish of our democracy was deplored by impassioned orators. One speaker went so far as to compare the American Congress with the German Reichstag after its throttling by Hitler. Another saw the situation as "a farce of representative government."

The country at large realized the need for decisive action and for the temporary delegating of power in a national crisis. Had it taken the carpers seriously, it might have pictured a deliberative body futilely trying to safeguard its legislative rights, while a ruthless executive forced it to endow him with power. How far from the truth this would be may be seen from one incident, in the matter of income tax publicity. Senator La Follette's amendment called for absolute publicity, without ifs, ands or buts. When the conference committee had completed its work, a proviso had been added, making this publicity subject to the President's will, under rules and regulations to be formulated by him.

Here, surely, was a legislative duty if one ever appeared upon the national agenda. Yet the conferees removed that duty from the nation's lawmakers, and imposed the responsibility upon an already heavily burdened executive. We do not doubt that Mr. Roosevelt will be able to formulate, with his advisers, a suitable and fair system of regulations for publicity. But in doing so he will be doing the work of Congress, a job he did not request but which was thrust upon him. The horrendous picture of a White House autocrat does not stand up in this instance. It begins to resemble more that of a man to whom a buck has been passed.

CONVERSION TURNS UP IN THE SENATE.

For some time the Post-Dispatch has urged the conversion of the high-interest bonds issued by the Government during the war into bonds of lower rate. We have pointed to the savings effected in other countries which have taken this step, and have sought to encourage those who have arisen in the United States to call for conversion, among them Representative Parsons of Illinois, who has computed that conversion at 2 per cent would save the people of the United States $287,000,000 a year in interest.

The Senate has just made a significant move in this connection in passing a resolution introduced by Senator Bone of Washington, who seems destined to be recorded as one of the Northwest's leading workers for the New Deal. Senator Bone's resolution, which passed, 69 to 1, with only Senator Logan of Kentucky voting against it, asks the Secretary of the Treasury to call on holders of Government bonds to exchange them for Federal securities bearing lower interest. Passage of this resolution does not mean that we are necessarily on the threshold of conversion. It does mean, however, that there is increasing support for such a saving of the people's money. It should encourage everyone who feels that money wages should be brought into line with other wages.

THE ULTIMATE IN PENSIONS.

What should go down in history as the classical example of pension abuses (or until a worse one is discovered) comes to public attention by Mexico's announced intention of ending, after four centuries, payments to the descendants of Montezuma II. Pensions usually are granted for heroism or public service. But why, Mexicans now ask, should they be grateful to the last Aztec Emperor, his heirs and assigns forever? That monarch's heroism consisted in appearing on the palace roof, when the people rose to drive out the Spanish invaders under Cortes, in June, 1520, and ordering them to lay down their arms. For this surrender, Montezuma was attacked by his subjects and fatally wounded.

It was quite in order for the Spanish to grant a pension to the family of their Aztec ally. But when Mexico became independent, more than a century ago, the payments were continued, until now a total of 8,000,000 pesos has been expended. Since many of the beneficiaries have lived in Spain for generations, and the Spanish Republic has ceased its grants to the former nobility, Mexico's man in the street cannot see why his taxes should go to support the ancient tradition. Thus it is again demonstrated how pensions are self-perpetuating and of marvelous growth, and how they may go on for centuries until the people awaken to the needless waste.

THE FOUR-FOOT PUTT.

St. Louis missed the plumes and banners on Saturday when Ralph Guldahl, pro of the Country Club, failed to sink a four-foot putt, and so finished as runner-up in the national open, one stroke behind the winner. There was no reproach in the reports of the contest for the costly failure, though the implication was plainly visible between the lines that a four-foot putt is anything but a Napoleonic coup, that it is, as a matter of familiar record, a casual feat which golfers of all degrees, from Iniquitous dubdom up to the stellarissimos, perform with unstudied ease and even with nonchalance. And as a general verity, that assertion may be affirmed. But this particular four-foot putt, it should forever be remembered, was framed in circumstances that throbbed, that buzzed, that whizzed and heckled. For there, trembling like an aspen in the quivering balance, was the open championship, and in such a posture of possibility the mathematically brief space of four feet between cup and ball was emotionally as far as from here to Arcturus, and probably a good deal farther. There are difficult predicaments in this vale of tears, as any professor of philosophy can, and will, assure you. In the terminology of a rougher school, every racket has its tough spots. But in all the territorial and temperamental expanse of golf there is no other situation so devastatingly trying as a four-foot putt while the pendulum transcribes the arc between glory and second place. Indeed, in such auspices a four-inch putt would make a Stein mop his brow.

END OF THE WHIRLWIND.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

The Course of Economic Nationalism

EVENTS after the World War have shown that the peoples were not prepared to accept the basic idea of the Wilson peace—that political nationalism could be combined with economic internationalism. With the United States well in the lead of the procession, the nations adopted economic policies which were a denial of the principle on which the new order was to have stood.

These policies aimed at two things. The first was to achieve what amounted to a monopoly of the domestic market for domestic producers. The second was to export as much as possible into foreign markets. From about 1922 to the present day, these objectives have been pursued by more and more nations, with increasing severity.

Now, these policies do not make sense. They are utterly self-contradictory. It is perhaps possible for each nation to give its domestic producers a monopoly of the domestic market. But it is not possible also and at the same time to develop a great export business. For if all nations are to move toward shutting out competitive imports, it is obvious that they cannot hope to do a profitable business in competitive exports. For, though it is hard for many persons to grasp the idea, each nation's exports are other nations' imports.

Yet during the post-war era the commercial policies of the nations, our own as a conspicuous example, were based on this economic paradox. We managed to make these policies work from 1922 to 1929 by lending foreign nations the money to buy the surplus goods we sold them and when, in 1929, we ceased to lend them any more money, the system collapsed.

Now what we have to inquire into are the reasons why one nation after another has rejected economic internationalism and has sought to make itself economically self-contained. The usual explanation is that special interests, the organized domestic producers, have imposed ultra-protectionist policies on the various governments. There is no doubt about the power and the persistence of the agitation of the tariff beneficiaries. But I do not think that they fully explain the sensational progress of the protectionist doctrine.

After all, it must be remembered that in the principal commercial nations the democratic masses have been very powerful since the war, and it cannot honestly be contended, I think, that the mass of the people has been less protectionist in spirit than the employing manufacturers. My own impression is that in all countries the doctrine of free trade has been losing ground among the people themselves, and that the democracies themselves are today overwhelmingly protectionist in sentiment.

The people have been rejecting free trade among the nations because they have set their minds and hopes upon establishing a much more deliberately managed economic society at home. They desire security of employment. They desire security against accident, illness and want in their old age. They desire relief from the impact of the business cycle, from the violent fluctuations of prices, from the hazards of destructive competition.

Desiring these things, they have come to believe that they must organize industry and agriculture and finance to a much greater degree than they have ever been organized before. But if the economic system is to be organized and planned and managed, it follows inevitably that the system must be protected against external forces that cannot be controlled. This means economic nationalism, for international planning, management and control are hardly as yet within the realm of practical possibilities.

International commercial competition is tending to become more and more impracticable and more and more unnecessary. I say impracticable because the commercial nations are not likely to admit any substantial quantity of truly competitive imports. The main tendency of developments, as I see it, is for the nations to monopolize the home market in those goods which they can themselves produce.

Personally, I see little prospect that tariff barriers will be reduced in this country or abroad to admit important competitive imports. There are absurd restrictions which probably can be removed, restrictions which protect industries that a nation is wholly unsuited to carry on. But the industries which a nation can carry on with reasonable success will, I believe, remain completely protected. And the main drift of industrialization the world over is, as I see it, to increase the diversity of domestic production and hence to reduce the diversity of international trade.

But as it becomes increasingly impracticable for nations to compete in foreign markets, so also does it become increasingly unnecessary. As their domestic economy becomes more diversified, in the sense that they produce a greater variety of the things they need, the goods that can be exchanged internally are multiplied. We shall see, I think, as we do see in the new industrial development in the south of England, for example, the rise of industries adapted to a domestic market which replace industries that can no longer find markets in which to sell great surpluses of exports.

Does this mean that international trade will disappear and that we are headed for a system of economic isolation? I think not. The nations will still have to exchange great quantities of raw materials and of semi-finished products. No nation is self-contained and no nation can be. Nature has settled that question. We shall never, for example, produce coffee or rubber, and Germany will never produce cotton.

A very important international trade based on primary products will surely remain. Then there is bound to be a considerable international trade in machinery, in capital goods, which nations which lack coal and iron and the experience necessary to make machines will have to import. And then there is likely to be, I think, a considerable trade in luxuries, in the specialties which one nation can make so much better than another.

The volume of this trade may very well exceed anything the world ever knew under the older forms of highly competitive international trade. If the nations can successfully organize their own economic systems, raise the standard of life, increase the purchasing power of the people, the demand for those things which have to be imported might easily grow to immense proportions.

In any event, it would, I think, be misleading to fail to take account of the basic fact that we are living in a world which is radically different from that which men looked forward to at the close of the Great War. Men in those days thought we were moving toward a cosmopolitan economic system in which governments would interfere as little as possible with the growing interdependence of buyers and sellers on the opposite sides of political frontiers. Actually, we have moved rapidly and radically toward nationally organized economies in which the movement of goods across frontiers is rigidly controlled.

* * *

As I see it, this process received its first great impetus from the tariff policy of the United States on the one hand and from the planned economies of Russia and Italy on the other. Almost all the other nations have followed suit in the sense that they have all become more protectionist and all of them have undertaken an increasing direction of domestic industry. The die was cast finally, it seems to me, when Great Britain turned to protection.

Since that time, the liberal internationalism of the nineteenth century of which Woodrow Wilson was the last great spokesman has ceased to have a controlling influence on human affairs. Assuming great wars can be prevented, it is now safe to predict, I believe, that during the next decade the chief preoccupation of diplomacy will be to adjust nationalistic economies to each other.

The chief reason why the task of the conference which opened today in London is so difficult is that none of the important governments, our own included, has as yet had time to think out clearly the international meaning of the domestic policies which it is pursuing. Thus, much that is publicly avowed sounds as if we were still in the Wilson era. But almost everything the governments actually do, and almost everything that the peoples really want, shows that we have entered an era of a deeply different sort.

You who are being graduated here today will understand these things far better than we who have lived so closely to them that we are hardly aware of them. If only we could be granted the insight that you will have, we could make a better world for you to live in. So you must have a little patience with us as we fumble and stumble amidst these problems.

We were not educated to understand them. We have had to learn what little we know in the bitter experience of a devastating war, a bad peace, and an economic catastrophe. We have to act under the strain of great emotion and amidst bitter controversy. For 20 years we have lived agitated lives. We have been in the grip of historic forces that falsified our hopes and made it necessary for us to revise our ideas suddenly and frequently in the din and smoke of tremendous events.

Whether you are to have the security of quiet lives, or whether you, too, are to be tossed about, as we have been and are, in the turmoil of a world-wide upheaval, I do not know. All I can say is: If it is your fate to know what peace is like, use that peace as an opportunity to make it secure. Do not think the deeps are quiet because the surface is calm. That was the mistake of our generation and of our fathers' generation.

TRADE MARK

By DREW PEARSON and

WASHINGTON, June 13.

MOST Presidents suffer bitter rows with Congress before they leave the White House, but few have rowed so early in a new administration and at times so bitterly as in the sessi just closing. Staunch life-long Democrats, who had voted for Roosevelt, worked for him, ponied money for him, now are sniping at him—and doing it effectively.

In the privacy of the cloakroom two reasons are given for such an early termination of the honeymoon.

1. Senators and Congressmen have been high-hatted too often. White House secretaries ignore them. It is difficult for them even to get in to see the secretary to the secretary of the President. They have to wait on benches, and this hurts their pride.

2. Patronage. Little has been given out, and Congress is rebellious over that fact. Patronage is meat and drink to a Congressman. It spells victory or defeat at the next election. So they are in a tumult against Roosevelt's policy of "no jobs until Congress adjourns."

Republican Adviser.

IT WAS the Republicans, not the Democrats, who steered Roosevelt regarding his plan to demand of Congress discretionary power to raise or lower tariffs.

Worried over warnings of a wide open Congressional split should he seek such authority, the President turned for counsel to lean, blue-eyed Charley McNary, Oregon's Republican floor leader of the Senate. The two men met secretly one morning for breakfast in the President's private chambers in the White House.

McNary confirmed the President's fears of a bitter Congressional fight. He declared the tariff issue would cause weeks of debate, be a dismal anti-climax to a brilliant Congressional session. Frankly, but cordially, he advised the President to "forget it," pointed out that under existing law he had plenty of power to move tariff schedules up or down as much as 50 per cent.

As a token of the disinterestedness of his advice, McNary told the President that the Democratic Congressional leaders held similar views, urged him to ask them. Roosevelt took his Republican adviser at his word. He found him right 100 per cent. Joe Robinson, Senate Democratic floor leader, confirmed everything McNary said. The President dropped his tariff resolution into the waste basket.

Trade Booster.

ONE of Herbert Hoover's most active Commerce Department propagandists is about to receive reward from Roosevelt. Secretary of Commerce Roper has put him forward as assistant in the administration of the industry control bill.

...rnational trade. If the nations can suc-

...chasing power of the people, the de-

...rted might easily grow to immense pro-

...any event, it would, I think, be mis-

... that we are living in a world which

... I see it, this process received its first

... the other. Almost all the other nations
...e followed suit in the sense that they
...e all become more protectionist and all
...them have undertaken an increasing di-
...ion of domestic industry. The die was
... finally, it seems to me, when Great
...tain turned to protection.

...nce that time, the liberal international-
... of the nineteenth century of which
...oodrow Wilson was the last great spokes-
...n has ceased to have a controlling in-
...ence on human affairs. Assuming great
...rs can be prevented, it is now safe to
...dict, I believe, that during the next
...ade the chief preoccupation of diplomacy
...l be to adjust nationalistic economies to
...h other.

...he chief reason why the task of the con-
...ence which opened today in London is ... difficult is that none of the important
...vernments, our own included, has as yet
...d time to think out clearly the interna-
...nal meaning of the domestic policies
...ich it is pursuing. Thus, much that is
...blicly avowed sounds as if we were still
... the Wilson era. But almost everything
... governments actually do, and almost
...erything that the peoples really want,

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

WASHINGTON, June 13.

Trade Booster.

ONE of Herbert Hoover's most active Commerce Department propagandists is about to receive reward from Roosevelt. Secretary of Commerce Roper has put him forward as assistant in the administration of the industry control bill.

He is Thomas R. Taylor, assistant chief of Hoover's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, who reprimanded one of his subordinates for telling American business men that investments in Peru were a poor risk a short time before that country went into bankrupcy.

According to testimony brought out in Senator Johnson's foreign loan investigation, Taylor wrote to Oliver C. Townsend American commercial attache in Lima:

"As officials, we should be encouraging whenever possible and discouraging only in the last extremity."

Oily Muddle.

THE pocketbook of every automobile owner in the country is tied up in one of the weirdest legislative muddles of the Roosevelt administration. The question that raged behind the scenes was whether a Federal dictator should be placed over the nation's $14,000,000,000 oil industry.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Oklahoma oil companies are strong for regulation. Many big oil groups are bitterly opposed. California and East Texas oil producers want no change. They are making money even at present low prices, because they need no pipes to pump their "black gold" to the surface.

Added to the confusion has been the President's attitude. The Oklahoma oil men originally got a bill introduced providing for strict control. The bill went to the House Ways and Means Committee and stopped there. The industry control bill, the administration said, would cover the plan for oil regulation. "Roosevelt," the word was whispered down the line, "hasn't made up his mind yet."

Weeks passed. The oil men waited to see if they would be taken care of in the industry control bill. But they were not. So in despair the oil producers wrote a bill of their own, a bill going far toward Government regulation.

The bill, when completed, was laid on the desk of Secretary Ickes, who in turn laid it on the desk of President Roosevelt. But nothing happened. Oil men sweated and fumed. Still nothing happened.

Then suddenly Roosevelt moved.

He sent letters to Speaker Rainey and Vice-President Garner, declaring there was "widespread" demand for oil legislation, and recommending that oil be made a rider on the industry control-public works bill.

But the House Ways and Means Committee, then holding hearings on this measure, decided against an oil dictatorship. Secretary Ickes went to "Preacher Bob" Doughton, chairman of the committee, told him the President wanted the oil provision in the bill. But it did no good.

Ickes suggested that Doughton call on the President. To which the lumbering North Carolina "hillbilly" tartly replied that if the President wanted to talk to him, he could call.

The House passed the industrial control act without the desired oil rider.

"FLORODORA" REVIVED ON BIG PARK STAGE

Dolores	Nancy McCord
Lady Hollyrood	Doris Patston
Angela	Helen Arnold
Maraquita	Hannah Toback
Paquita	Marie Starner
Cyrus Gilfain	Leonard Ceeley
Frank Abercoed	Allan Jones
Leandro	Victor Casmore
Capt. Donegal	Nick Long
Anthony Tweedlepunch	George Hessell
Valleda	Ethel Barrymore Colt

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

"FLORODORA," the gay musical comedy of the gay late '90's, which has been revived now and again for the sake of its pretty music rather than for any brilliance of its book, came back to the Municipal Opera in Forest Park last night in spectacular form. In a lovely setting, in which Watson Barratt got the full effect of the depth of the great stage, the familiar songs of 1899 were charmingly sung by Allan Jones and Nancy McCord, while Leonard Ceeley, in almost a non-singing role, was introduced to the first night crowd of some 8500 persons, as an excellent light comedian and something—only something, that is—of a dancer.

As always the famous double sextet number was the hit of the show. It has grown now to become an enlarged affair. There are really three sets of girls and boys who sing "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden." The first 12 stick to the original manner which first took the show-going public of England and America by storm. Another combination next presents the number after the style of a decade ago and then still a third set of girls and boys do it to jazz time very effectively. But that is not the end of the sextet, for 12 children go through the song again. It was these youngsters, especially a tiny pair on the end, who really furnished the greatest entertainment of the evening.

The book of the show remains rather stupid and pretty much as it was written. Some of the lines have been brightened up with wise cracks of today for the benefit of George Hassell, the rotund comedian who made his first appearance of the season in the role of Anthony Tweedlepunch. A song or two which was not heard in the original version—notably "Hello People" from the later musical play "Havana"—have been added but the 1933 version is not a rewritten affair by any means. No Hamlet in modern attire, its popularity must depend upon its sextets and the very lovely "Shade of the Palm" song, the stirring "I Want to Be a Military Man," "Tact" and the other familiar music of the play.

Nancy McCord, who appeared only once before with the Municipal Opera Company in a rather minor role, made her bow as a prima donna last night, singing most delightfully the role of Dolores. Dolores, you may recall, is the Spanish girl who has been robbed of her wonderful island of Florodora which is restored to her by the scheming Tweedlepunch who, at the same time, sees that she gets Allen Jones, the man of her choice, instead of Leonard Ceeley. Miss McCord was pretty and effective in the role and her singing voice is most excellent.

Doris Patston as Lady Hollyrood, Helen Arnold as Angela and Nick Long as the Captain Donegal did their share of furnishing the evening's entertainment. Long, in particular, scored heavily with an eccentric dance early in the show while, later in the evening, Rosemary Deering and 16 members of the chorus did a very pretty ballet to add to the beauty of the performance.

Next Monday night the Municipal organization is to present "White Lilacs," a story of the romance of George Sand and Chopin set to the latter's music which has been adapted to a book by Harry B. Smith.

CAIRO MAN TELLS OF WESTERN WORLD INFLUENCE ON EGYPT

The extension into Egypt of Western civilization was described yesterday by James K. Quay, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Cairo, who is visiting in St. Louis on a trip to this country after a stay of 14 years in Egypt.

One thing which has exercised a strong influence on Egyptians is the American movie, Quay said. Charlie Chaplin continues to be a film favorite. Other signs of the new order are extension of educational facilities, hospitalization and athletics.

"Perhaps one of the most significant trends," he said, "has been the changed attitude regarding the status of women. A comparatively short time ago women led secluded lives. When they appeared on the streets it was only under the protection of heavy veils. Romance had little to do with their marriages, which were arranged for them by their parents. Now, in marked contrast with this condition, women are abandoning the veil as a yoke binding them to the traditions of their ancestors."

NEW YORK, June 13.—International uncertainties apparently cast shadows on the financial markets today and prices of stocks and staples were inclined to react under sizable profit taking waves. Some specialties withstood realizing assaults, but a number of the ...cent share favorites dropped 1 to around 3 points. The close was rather heavy. Transfers approximated 6,000,000 shares.

Traders seemingly were unable to find a great deal of optimism in London Economic Conference activities. Some carrier stocks spurted at one time, but failed to hold all of their advances. The American dollar improved in foreign exchange markets. Commodities generally were easier and bonds were irregular.

Union Pacific shares in early trading was up around 6 points. They were only up about 1 at the close, however. Delaware & Hudson, up 4 points, finished about a point higher. Advances were also converted into moderate losses by New York Central, Lackawanna and Chesapeake & Ohio. Declines of around 1 to 3 points were suffered by American Sugar Refining, Allied Chemical, American Can, Consolidated Gas, General Motors, U. S. Steel, du Pont, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Standard Oil of New Jersey, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting and Western Union. American Telephone sagged and rallied but finished with a loss of around 3 points.

Foreign exchanges yielded some of their recent gains. The British pound sterling was off 5½ cents at a cable rate of 4.10¾, French francs sagged .09 of a cent to 4.75¼ cents, and Dutch guilders lost nearly a cent. Belgian belgas, Swiss francs, German marks, the Scandinavians, Canadian dollars and Japanese yen were heavy.

The News of Day.

Interest in financial circles continued to be divided between Washington and London, with most observers admitting the futility of attempting to prognosticate happenings in either center. Some disappointment was expressed over the delay in adjournment of Congress, but the postponement, it was generally believed, would have little effect on the administration's economic program.

There was widespread discussion regarding the payment or non-payment by Great Britain of the war debt installment falling due Thursday.

The question of "what price the dollar" is holding the serious attention of Wall Street. Foreign banking experts stress the importance of stabilization as the most vital question before the present London conference. Only when the dollar, pound and franc are fixed on some sort of permanent relationship, it is argued, can the foreign trade situation work back toward normal.

Weekly Bank Summary.

The weekly condition statement reporting Federal Reserve member banks in 90 leading cities revealed that banks outside of New York have again shown an independent increase in their investments and loans. These items gained $59,000,000 over the preceding week as compared with an increase of $37,000,000 for New York reporting banks during that week. The out-of-town banks showed a gain of $65,000,000 in net demand deposits and $12,000,000 in reserve balances with Federal Reserve banks.

Chicago & North Western had total loadings of 22,328 cars last week, compared with 20,760 in the previous week and ...153 in the 1932 period. Pere Marquette reported 4748 cars, compared with 4243 in the preceding week and 4362 a year ago.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 13.—International uncertainties apparently cast shadows on the financial markets today and prices of stocks and staples were inclined to react under sizable profit taking waves. Some specialties withstood realizing assaults, but a number of the recent share favorites dropped 1 to around 3 points. The close was rather heavy. Transfers approximated 6,000,000 shares.

Traders seemingly were unable to find a great deal of optimism in London Economic Conference activities. Some carrier stocks spurted at one time, but failed to hold all of their advances. The American dollar improved in foreign exchange markets. Commodities generally were easier and bonds were irregular.

Union Pacific shares in early trading was up around 6 points. They were only up about 1 at the close, however. Delaware & Hudson, up 4 points, finished about a point higher. Advances were also converted into moderate losses by New York Central, Lackawanna and Chesapeake & Ohio. Declines of around 1 to 3 points were suffered by American Sugar Refining, Allied Chemical, American Can, Consolidated Gas, General Motors, U. S. Steel, du Pont, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Standard Oil of New Jersey, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting and Western Union. American Telephone sagged and rallied but finished with a loss of around 3 points.

Cotton dropped 35 to 65 cents a bale. Bar silver declined ¼ of a cent an ounce to 36½ cents.

Foreign exchanges yielded some of their recent gains. The British pound sterling was off 5½ cents at a cable rate of 4.10¾, French francs sagged .09 of a cent to 4.75½ cents, and Dutch guilders lost nearly a cent. Belgian belgas, Swiss francs, German marks, the Scandinavians, Canadian dollars and Japanese yen were heavy.

The News of Day.

Interest in financial circles continued to be divided between Washington and London, with most observers admitting the futility of attempting to prognosticate happenings in either center. Some disappointment was expressed over the delay in adjournment of Congress, but the postponement, it was generally believed, would have little effect on the administration's economic program.

There was widespread discussion regarding the payment or non-payment by Great Britain of the war debt installment falling due Thursday.

The question of "what price the dollar" is holding the serious attention of Wall Street. Foreign banking experts stress the importance of stabilization as the most vital question before the present London conference. Only when the dollar, pound and franc are fixed in some sort of permanent relationship, it is argued, can the foreign trade situation work back toward normal.

Weekly Bank Summary.

The weekly condition statement of reporting Federal Reserve member banks in 90 leading cities revealed that banks outside of New York have again shown an independent increase in their investments and loans. These items gained $59,000,000 over the preceding week as compared with an increase of $37,000,000 for New York reporting banks during that week. The out-of-town banks showed a gain of $65,000,000 in net demand deposits and $12,000,000 in reserve balances with Federal Reserve banks.

WHEAT MARKET CLOSES LOWER IN LOCAL TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, June 13.—The wheat market ruled lower today and closed at loss of ¼ to ⅝c.

The news from London Conference was cited as a bearish factor. Lower British Exchange rates and lower temperatures prevailing also included in news.

Winnipeg wheat closed ⅜@½c net lower.

Liverpool was ⅜ to ½c up in one cable. The close was ⅛d net higher.

July wheat opened at 77, down 1c, and Sept. wheat 79¼ to ½, down ½ to ⅝c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 15,000 bushels compared with 39,000 a week ago and 42,000 a year ago, included 4 cars local and 6 through. Corn receipts, which were 55,500 bushels compared with 73,500 a week ago and 21,000 a year ago, included 30 cars local and 7 through. Oats receipts, which were 18,000 bushels compared with 6600 a year ago, included 6 cars local and 3 through. Hay receipts were 4 cars local.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Wheat was ¾c higher. Corn was unchanged to ½c higher and oats ¼c higher. Sales of cash grain made on the floor of the exchange today were as follows:

WHEAT CLOSES NERVOUS AT PRICE DECLINE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 13.—New record high prices for wheat and rye distinguished late trading today, but met with increased selling and declines ensued.

Advances in securities were largely responsible for the transient upturn of grains. Unfavorable crop comment from South Dakota, was also a bullish factor.

Wheat closed nervous, ⅜@¾c under yesterday's finish; corn also ⅜@¾c down, oats ⅜@⅝c off, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

News from the world economic conference in London and in regard to war debts was construed as bearish. Opening at ½@1c decline, both wheat and corn continued to fall.

Lower temperatures and scattered showers, with setbacks in British exchange, tended temporarily to promote selling of wheat.

Buying on the part of houses with Eastern connections accompanied the rally in wheat. There was also much general purchasing on resting orders to acquire ownership at various set limits, especially when offerings became scarce.

Corn and oats largely followed the course of wheat.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Raw sugar was quiet early today, but in view of the continued decline of futures, the tone was easier. Spots were available at last paid prices of 3.40. No sales were reported, although it was rumored that some business was done at 1-32-cent below this level.

Futures weakened under a renewal of tired long liquidation of selling by producing interests, influenced by absence of developments at Washington in connection with the allotment plan or the probability of any changes in the Cuban tariff. July contracts eased from 1.35@1.34 and December from 1.45@1.44, with the general market at midday ruling 2 to 4 points net lower.

The refined market was unchanged at 4.60. Good withdrawals were made against old contracts, but no new business was reported.

The market rallied near the close on covering and speculative buying, futures closing steady, 2 lower to 1 higher. Sales 31,450 tons. July 1.36b, Sept. 1.39, Dec. 1.46, Jan. 1.47, March 1.53, May 1.57.

SELECTIVE DEMAND IN THE BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Demand for bonds today was a bit more discriminating than in some recent sessions, but in general the tone of the market was firm most of the day.

Low priced rails continued to command attention, and those logically entitled to a more favorable market position by virtue of improved revenues attracted the most buying interest.

Some of the utilities sold off a point or two, although the communications issues, heavy in the early dealings, improved slightly in the last half of the session. The industrial group was steady to firm with fractional gains fairly numerous.

U. S. Governments carried their early gains up into late market with the Liberty loans making the best showing. Some Brazilian and German issues recorded fair advances at one time in a rather featureless market for foreign loans.

KING GEORGE has recited the speech prepared for him before representatives of the nations gathered at the economic conference in London. The French sent seven members of the Cabinet, their ablest men. Correspondents predict there will be a united "debt movement by Britain and France against the United States." There is talk of "stabilizing the dollar somewhere near the value of the British pound," which a few months ago would have meant having one dollar and a half from the value of a five dollar b"'. They now suggest a pound worth $4.30.

These things are the least of our troubles. The fact is that the economic conference, so-called, is aimed at the protection that our tariff gives to American workers and manufacturers. If other countries can find their way into our markets competing freely here, regardless of the different standards of living, they will have what they want.

Do not worry if your child happens NOT to be an infant prodigy. Frank Damrosch, who has studied many prodigies in his musical institute, says he "pities the prodigies," with few exceptions. Too early development often means a sudden cessation of development.

In schools where children of a race less highly developed study with children of a higher race, the latter are usually behind in their studies at 6 or 7 years of age. Then they go ahead and those that were leading, go no farther mentally. Facts do not encourage the belief that "all men are created equal."

An interesting experiment has been made by Prof. W. N. Kellog and his wife, who took a 7½-months-old female chimpanzee named Gua from Yale University, and for nine months studied that baby ape, comparing its progress with their own 9-months-old boy. The result is told in a book called "The Ape and the Child," published by Whittlesey House.

The baby monkey showed more intelligence, better memory than the human child, was more obedient, took medicine more willingly, helped to dress itself. The ape was also more jealous and violent, becoming furiously angry when children laughed or pointed at it.

But at the end of nine months, with the ape 16½ months old and the child 18 months, the latter had gone ahead of its monkey playmate. The ape at that age had learned about as much as it would ever know. The child had only BEGUN to learn.

There are among human beings differences as great as that between the Kellogs' child and Gua, the chimpanzee baby.

Some humans stop learning at 10, some at 20, some at 30, the majority before 50, when real study and mental development should BEGIN. We are nearly all dried up mentally at 90, most of us before 75. When the earth is fully populated, and men and women live to be 150 and 200 years, people will devote the last 50 years of their lives to intensive study of the outside universe. Then we shall really have got away from our Simian relatives and our provincial interest in this small earth.

An airplane disaster in Chicago, nine killed, the crash followed by explosion and fire, emphasizes the importance of discovering or creating a non-explosive, non-inflammable airplane fuel. German scientists are working on devices making less dangerous the hydrogen gas that they use in dirigibles, for lack of safe helium, that is an American monopoly.

Certain substances added to the hydrogen gas are said to have rendered it 50 per cent less inflammable already, and Germans hope for some mixture that will make it entirely safe.

A safe fuel for planes is more difficult, but will be found. The perfected airplane Diesel engine will be a long step toward safety and economy.

Mr. Hitler's campaign of "race hygiene" includes a fight against "miscegenation," of mixture of races. Nature, however, as Schopenhauer can tell them, attends to race mixtures. Any German student of history can show them that the successful races have been and are the mixed races.

The Greeks, mixed with blue-eyed-Celts from the North and dozen other races; the Romans, with 50 races from all over Europe and Asia pouring into their peninsula; the French, mixture of Gauls, Germans, Latins; the British mix-

SELECTIVE DEMAND IN THE BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Demand for bonds today was a bit more discriminating than in some recent sessions, but in general the tone of the market was firm most of the day.

Low priced rails continued to command attention, and those logically entitled to a more favorable market position by virtue of improved revenues attracted the most buying interest.

Some of the utilities sold off a point or two, although the communications issues, heavy in the early dealings, improved slightly in the last half of the session. The industrial group was steady to firm with fractional gains fairly numerous.

U. S. Governments carried their early gains up into late market with the Liberty loans making the best showing. Some Brazilian and German issues recorded fair advances at one time in a rather featureless market for foreign loans.

They Want U. S. Markets.
A Chimpanzee Baby.

Mixed Races, Best.

KING GEORGE has recited the speech prepared for him before representatives of the nations gathered at the economic conference in London. The French sent seven members of the Cabinet, their ablest men. Correspondents predict there will be a united "debt movement by Britain and France against the United States." There is talk of "stabilizing the dollar somewhere near the value of the British pound," which a few months ago would have meant shaving one dollar and a half from the value of a five dollar b'". They now suggest a pound worth $4.30.

These things are the least of our troubles. The fact is that the economic conference, so-called, is aimed at the protection that our tariff gives to American workers and manufacturers. If other countries can find their way into our markets competing freely here, regardless of the different standards of living, they will have what they want.

A Most Remarkable Hand for Bidding

RECENTLY some of us went on a visit to Jacksonville, which is at present the bridge center of the South. In a pair tournament in which we played there were about 25 tables, and the following hand was bid in almost as many different ways.

North was dealer, all were vulnerable.

When North Opened the Bidding.

When North opened with a diamond—a ghastly bid, but some still do it—they either got a thoroughly deserved low score or an undeserved top. Some that opened with a diamond played the hand in five—almost the worst score. Others ended with South playing the hand in three no trumps. West is now careful to make a neutral major suit opening lead and only four no trumps can be made. One pair got to six no trumps doubled, and were down two—bottom score. Four pairs got to six diamonds. Two were not doubled and went down a trick, as they played the diamonds to break and lost a diamond and a club. Two were doubled by West and tied for top score, as the double enabled them to make the slam. Plainly, West expected to make a diamond trick and at least one club. Since he would not double six diamonds unless ready also to double six no trumps, he is almost marked with ace-queen of clubs. Declarer was thus forced to make the right plays—to run the ten of diamonds hrough against the jack, and then to play high clubs twice through West, thus setting up a third club on which to discard the losing spade from North's hand. A lucky but really unmerited top score thanks to the double.

When North Passed.

About two-thirds of the players rightly passed the North hand; South bid a no trump, and nearly all the North players now bid two (even three) diamonds. They did not then get beyond three no trumps, but the harm was done and West had been warned not to lead diamonds, so only four no trumps were made. I believe that six no trumps was reached by at least one of the players when North's response was three diamonds. Having only one ace, South should slow up, especially when the partner has shown diamonds and he has only K 10 in that suit. However, some players do not go into these details, but bid boldly on what seem to be big hands. This was indeed a big hand, but only if bid carefully.

The Sims Players

The Sims players did not all tie for top—in fact, none of them got a top because they were not doubled in their slam. Nevertheless, the system proved itself on this hand. North naturally passed and South bid a no trump. North having passed a "near bid" and holding two and a half primary tricks and also a good five-card suit as a reserve playing factor, decided to "take the strain off his partner" and promptly bid three no trumps. I think this is the right response in this position. At this stage in the bidding, I am sorry to say that several South players passed rather hurriedly; relieved at being apparently relieved of any further bidding duty, and seeing only one ace in their hands, they passed. Then again, it may be that they had not paid much attention to Conquering Contract.

The Perfect Bidding.

Three South players had been following these articles very keenly and had taught themselves to wait and visualize with big hands when there was no sign-off bidding by the partner. They recognized a possible slam development here.

Having four kings themselves, they saw that North could hardly have justification for his response without two aces and at least one queen, perhaps two. So why not feel out a slam-try? Surely four no trumps could not be in serious danger on this bidding, if partner must now sign off. Reasoning thus, they bid four hearts, the key bid. North was now able to see that the right denomination had been found. His singleton, the fine diamond suit on which to discard black losers, the opening lead coming up to the strong hand. The stage was set. Six hearts was his response. Only because the bid was so right that it was not doubled did these fine bidders fail to receive top scores. As you see, six hearts is a safe contract, though South must play the hand carefully, especially if diamonds are not the opening lead. He must, after a spade or trump lead, manage his re-entries so as trump a club and a diamond, discarding a spade and a club on the diamonds, and letting West in with the club before playing more than one round of trumps. After a diamond lead, however, the play is simple.

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

1.—It can be much stronger, and often is, because, if one has grown at all, he is a bigger, stronger human being with wider interests, deeper passions, higher ideals. Capacity to love in a greater and more vital way is the surest evidence of inner growth and spiritual development. When Robert Louis Stevenson married the widow, Mrs. Osborne, he said he wanted a woman "Who had served some apprenticeship in love." It is vastly better if this apprenticeship can be carried to its fruition with the first loved one; but if there has been a first love, all the tide and volume of one's greater self can be rightfully expended upon a new love, and life be made to bloom with finer and sweeter fragrance than ever.

2.—Yes, in a high percentage of cases. Mr. George Gardner has summed up in School and Society some of the seeds of future criminality. The first seed is feeble-mindedness. A high percentage of confirmed criminals are of low mentality. The second seed is a tendency to commit small juvenile crimes such as pilfering fruit stands, shop-lifting, etc. The third is difficulty in getting along in school with teachers and fellow pupils. The fourth is the home of low, moral tone. There is a hot-bed of future crime. Psychologists can discover many other seeds and, often, can not only prevent them from germinating but can plant good seeds in their places.

Table Manners

Dear Mrs. Post.

WHEN stuffed celery is served as part of a salad, may one eat it with the fingers? (2) How does one cut heart of lettuce?

Answer: (1) No. Cut with salad knife and eat with fork. If no salad knife is provided, cut celery crosswise with fork. (2) Cut one mouthful at a time with a knife and eat with fork in left hand. If no knife is given you, stab downward with fork prongs, and cut with a leverage motion. If in a restaurant, ask the waiter for a silver knife.

EMILY POST

My dear Mrs. Post:

Answer: During dinner, No. But if you mean after dinner, this is one of those tripping questions that prove me absurdly captious if I say "no," and stamps my failure to uphold the precepts of deportment if I say "yes." But the only sensible answer is: Don't if you can possibly help it. But rather than make the conspicuous gesture of leaving the table and going to the dressing room, and coming back to the table, or making any other equally self-conscious maneuver. YES.

Dear Mrs. Post: What are the most important table manners to remember?

Answer: The fundamental ones of neatness, and never chewing with the mouth open or talking with the mouth full. Eat expertly but not mincingly.

Dear Mrs. Post: When one does not have enough silver of the same patterns to go around, should one alternate with individual places or have the same kind on one side of the table and the other pattern on the other side?

Answer: I think it would be better to put the same kind on one side because only four could see any change, and even that would be on one side only. Alternately, each person would have an implement not matching that of either of his neighbors. (Which he probably wouldn't notice—but then again he might.)

My dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary, or even polite, to ask a guest to say grace at table? We sometimes invite our clergyman to dinner. Should I ask him to say grace before we start to eat?

Answer: A clergyman, yes. A layman, no—unless you know it is his custom to say grace at home.

Our Ignorance

"WON'T YOU," says she, "WRITE ABOUT THE DANGER OF HUMAN CRUELTY?"

"It isn't our cruelty that is most dangerous, Lady.

It's our ignorance—OUR DETERMINED, COMPLACENT IGNORANCE.

We don't plan to hurt the other fellow. We wouldn't vote to have him hurt, and we're truly distressed when we hear that he is hurt. But it stops right there.

For the simple truth is, we don't want our life messed up and our comfort disturbed by the under dog's need; and so we protect ourselves against this hazard by remaining ignorant.

WILLFULLY IGNORANT.

ARROGANTLY IGNORANT.

ELSIE ROBINSON

And we resist, tooth n' toe nail, anyone who tries to penetrate that ignorance with a few plain facts.

Which isn't so dumb as it sounds.

For if we once face the truth we must do something about it—or be branded as the hypocrites and Selfish Meanies which we usually are.

But if we keep insisting that It Isn't So, and if we meet all attempts to prove that it is so with stony-eyed denials and righteous indignation, then who dare cast even a spit-ball at our Great, Warm, Loving, Human Hearts?

Remember the old adage: "When ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise!" Ignorance is always bliss, if it pampers our own laziness, selfishness and conceit; and it's always folly to be wise if, thereby, we're forced to raise the other fellow's wages or remedy the conditions that have hurt him.

How do Respectable People live in this world of injustices and still square things with their consciences? That's how they do it—by refusing to admit that it is a world of injustices, and by putting you in the dog house because you do.

Recently this writer gave a series of talks on the conditions of women and children working in sweat shops. These talks were given before Women's Clubs and P. T. A. Associations.

The women in the audiences were obviously Nice People—the friendly, well-fed, sufficiently intelligent wives, mothers and daughters of comfortable American homes. Not one of them would have been deliberately cruel to a cockroach. Yet it was plain that, after the first gushy lamentations, the plight of the sweatshop workers left them cold.

Oh, of course it was Simply Dreadful!

But, after all, what could they do about it?

Did they then frankly confess that they were just a Big Bunch of Selfish Egotists who didn't care a hoot whether other weary wives and mothers broke their hearts, or other little children were starved and crippled as long as They and Theirs were sitting pretty?

What a fantastic idea! Of course they didn't. To the contrary, they registered every sort of Proper Horror and Regret. But, while doing so, they promptly proceeded to prove exactly why they couldn't and shouldn't do anything about it.

In the second place, even if some of the statements were true, it was no use getting all worked up about People Like That. For those sweatshop people were all Foreigners. And of course Foreigners don't feel the same about things as We Americans Do.

And in the third place, when people got that way it was Probably Their Own Fault. They didn't save when they could. And even if you gave them money, look how they spent it. On movies and cheap jewelry and trash like that.

And, in the fourth place, it was outrageous to upset Nice Women by telling them about things like that. Heaven knows, they were already doing their duty as Good Wives and Mothers and that was enough. Why should they be riled up by such horrors when they'd come to spend a pleasant afternoon?

So, on and on. Do the arguments sound familiar? They should.

A Strange Happening

JELLY BEAR thought it would have served him right if he had felt sick from all the cherries he had eaten without giving one to Honey Bear, but he felt perfectly well—only very guilty. He went down and told Willy Nilly about it.

"I hadn't the heart to tell Honey Bear what a pig I had been," he growled sadly.

"Well, we'll have a supper party tomorrow in her special honor," Willy Nilly answered, "and we'll have cherries for dessert to be shared by all. I gathered a big basket of them early this morning before you were up. Many of us Puddle Muddle like cherries."

"Once I had started I just couldn't stop," Jelly Bear moaned, "but I'll invite the guests to the party now, and I'll behave my Best self."

Christopher Columbus Crow was building a rough nest for himself in the pine tree. Sometimes other Crows came around, but they never said a Crow word to Christopher.

"Of course," Willy Nilly said to himself. "I haven't any more backbone than a piece of moss not to be attending to my chores."

So he set the table, placing the silver knife and fork and spoon before his place and plates for everyone. He put all kinds of food on the table, but in the center he placed the big bowl of cherries.

Then he went upstairs to wash his hands as the guests would soon be arriving. But when he went downstairs to greet them as they came waddling along, he noticed that something very, very strange had happened.

"A thief has been here," he shouted to the astonished guests.

EVERYDAY RELIGION

By THE REV. JOSEPH FORT NEWTON

THOSE GONE BEFORE.

What a stillness death makes when it passes by; how different life has been since he went away. He was young; he had his plans and dreams; the tasks of life beckoned him; its warm loves held him; the birds were singing in his heart—he wanted to live, but he was taken away. It was very strange to me.

The day before he was as gay and facetious as ever, albeit knowing that his end was near. He gave me a paper to be read at his funeral, but not to be opened till peeded. It would relieve me of embarrassment, he explained. There would be less stupidity and lying, he said, if every man wrote out, before going, what he wished to be said. It makes a lump climb into my throat to read it, setting forth in simple words his faith in life.

In those far days—what times we talked the hours away!—he always shied at such issues, and posed as an unbeliever; but I knew it was not so. His life was his religion, and his passing a triumph. Death was there, of course, but nobody minded him. King of terrors? No, nor king of anything. A boy-like thing, I figured him, like the little genius of Greek art, waiting about to open the door.

How often I have thought of my friend since he vanished, trying to follow him in faith and imagination; but it is no use. Yet friendship is friendship, though my friend is no more with me save as a blessed memory. Death does draw a line across many a dear hope, but a life which has been lived does not cease to be. As an achieved reality of moral worth and beauty, his life is a part of the nature of the real.

As others, too, can testify, the ideals of my friend did not die when he died, and the world is a very different place because he left his impress upon it. "If we still love those we lose," asks Thackeray, "can we altogether lose those we love?" No; from behind the hills my friend fortifies my faith that death is an end but not the end, and that those who love God never meet for the last time. O, my friend!

Indiana, naturally dry, voted heavily for repeal of prohibition, and now an Iowa straw vote shows 64 per cent for repeal, surprising certain fanatics that ought not to be surprised.

The rejection of prohibition, after too long experiment, is due to the MOTHERS. They were told that prohibition would "empty the jails, put an end to crime, create a young generation ignorant of the taste of alcohol." They were TOLD that, but they have lived to see young boys and girls drunk, with alcohol the greatest problem of youth.

It will encourage you to know that the "slump," with all the harm that it has done, has added to church membership. At the beginning of the year, churches in the United States had 50,037,209 enrolled members, a new record. SCIENTISTS PROVE this Soap is wonderful aid in keeping skin Young-looking

Hollywood does. 686 out of the 694 important Hollywood actresses use fragrant, white Lux Toilet Soap because they find it keeps skin so deliciously smooth . . . radiant . . . young-looking. But WHY does it do this?

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Nature, you know, puts certain precious elements into every type of skin. Youthful skin is rich in them. But these elements are gradually lost as the years go by. Then skin grows tragically dull, old-looking.

NOW scientists bring good news: You can check the loss of these precious elements! For laboratory tests show this soap actually contains precious elements skin itself has—and must have to stay youthful.

Now she wouldn't know until the train pulled in, and she was dreading with all her heart the hour that was left for her to wait. Last night and this morning had gone all wrong anyhow. If Ray didn't come, she didn't know what she was to do with Vicki.

No dinner last night. Vicki didn't feel like eating, either. Hardly any breakfast this morning, with both of them thinking the same thing. The unspoken words a barrier between them. Vicki's eyes hurt, appealing, the quiver on her lips frightening her mother. If they could talk it out—they couldn't. Mrs. Arlen had tried and failed. Vicki didn't want to talk about it, but she could think of nothing else.

"It was the only thing I could do, wasn't it, Ginger?" Mary Arlen asked the orange cat who was brushing her ankles with her long plume-like tail. Ginger gave a soft, whining reply, and Mrs. Arlen nodded. She had acquired the habit since Vicki had gone to John's to live of accepting the cat as a human.

"If it's a mistake, well it's a mistake. That's all. And I'll try to make it up to Vicki some way. If I only didn't have to go to the station, Ginger. If only Vicki would go—" She sighed and again the cat whined and when she left the bedroom, followed her downstairs into the dining room where Vicki was pretending to read last night's Crofton Press.

"It's after eleven, Vicki, and you know the train gets in at twelve," she reminded her daughter. "Hadn't you better dress?" Suggesting it that way so Vicki alone. . . . .

"He won't be on it." The girl didn't take her eyes from the paper, but her mother knew she didn't see a line of the type.

"He might—and you should be there—"

"I'm telling you, mother, he won't come."

VICKI wasn't going with her. She'd have to go alone. And, if he came, explain about the telegram, about Vicki. And if he didn't come, there was Vicki. Bad each way for her. Worse, though, if the train came without him and she had to come back to the house and face Vicki's disappointment.

"Well, I'm going then." Their lips met, and Vicki's were soft and moist and trembling.

There were her steps on the porch, on the stairs, the click of the gate as she opened it, duller steps on the sidewalk. Then Vicki couldn't hear anything but the ticking of the clock, and Ginger's purring on the hearth rug.

If Ray came, he and her mother would come back from the station in a taxi. She'd hear the car stopping at the door. When you met guests at the station in Crofton, if you didn't have car, you always brought them home in a taxi. There were two in Crofton, and almost the only time they did any business was at train time.

Was that a curl of smoke out there? No, a cloud. Vicki took her handkerchief and rubbed the clean glass to make sure. It was smoke. The train was coming in. The whistle would blow soon. . . . It did, a long blast that could be heard even on Elm street.

After that, there was silence, and the ticking of the clock. The girl got herself a drink of water, and went back into the dining room to sit by the fire. The train was in by now. If Ray were on it, he and her mother would be back at 12:10 in a car. If not—Mrs. Arlen would walk, and it would be perhaps 12:20 before she came.

Twelve-ten. No car. Not even the sound of one down the road. Vicki didn't dare to go to the door. She didn't think she could walk that far. She'd give them five more minutes before she gave up hope. Surely the car would be here by 12:15.

At 12:15, except for the clock, the silence was distressing, oppressive, and Vicki's heart was beating very fast. The taxis might have been busy. They might have had to wait. . . . Sometimes you did have to wait for a second or a third trip. She was remembering that once when she had met John, they had had to wait a long time, and finally they had walked home. . . .

• • •

AT 12:40 she heard footsteps on the walk, and she held her breath. Her mother, coming alone. He hadn't come then. Some one was unlatching the gate. . . . fumbling with the lock. Steps on the porch, a hand on the door.

Vicki picked up the paper and

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT.

MRS. ARLEN was worried as she dressed about 11 o'clock the next morning. The train from Chicago got in at noon, and if Vicki didn't intend to go down to the station to meet Ray, she did. After her wire someone had to receive him.

No telegram had come from Ray, and she had thought he might wire that he was coming, or wasn't coming if that was the case. She hadn't called the telegraph office. That wasn't necessary because if a wire did come for her or for Vicki, Mr. Griffin, who had been the operator for years, would call immediately. In Crofton telegrams were important, vital.

Still, he might have wired either yes or no, Mrs. Arlen mused, as she got into the blue dress once more. Now she wouldn't know until the train pulled in, and she was dreading with all her heart the hour that was left for her to wait. Last night and this morning had gone all wrong anyhow. AT 12:40 she heard footsteps on the walk, and she held her breath. Her mother, coming alone. He hadn't come then. Someone was unlatching the gate. . . . fumbling with the lock. Steps on the porch, a hand on the door.

Vicki picked up the paper and started to look through it, holding it up to her face so her mother wouldn't see her eyes when she came into the room.

The footsteps were in the hall. They were getting closer. Firm, heavy steps, for her mother was tired after her long walk. They were pausing at the open door of the dining room. The girl did not glance up from the paper. The type was blurred, dancing.

"Aren't you going to say anything to me, Vicki?" Ray's voice. Ray standing at the door, gazing at her. Ray—

Half an hour later Mrs. Arlen tiptoed up the back steps and came softly into the kitchen. Ginger was meowing plaintively near her empty saucer under the sink.

"Hush!" and before Mrs. Arlen put down the two bundles, she went to the door that led into the dining room and closed it gently. Not that it mattered how quiet she was or how noisy. Vicki and Ray were unconscious of anyone but themselves. The murmur of their voices crept through the closed door.

Smiling to herself Mrs. Arlen deposited her two bundles and poured out some milk for Ginger. It was long past her lunch time and she was a greedy cat.

"It worked, Ginger," Mrs. Arlen whispered hoarsely to Ginger as she started lapping up the milk. "It worked. If it hadn't, I'd have been stumped. He came, and I had to tell him what was what. That Vicki was making herself sick worrying about him, loving him.

"I talked to him all the way from the station to the corner of Elm street and Maple, and there I remembered an errand I had to do, and left him to come on alone. I told him where to find Vicki.

"When I closed the door just now, she had her head on his shoulder, so I know it's all right. All a foolish misunderstanding. He thought she didn't love him, and she thought he didn't love her. You'd think they were babes in a cradle. . . .

"Somebody had to do something, Ginger. And that somebody was me. You see, I know all about misunderstandings. I had one myself once with Vicki's father two years before we were married.

"And I had nobody to fix things up for me, and if Providence hadn't taken a hand and sent Jim Arlen back to Elyria on a business trip, and if I hadn't met him accidentally on the street with my arms full of bundles, and one of the bundles hadn't dropped at his very feet, there wouldn't have been a John and Vicki, and I probably would have lived and died a fine spinster.

"And I wouldn't make a good spinster, Ginger. I've too much of the mother in me for that. But if Jim and I had been sensible, understanding people, John would have been two years older than he is. So there."

* * *

GINGER saw clearly, and nuzzled Mrs. Arlen's hand.

"And after lunch," Mrs. Arlen continued solemnly, "I'm going to call Reverend Chapman. He won't be in yet, because I passed him when I was walking up with Ray, and he was going in to see Mrs. White. She'll keep him at least an hour. I'm going to tell him that we'll have the wedding tonight or tomorrow morning. Vicki and Ray won't mind, and it'll take a big weight off my mind. . . .

"Ray's a nice boy, isn't he? A lot like John, don't you think? I was right proud to be walking up the street with him"—She stopped abruptly for Ray came into the kitchen and went to the telephone. She hoped he hadn't heard what she had been saying. . . .

He hadn't. He was composing a telegram to Leroy Pickens of the Estes Park Realty Co., telling Pickens to take his lot off the market list. Mr. Pickens was perturbed when he got it, but followed orders.

The Rhodes hadn't gone through with their option, but he was on the point of signing a new deal which would have given him a nice commission, and Mr. Lawrence $500 more than he had paid for the property.

(The End.)

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

VICKI ARLEN and RAY LAWRENCE are happily engaged until Vicki insists on six months of pleasure-hunting before she marries him. Vicki only wants to avoid yearning for amusement after she is his wife. The theory is based on the marriage of her brother, JOHN, who failed to realize the importance of CAROL'S desire for occasional recreation.

Ray agrees to the plan, but it proves to be the undoing of their engagement. Vicki arouses his jealousy by dating SCOTT JAMESON frequently, and before long Ray starts to date another girl. Vicki is completely stunned by his suggestion that they break off their engagement. Heartsick, she returns his ring.

Restless and unhappy, she finally gives up her job and goes back to her mother in Crofton. After Vicki mopes about for a few days, MRS. ARLEN takes matters into her own hands and wires Ray to come at once.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

SUMMER CLOTHES for BUSINESS

AITHRA HOLLAND

By SYLVIA STILES.

WHEN the thermometer starts soaring and the pavements begin sticking to the soles of our shoes, the business woman's annual wail is heard.

"If I only had something really cool to wear to work," she moans. "There's the laundering problem, the mussy-look problem, and the danger of my boss thinking I'm mistaking his important business conference for an afternoon garden party."

"Pooh," replies her homemaker sister, who is knitting coolly in her own back yard. "I can't see why you have to consider yourself different from the rest. I'd wear anything I pleased just so it is comfortable."

"A sun-back beach dress, I suppose," continues the sister. "Or the new organdie I bought for Janet's wedding. Both ideally suited to the downtown offices and streets, I'm sure."

But the homemaker sister with a few mumbled remarks about exaggeration goes about her knitting, and the business woman is still puzzling over what to wear tomorrow.

* * *

The "wear what you please" forces are legion in number and when a summer begins as hotly as this one has, their numbers increase. But some business houses have clothes rules which must be obeyed, and certain business women not handicapped by rules, have their own ideas as to what is appropriate for business wear and what is not.

Fortunately the summer styles are kinder than usual to business women. Dresses with jackets are the leading fashion. And a jacket, no matter how sheer, adds a tailored aspect to an otherwise dressy costume. The vogue of linen suits is a boon to the business woman, especially the suits of dark colored linens. The white and natural linen suits look most impressive in the morning but when both mussed and soiled later in the day they lose much of their appeal.

If a woman wants to be rid of the laundering problem that is obviously linked with white linen and many of the light silks and cottons, she can attire herself in prints. They do not show the soil so easily, especially if the all-over patterns are selected. Jacket dresses of the so-called non-crushable voile and of washable silks are ideal for business wear. The navy and brown eyelet jacket dresses likewise look and feel cool. Costumes like these are equally attractive when worn with dark hat and shoes as they are with white. So by changing the accessories two different ensembles are created. Synthetic fabrics with the silk jersey look are cool and do not muss easily. The shirtwaist fabrics either of silk or cotton can be selected in diagonal stripes that do not show soil and have a cool appearance.

* * *

THE woman who insists upon wearing white regardless of the fact that she may need a closet full of white dresses, or else spend every night over the washtub, can simplify the laundering problem by the careful selection of fabrics. Cotton matelasses have such a rough surface that they need little ironing. Seersuckers which have come up in the fashion world also save energy, and gingham should not be overlooked as a practical fabric. Separate jackets of linen or pique may be worn with any number of summer dresses, giving them a tailored look which they do not have without them.

Cottons not only look cool, but are cool and the clever business woman chooses her wardrobe this summer with this thought in mind. Many who are successful both from a clothes and career standpoint have been heard to say recently, "I intend to dress entirely in cotton all summer." And they mean what they say, including foundation and under garments as well as dresses and accessories of cotton fabrics.

Those who haven't become so completely convinced that cotton serves every purpose will include a printed silk and perhaps a dark sheer in their tailored wardrobes. The sheer may be enlivened by white or patterned trimming, but the more white that it displays the more work of pressing and laundering will be involved.

The four business women sketched aren't worried about the weather because they have chosen their clothes with special care from the selections available in St. Louis stores. The one at upper left is stepping out to lunch in a costume with a cosmopolitan air. It is a navy sheer brightened because of its union with a blue and white light weight checked silk. The check forms the yoke and short sleeves of the dress and the little straight jacket which ends slightly below the waistline. The front of the blouse is slashed and the opening outlined with tiny white pearl buttons. A white mousseline flower contributes an airy decoration. A white sailor is worn, but a blue hat, either large or small, would be equally attractive.

The girl sketched at lower left of this figure should be as cool as the proverbial cucumber because of her cotton jacket frock. This is of navy cotton mesh embroidered in white cotton, suggesting an all-over circle pattern. The skirt gets its fullness by means of gores, so there are no pleats to need pressing. The blouse has the wide shoulder line, thereby eliminating the necessity of sleeves. A blue grosgrain belt has buttons at either side of the front where the jacket fastens to it. A narrow roll collar is an unusual feature of the coat. The band on the hat exactly matches the blue of the belt.

* * *

AT lower right is sketched a white dress of the type which the younger business women can wear downtown with ease and comfort. It is of cotton matelasse and, although cut with very short sleeves (or rather elongated shoulders in place of sleeves), it is devoid of frilly aspects. A tie of brown and white striped cotton laces through the metal rings on the front of the blouse. The belt has the same type of metal eyelets. A jacket of white or dark colored cotton will ensemble effectively with such a dress, which, because of its texture, can be easily laundered.

In the panel is sketched an efficient looking girl at work in her office. She looks even more capable because of her black linen frock. This is a double-breasted model with rows of white bone buttons put to practical use. The cape sleeves are in three tiers. Revers of the linen are overlaid with collar and revers of white dotted pique and there are two pique flowers for good measure. This dress is one of the most interesting that has appeared thus far this season. It is available in white linen, in dotted sheer and in a criss-cross crepe material.

That the newest thing in movies, recently perfected, is a process that will serve the comedies best. (You will see a human, a horse or anything chasing various parts of the body!)

That Marie Dressler never uses makeup as do all the others on the screen. (She had to, however, for "Dinner at 8.")

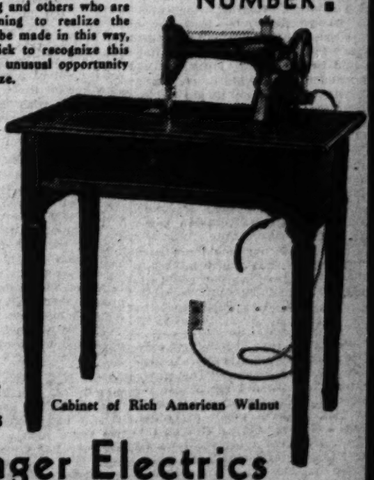

That the best beer in Hollywood is the "Carta Blanca" ($6.25 a case). It is imported from Mexico. American lager costs $3.75 a case. (None of it will ever take the place of a highball!)

That when Emil Jannings first came here he was guaranteed good beer, but all the influence at Washington couldn't promote it. "He's an actor, not an ambassador!" officials at the Capitol reminded. (Every two weeks his movie sponsors had to smuggle a truck load, about 150 cases, from Mexico. At $1 a pint!)

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

A Strange Happening

JELLY BEAR thought it would have served him right if he had felt sick from all the cherries he had eaten without giving one to Honey Bear, but he felt perfectly well—only very guilty. He went down and told Willy Nilly about it.

"I hadn't the heart to tell Honey Bear what a pig I had been," he growled sadly.

"Well, we'll have a supper party tomorrow in her special honor," Willy Nilly answered, "and we'll have cherries for dessert to be shared by all. I gathered a big basket of them early this morning before you were up. Many of us like Puddle Muddle like cherries."

"Once I had started I couldn't stop," Jelly Bear moaned, "but I'll invite the guests to the party now, and I'll behave my Bear self."

Christopher Columbus Crow was building a rough nest for himself in the pine tree. Sometimes other Crows came around, but they never said a Crow word to Christopher.

"Of course," Willy Nilly said to himself. "I haven't any more backbone than a piece of moss not to be attending to my chores."

So he set the table, placing his silver knife and fork and spoon before his place and plates for everyone. He put all kinds of food on the table, but in the center he placed the big bowl of cherries.

Then he went upstairs to wash his hands as the guests would soon be arriving. But when he went downstairs to greet them as they came waddling along, he noticed that something very, very strange had happened.

"A thief has been here," he shouted to the astonished guests.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

by MARTHA CARR

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WOULD you mind advising me on the following case. A man and his wife nearing 45 years old, married some 15 years; two sons, 14 and 12; husband earns a good salary. All is well, with the following exception:

The wife cannot bear to have he husband within looking distance of other women—aged from 15 to 50 years; even if the other woman is a first cousin or neice. To keep peace the husband gave up all visiting, gave up going to movies, working on lawn or in garden, gave up all contact with friends. When they occasionally go out together to social gatherings, when it is impossible to refuse, the occasion ends in a violent quarrel, and sometimes the wife attacks another woman at the gathering. This began on the train on the wedding trip and the tragedy of the situation is that it is growing worse. But peace must be kept for the sake of the children.

Now she becomes more and more positive in her suspicions and accusations, where there is not and never has been any grounds for her belief in his infidelity. When she is begged to desist, before the children, she retorts, "I want them to know the kind of father they have so they may never trust him."

She has an allowance which she refuses to spend on the house but has recklessly speculated in stocks and threatens to "make a scandal" if this allowance is reduced. And she has a way of living up to her threats, making scenes in his office, etc.

She loves him but with a savage, fiercely possessive and jealous love which extends to his work, his men friends and even to his appearance. He still has some attachment for her, but her irrational behavior has given him a contempt for her mentality.

About everything else, she is certainly sane in a legal sense. What's wrong? How may this self-imposed torture be ended? Would you suggest a method for handling, in an equitable manner, the family expenses on $4000 a year salary? The husband wishes to be just to her and to his children, but, at the same time he does not feel he should throw away his life—that which is yet left to him. ZAP.

Jealousy is one manifestation of fear, and in its unreasoning misery will warp and bring disease. While the victim of it suffers untold agony through her accusations and falsehoods, perfectly conscious of them, she is so swayed by the storm of emotion, that the desire to hurt is even stronger than the emotion which inspires her love.

If it is possible to get this wife to a psychiatrist, I believe there might be a solution. Reason, which cannot be inspired by the love of her children, is too much to expect now. Perhaps another alternative would be an effort to get her interested in some kind of civic and charitable work, or if she is inclined, in swimming or sports of some kind.

I am sorry I cannot help you about the budget. Your social and public responsibilities would have to be taken into account and the individual requirements of members of your family. Hence, I would not be quite able to judge for you.

But I think you would not gain anything by making your wife's allowance more than you could afford.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WANT to go swimming very bad, but my parents make different excuses, saying, "The water is too high" (and I am 5 feet 1¼ inches tall.) My father says that I'll get sick. I have gone at other times and never did get sick on the water. We have a big pond where there is a diving board. I can swim. Please tell me how to convince them or tell me why you think they won't let me go. SWIM LOVER.

Maybe you are just a little bit venturesome. Ask them to let you go, if you can find some good swimmer and older person who would see that you didn't take too many chances.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM 17 years old, considered good-looking, can dance, but do not drink or smoke or pet. All my girl friends like me, but I haven't one boy friend.

I am deaf in one ear and the doctors say there is no hope for me ever to hear again in that ear. When I am introduced to a boy at a party, he almost always asks me to dance and I try my best to act as if I am not deaf, but later in the evening, he finds out about this and never asks me to dance again. And sometimes a boy would ask me out to a show or some place, but he asks only once. Now the boys have been taking me out and quitting me so long, that I feel that deafness is a disgrace. My parents have tried to make me forget the idea, but I can't do it. I can read lips, but that doesn't help me. Please tell me what to do. I am so miserable. NOT WANTED.

Had you ever thought that perhaps it is not your deafness, but something else which makes the trouble? Do you dance really well? And are you as neat in every way as you possibly can be—careful about your person and clothing? And have you anything to talk about?

You may be able to guess at the words the lips form, but unless you have studied lip reading scientifically, and faithfully, I imagine you make a good many mistakes. I would lose no time taking up this study. There are both night and day classes and you can have private tutors too.

Send me a self-addressed and stamped envelope and lets see if you cannot get some suggestions from my article on "Popularity," which I will send you.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a man 26 years old and have known a girl, 22, for about a year and went steady with her when she was in my home town. She now lives in a distant city with her sister and has a small job which she says is very hard and unsatisfactory. I really love this girl and would like to go with her steady, if she would remain at home. She writes real often, and of course I do, but I get tired of this sort of thing and want to be with her in person. Also as she is the only girl I really care about I don't enjoy going with anyone else.

The last time she was home I told her I didn't like this kind of business and asked her to marry me, and if she did not want to get married now to give me an idea when we might. Her answer was that she loved me, that there was no one else and there wouldn't be, but she didn't want to make me a promise for fear she might not be able to keep it and she wants to be free for some time yet. Now do you think she is sincere in all of this? Or am I at fault? Do you think I have asked too much from a girl who says she loves me?

Life would seem more worth living if I had something to look forward to. Also, I could get along much further in life if I could be settled down, as I am financially able and am certainly old enough. I want to be absolutely fair with her and I feel I can't give her up; but, sometimes, I think I am just wasting my time. In a case like this, just what should be my attitude and how should I proceed?

I believe I would take the girl at her word, in fact, for a while, (and possibly a little suddenly) give her all the time and freedom she wants, with the inference that she might get more if she cares for it.

Sometimes a little competition helps wonderfully, and it may be just what she needs. Even if she is really sincere (and I believe she must be) she may just have the feeling that she wants a little longer freedom; so that she may be sure it is right for both of you. Girls who really care deeply are sometimes a little marriage-shy, because of the evidence of mistakes around them. Even a few months may change her attitude, and it would be worth it not to urge or make too much of the delay.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WOULD you kindly advise me on a little problem?

I had been going steady for two years with a young chap and lately he has been dating someone else. One evening my brother saw him with another girl at a dance. Since then he has not 'phoned or dated me. This has happened once before. When he was tired of the other girl he came back to me.

I am planning for my vacation to take a trip to Oklahoma. It is a tiresome trip to make alone on the train, and the bus leaves me out about 29 miles from my destination.

Do you, personally, think it a good idea to ask this chap to drive me there in his car? He has a brand-new car and stays at home with his parents. He hasn't been working for 15 months. I would gladly give him the money I spend on train fare for gas and oil. He wouldn't have any further expenses because we would stay at some friend's home in Oklahoma.

In a way I don't see any harm in asking him, but then, too, there's the other side of the story. SUE CAROL.

Probably the boy would think it rather presumptuous, if he has been so independent with you, not to say indifferent. And another thing I should hesitate, in your place, because of the expense involved, and the difficulty in settling this matter.

From the standpoint of conventionality, I think you would make a mistake, too. It is a long trip and would involve your stopping at hotels en route, which always gives "Mrs. Grundy" a chance to make faces behind your back. And that is an unnecessary and unpleasant experience for a young girl.

ALL NICE MEN ARE MARRIED

CHAPTER TWO.

"Get up—get up—get up! He's coming for you at six o'clock. It's five-thirty now. You'll never make it. Get up! Get up, I say."

But the moment she recalled the significance of that engagement she was wide-awake. Alert.

"It's going to be a gorgeous day," she thought, unpinning the curtains from above her opened windows.

Her one room apartment was large but simply furnished. Arthur's roses were on the desk. Shelves crowded with books lined the walls. But there was none of the bric-a-brac a girl living alone ordinarily collects. Men liked the cool comfort of her chints covered chairs and plain green shaded lights, but women were apt to say, "It looks rather bare, dear! Why don't you add more of your own things?"

She pulled a bright, blue, sports silk over her head, thinking happily, "Arthur may want to come in for a few moments before we go to the train if—" and stopped unwilling to put into words his indefinite promise of the night before.

"I've something to tell you," he had said, "but not tonight. It will be easier in the sunshine tomorrow." Her golf bag was in her hand before the telephone anounced that he was in the lobby.

As she waited for the elevator, she was saying to herself, "I'm glad I planned to go home this Sunday. Perhaps Arthur would like to go with me. I believe I'll ask him. Father will approve of him."

At last she was entering the deserted lobby. Arthur, dressed in fresh brown linen, rose to meet her. She was amazed at the violent contraction of her heart as he murmured, "Good morning, Janice," in that voice she had learned to listen for—

He helped her into his car and they drove away as they had done nearly every morning for the last three weeks.

"Plenty of sunshine this morning," Janice ventured gayly.

"Isn't there?" he smiled. "It's a perfect day for golf. If we hurry we will have time for 18 holes."

* * *

ARRIVED at Hillcrest, Janice waited on the wide cool porch while Arthur went inside for his clubs. His manner puzzled her. She had supposed they would feel closer than ever after their conversation of the night before. Instead he seemed more formal than he had been on their first golf game. No use to worry about it. Janice knew enough about men to suspect that he would tell her when he was ready and not before.

BEGIN HERE:

When ARTHUR DOUGLAS asks 27-year-old JANICE MEADE why she isn't married, Janice retorts that all the interesting men she has met in the last five years have been married. "Present company excepted," she adds, and means it.

For the last three weeks she has spent every spare moment with Arthur, who had been only a business acquaintance before, and Janice discovers that she is losing her heart to him. Something she is at a loss to explain restrains him from making love to her. After a Saturday afternoon picnic Arthur parts with, "I've something to tell you . . . tomorrow," and promises to pick her up for their early morning game of golf.

She smiled in her usual, friendly fashion as he returned tothe porch and together they strolled toward the first tee. Janice lifted her driver from the bag and Arthur watched closely as she stood outlined against the sky, indulging in a preparatory swing. There was grace as well as vigor in her follow through.

Their game progressed as usual. Both played consistently and conservatively. His score was less apt to vary than here but at the eighteenth hole Arthur became conspicuously nervous. Starting with a wicked slice from the tee, he finished with five inexcusable putts, which surprised Janice.

"That was terrible," he admitted, frowning.

They had started towards the club house when he finally spoke again.

"I'm upset because I realize this will have to be our last game together."

"Was that what you intended to tell me?"

"I should have explained to you sooner, Janice, I intended to, but some way I never seemed to get around to it."

"You're married! Oh, Arthur! Why didn't you tell me?"

"At first it seemed unnecessary. Then when I knew you better I didn't want to."

The realization of his reason for not wanting to tell her stained her cheeks with anger. He had been reluctant to admit it because of her admiration and affection. He had permitted her to think his attentions were those of an unattached man.

"And what is she going to think when someone tells her we have been at Hillcrest together every day for the last three weeks?" Janice managed to ask levelly.

"I'll tell her myself," he said self-consciously. "She's a very understanding person and there's been nothing wrong about it except that I should have explained to you in the beginning."

"If you had, it wouldn't have happened. I don't play around with married men."

"Please don't be angry, Janice! I'm sorry if I've hurt you. I've just drifted along enjoying these few weeks of innocent fun we've had together."

* * *

HER hurt, brown eyes accused him. Janice doubted if even his wife, broadminded as she might be about the golf games, would overlook the things he had said on their picnic last night.

They were climbing the steps of the clubhouse when he continued earnestly, "Forgive me, Janice! You make me feel like a cad. Please try to see my side of it."

"I can't," she admitted curtly.

She would not pretend it didn't matter. Would not carry it off with a laugh and let him think she didn't care.

"I hate men like you," she declared hotly. "Husbands in love with their own wives but never too much so to try to make another girl fall for them. That may be your idea of love. It isn't mine."

She would not even wait for the breakfast they usually shared in the grill room. In cold, unhappy silence he drove her home, saying as they reached her apartment house, "I'm dreadfully sorry, Janice! I had no idea you'd take it like this."

"There's no other way I can take it," she retorted truthfully.

She changed her clothes in a blind frenzy of haste although she had plenty of time to make her train. How could she have thought Arthur was falling in love with her? She had imagined her father's approval. What would he think if he knew she had spent every moment of her leisure time for three weeks with a man who was married?

Why hadn't she suspected it, she demanded of herself, slumping uncomfortably into a chair in the parlor car upon boarding her train for home. Why hadn't she tried to find out? The fact that such a thing hadn't entered her mind seemed ridiculous when she looked back at it.

She could see now that Arthur had had all the trade-marks of a husband. His quiet understanding, his gentleness and consideration were traits no man seemed able to acquire without being married.

What a sap she had been! Letting him kiss her hands and call her darling! Oh, it was too humiliating! If she lived to be a hundred she would never be able to erase the memory of herself in his arms. Patting his cheek in that silly, womanish fashion. Answering, "Yes, darling!" like a blind, infatuated school girl.

Janice clenched small, furious fists, blinking rapidly to keep the tears in her eyes from streaming down her face. She was not conscious of the good-looking, well-dressed young man sitting across from her until he cried gayly, "Well, hello there, Miss Meade!"

Janice stared at him blankly and as she did so two big tears spilled over and rolled down her cheeks.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

by WYNN

For Wednesday, June 14.

ONE of those days when everything depends on the way you direct yourself and your affairs. Uncontrolled folks are apt to make mistakes leading to scandal, accident or business loss—but you are not uncontrolled, are you?

What We See.

We do not see the sun. Or the moon or stars. That is something that modern science is accepting generally now, and it is well that such is their new method of thinking. What we see are the rays of the sun and other bodies. This may seem like a pretty and inconsequential difference at first, but it is really revolutionary and would have been cause for official condemnation awhile back; it is as great a difference as was Galileo's "heretical" statement that the earth travels around the sun. It was the truth that he spoke, but it was not what was being taught in those days; and he suffered much for more than sixteen years from the ungentle power of the Inquisition. But we are more broadminded now; we are willing to investigate and learn.

Your Year Ahead.

Wise to make the utmost of the twelve months ahead for pushing business plans, if this is your natal day, but keep emotion of the negative sort out of it; you can make much progress if you will try. Better Dec. 3 to Jan. 26. Now is the time to make up for any lost ground of the past. Keep trying! Avoid rash moves, temper, accident, between Oct. 30 and Nov. 9; also Feb. 28 to March 4.

Tomorrow.

Keep good judgment sitting on the throne of your mind; avoid haste and hurry.

SHE ATE ALL-BRAN TWELVE YEARS WITH FINE RESULTS

Delicious Cereal Relieves Constipation

Read this very enthusiastic letter:

"Something like eleven or twelve years ago, I began eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. When I started, it was called simply Kellogg's Bran, and I believe it was one of the first products of the kind on the market.

"My friends often laugh at my fondness for ALL-BRAN. It gives such a clean taste in the mouth, and I do not feel satisfied until I have had my ALL-BRAN.

"If the Kellogg Company should ever stop manufacturing ALL-BRAN, here is one who would be greatly disappointed."—Miss Amy Person, University Park, Iowa.

Science says that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. How much safer than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily for most types of constipation. For serious cases, try it three times daily. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALMOST as good as a padlock is the scissors fastener on a new handbag. Two metal clamps shaped very much like scissors are placed at either side of the bag. When you want to get your money out you press on either side and the top flies open. The pocketbook is opened by closing the scissors at the top. Anyone not informed about this clever scheme would have to tear the bag apart in order to get a look at the contents.

A foundation garment that is rolled on as though it were a stocking is creating a sensation among the gals who like to have a sleek figure but want to wear a minimum of clothes. This is a sort of three-in-one arrangement, too, so that s' that is needed to complete an undergarment ensemble is a princess slip. A combination of a mercerized fabric and one with the two-way stretch makes possible this magical method of keeping a figure trim in the summertime.

The fad for bright colored sportswear knows no limitations. After seeing dresses, hats and beach togs in the brick and tangerine shades, the idea has been expanded to include hosiery. One sportswear shop that endeavors to lead the way in fashions is advocating a shade called orange peel. It is as bright as the name indicates, and makes all of the deep suntan hosiery shades look like washed-out pastels.

If a child tires of his toys he can amuse himself by studying the animal that is embroidered or appliqued on his new play suit. The sun suits for wee tots may be made of any cotton fabric from seersucker to a printed dimity but it is safe to say that not one will deviate from the policy of animal adornment.

As dainty and also as chic as any summer hat you'll find is a sailor made completely of white dotted swiss. The brim isn't very wide and assumes a saucy appearance because the swiss is stretched so tightly from edge to edge. The crown goes in for a bit of draping—enough to relieve any severity of line that the brim might be attempting.

The Empire era continues to impress its atmosphere upon modern decoration. Several new and interesting pieces of ivory glazed china are on display to prove how effective Empire ware mingles with less formal creations. The gold and white background that one expects to see is here in all its glory as are the dainty but conventional flower designs. One covered dish attracts the eye and will serve many uses.

Remember the old photographs where grandmother was wearing a belt so wide that it had a corset look? Well, we may be in for the same thing if the belts continue to get wider. Sketched is an illustration of the trend. This girdle-like belt is of white waffle pique and is worn with a red and white checked silk sports frock. Caps over the shoulder also are of the pique.

Lingerie departments are turning to cotton to satisfy the woman who is determined to wear this product from inside out. Slips of white and pastel batistes look cool and dainty, and those flowered nighties of dimity are selling as fast as they arrive. Valenciennes lace ruffles trim the nighties but most of the slips are very tailored and plain.

Since mirror effects are in vogue both for dress and home decorations, there is a tendency to have all metal shine so that it takes on a mirror appearance. Chromium is a master at the art. One large round tray seen in a St. Louis shop appears on first glance to have a mirrored surface, but upon close inspection turns out to be our new friend, chromium. You get a lot of brilliance as well as service with a modest investment.

A combination of cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg and ginger makes a very good flavoring for cakes, cookies or puddings. Use twice as much cinnamon as any other one spice.

HEALTH

Controlling Cough

THERE is a bit of common doggerel, the first line of which runs, "It isn't the cough that carries you off."

Nevertheless, while the cough may not "carry you off," sometimes it is the worst and most trying phase of the disease.

Chronic bronchitis, for instance, would be bearable if it were not for the annoying cough. In tuberculosis coughing may actually endanger the life of the patient, because it prevents him from having proper rest.

It is of value, therefore, in a given number of diseases, to control the cough. This may be accomplished by the use of certain medicines. However, in chronic diseases and under certain circumstances, the prolonged use of expectorants, as these drugs are called, is not desirable.

Other methods of controlling coughing must be applied by the patient in person.

A cough is an explosive discharge of air from the respiratory system, made to clear the chest, the trachea and the larynx of accumulated mucus or other substances.

In so far as it serves this end, cough is desirable; but, like so many other reflex actions, it may be carried to an extreme, when it produces more harm than good.

In coughing the respiratory tract is first closed, the chest is compressed, its air content thus being placed under pressure. The larynx is opened quickly and the air issues with an explosive force.

Coughing can therefore be controlled by preventing closure of the larynx and by preventing the explosive opening.

When the irritation is more severe, the coughing reflex can be counteracted by short, rapid breaths, which do not allow the larynx enough time for closing.

A deep inspiration followed by a holding of the breath will also help in suppressing the urge to cough.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE
» by WYNN «

For Wednesday, June 14.

ONE of those days when everything depends on the way your direct yourself and your affairs. Uncontrolled folks are apt to make mistakes leading to scandal, accident or business loss—but you are not uncontrolled, are you?

What We See.

We do not see the sun. Or the moon or stars. That is something that modern science is accepting generally now, and it is well that such is their new method of thinking. What we see are the rays of the sun and other bodies. This may seem like a pretty and inconsequential difference at first, but it is really revolutionary and would have been cause for official condemnation awhile back; it is as great a difference as was Galileo's "heretical" statement that the earth travels around the sun. It was the truth that he spoke, but it was not what was being taught in those days; and he suffered much for more than sixteen years from the ungentle power of the Inquisition. But we are more broadminded now; we are willing to investigate and learn.

Your Year Ahead.

Wise to make the utmost of the twelve months ahead for pushing business plans, if this is your natal day, but keep emotion of the negative sort out of it; you can make much progress if you will try. Better Dec. 3 to Jan. 26. Now is the time to make up for any lost ground of the past. Keep trying! Avoid rash moves, temper, accident, between Oct. 30 and Nov. 9; also Feb. 28 to March 4.

Tomorrow.

Looks 10 Years Younger Brushes Away Gray Hair

Now you can really look years younger. With an ordinary small brush you just tint those streaks or patches of gray back to your natural shade whether blonde, brown or black. It is so easy to do—at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years success. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Defies detection. No telltale, "dyed" look. Cannot affect waving of hair.

No need to guess. First cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not give your gray, streaked, dull, or faded hair its natural color, youth and luster, your money back. Only 50c.

SHE ATE ALL-BRAN TWELVE YEARS WITH FINE RESULTS

Delicious Cereal Relieves Constipation

Read this very enthusiastic letter:

"Something like eleven or twelve years ago, I began eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. When I started, it was called simply Kellogg's Bran, and I believe it was one of the first products of the kind on the market.

"My friends often laugh at my fondness for ALL-BRAN. It gives such a clean taste in the mouth, and I do not feel satisfied until I have had my ALL-BRAN.

"If the Kellogg Company should ever stop manufacturing ALL-BRAN, here is one who would be greatly disappointed."—Miss Amy Person, University Park, Iowa.

Science says that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. How much safer than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily for most types of constipation. For serious cases, try it three times daily. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Shantung Popular For Hot Weather

NEW YORK.

SHANTUNG is with us again this summer, the good old standby for hot-weather clothes. And you can't blame people for rushing back to shantung when you remember how well it tailors, how softly it hangs, how perfectly it washes and how thoughtfully it keeps you cool.

A new shantung suit of deep linen blue is creating a sensation about town, what with its white sailor collar and what with its trick fastenings. The sailor collar belongs to the blouse beneath, and is worn on the outside. The fastenings are long metal loop bars, about two inches long, through which are slipped tabs of the fabric.

The coat is trim, fitted and collarless (except for the sailor collar of the blouse) and it fastens up to the neck, via the metal loops. The skirt is slender and straight, with a couple of kick pleats to allow for walking room. And the blouse is white wash silk with no sleeves and the aforementioned sailor collar.

The new vogue for good luck emblems is demonstrated on an afternoon suit of two shades of stone beige romain. The fitted, collarless jacket has buttons shaped like miniature ivory horns of plenty, tipped with silver. The yoke and front band of the jacket are of the lighter shade of beige, the rest of the darker.

The skirt has a yoke and a stripe down the front of the lighter tone, and the blouse is entirely of the light beige, and ties at the neck in a big bow, which is worn outside the jacket.

Ham, Potatoes and Onions.

Place a thick slice of ham, weighing about two pounds, in a double roaster. Cut six white potatoes into slices and spread over the ham. Sift one-half cup flour over this. Slice two large onions over the top. Pour in milk to cover all, place lid on roaster and bake in a slow oven for an hour.

OUR DAILY PUZZLE
(Advertisement.)

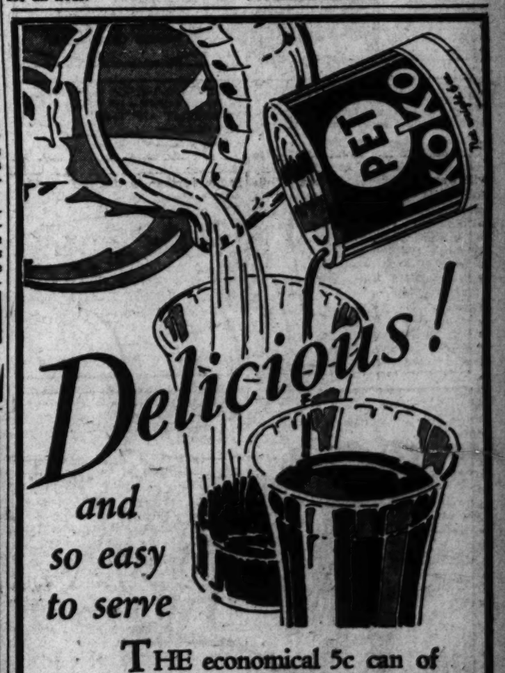

Up until September, 1931, our sales checks were size 4¼x7⅞. It occurred to Johnny Tonino, in Dept. 114, that if we were to eliminate the unnecessary space on those sales checks—reduce the size—we might save money. We investigated, and Johnny was right. The sales checks today measure 4¼x7⅞, and by the elimination of that small amount of paper we are enabled to save over a thousand dollars a year on this one item alone. - That isn't a great deal, perhaps, but it represents just one of hundreds of ways in which we are constantly endeavoring to save money, and wherever we can effect an economy that economy goes right along to the customer.

Another feature of the New Deal is that critics are kicking about what the Government does instead of what it doesn't.

SLAYING FOLLOWS $1500 HOLDUP AT MEXICO, MO.

Officers Stop Ford at Intersection of Highways 63 and 40 and Are Shot Down by Occupants.

MEN ESCAPE HEADED TOWARD ST. LOUIS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 14.—Three men, believed to be the same who robbed the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank at Mexico, Mo., earlier in the afternoon, shot and killed Sheriff Roger Wilson of Boone County and State Highway Patrolman Ben Boothe, in the outskirts of Columbia about 3:20 p. m. today.

Sheriff Wilson and Patrolman Boothe, who had been notified of the bank robbery at Mexico, were at the intersections of Highway 40 and 63, when they saw the Ford coupe approaching from the east. They ordered the car to stop, and as it pulled up, a man jumped out, holding a revolver.

Sheriff Wilson ordered the man to put down his revolver, and approached him, intending to disarm him. The man shot Wilson in the head. As the Sheriff fell, a shot was fired at Boothe. Persons who saw the shooting from a near-by filling station believe the shot which felled Boothe was fired by a second man, who had remained in the car.

More shots were fired at both men, and Wilson's wounds were in the head, while Boothe's were in the head and the chest. As far as could be learned, the officers did not have a chance to fire their weapons.

Though the car had come from the east, witnesses said it turned about and drove back in that direction after the shooting. Two Deputy Sheriffs drove east on 40 in the hope of overtaking the fugitives, but returned without having sighted them.

In the bank robbery at Mexico, the three men took $1500. Two of the robbers entered the bank and drew revolvers and covered Charles F. Merrifield, the cashier, and two customers, Benjamin Dobyns and Robert Lyon. They gathered up all the currency in sight and compelled Merrifield and the other two to accompany them out of the building to delay them in giving an alarm.

At the curb they jumped into an automobile, with another man at the wheel, and sped south over highway 54. They evidently turned west on 40 at the intersection, at Kingdom City, and drove to Columbia.

ALLEGED KIDNAPER KILLED BY OREGON STATE POLICEMAN

By the Associated Press.

ROSEBURG, Ore., June 14.—Jack Haley, alleged kidnaper, was shot to death here last night by State Policeman Hubert Hoxie.

Police said Haley, a garage mechanic, attempted to collect $125 ransom after he had kidnaped Ray B. Compton, Roseburg attorney. Hoxie fired as Haley fled after having been surrounded.

Frank Park, driver of the automobile in which Haley was riding, and Reta and Douglas Winningham, at whose home Compton was found chained, were arrested.

5 Down-State Illinois Banks Closed

CHICAGO, June 14.—Only 65 down-State banks closed during the moratorium have not been permitted to reopen to date. The Farmers' and Merchants' Bank of Vandalia in Fayette County and the Pilota State Bank in Hancock County were authorized to resume business today.
